ANDERSON MEMORIAL SPAN IS BEING BUILT

Piledriver is seen at work on new stadium bridge which is to replace structure in foreground

Work has begun actively on the new stadium bridge, for which Larz Anderson gave $200,000 in memory of his father. A piledriver and scows are moored in the middle of the Charles just above the bridge, and piles are being sunk for the temporary span preliminary to construction of the first caisson, within which the stone piers are to be built.

The beginning of the work marks the end of negotiations covering several years, for the present bridge has long been inadequate to accommodate the crowds that attend football and other athletic events and the class day exercises in the stadium.

It took long to win the consent of the war department to the construction of a drawless bridge across the river, but finally this was given and necessary national and Massachusetts legislation was passed. It is expected that the bridge will be ready for the tree day of the class of 1914.

TWO PROPOSALS TO REOPEN WATER CASE IN THE CITY COUNCIL

Alleged That Hyde Park Co. Retained Possession Three Years After City Had Purchased Works

BONDS ATTACKED

Two recommendations for the reopening of the Hyde Park water case are to be made to the city council this afternoon by Roscoe Walsworth, counsel for the petitioners, whose claim for a writ of mandamus to compel an investigation of the sale of the Hyde Park Water Company's plant, was refused recently by Judge Sheldon in the supreme court.

One of the proposals will be that the council petition the court for a bill of review to reopen the case, which was dismissed by the last town meeting of Hyde Park; the other to take new actions.

It is claimed that the city, having annexed Hyde Park, ought to recover about $200,000 from the company.

Mr. Rolsworth maintains that it will cost the city between $150,000 and $200,000 to rebuild the water system, and claims that the finance commission of Boston admitted in its report that the water system in Hyde Park was practically useless. He avers that the town purchased its system on Dec. 26, 1906, but that the company retained possession and collected all revenues until April, 1910. It also refused to account to the town for this income or the care of the property for that time.

"The town learned a year later," says Mr. Walsworth, "that $468,000 had been paid out for the expenses never reported for authorization or ratification by the town."

A meeting, it is claimed, which was not advertised and warned, as required by law, authorized bonds to be issued and sold to an amount not to exceed $500,000 to pay expenses of the purchase. It is claimed that even the citizens present did not know what the expenses were.

Two pumping plants were included in the price paid for a valuation, says Mr. Walsworth, something over $50,000. These are now useless, he declares. He further claims that those interested did not even ask the town to approve the contract and the bill of expenses.

After the matter had come before the supreme court it was placed before the city council, which passed an order to refer it to the finance commission for its consideration. The finance commission has now made its report and the question is to come before the council. Nearly $100,000 of the sum named by the petitioners is said to represent income retained by the company after the property was sold.

WEIGHING CARLOADS OF COAL DESCRIBED AT SPECIAL HEARING

In the course of the hearing on railroad methods of weighing carload freight before Ward Prouty, special examiner for the interstate commerce commission, at the Federal building today the question of coal weighing came up, and in examination a witness declared that some time ago four men had been discharged from the Boston & Maine road for errors in weighing, it being alleged that they were in collusion with coal dealers.

W. S. Phiffer, representing the Wholesale Lumber Dealers Association; John T. Marchand, counsel for the commission, and Attorney Charles H. Blatchford for the New Haven and Boston & Maine roads were among those present.

Roger C. Griffen, a weight expert, testified that on Sept. 2, 1912, he was present at the weighing of a consignment of wood pulp taken from the steamer Bethania. He told how the Boston & Maine overcharged for the shipments. He weighed the pulp on Sept. 2 and the railroad weighed it on Sept. 14, 12 days later.

HAWTHORNE COMPANY PLACED ON TRIAL

NEW YORK—Julian Hawthorne, author and newspaper correspondent, and son of Nathaniel Hawthorne; Josiah Quincy, twice mayor of Boston and assistant secretary of state under President Cleveland; Dr. William J. Morton, specialist, and Albert Freeman, a promoter, went on trial before Judge Hough in the criminal branch of the federal court today. All are charged with using the mails to defraud, the government alleging that they and John McKinnon sold mining stocks in companies that had no existence and that the investing public lost more than $3,000,000. McKinnon will be tried separately later.

District Attorney Wise prosecuted, while the defendants were represented by Damon E. Hall, P. N. Jones, Thomas Proctor of Boston, Joseph Choate, Jr., and Roderick Wellman of this city.

On behalf of Josiah Quincy it was said the defense would be that he had no connection with the companies, but was the personal attorney of Messrs. Freeman and Hawthorne.

There were fully a dozen of the companies which the government claims were fraudulent. Chief of these was the Hawthorne Silver & Iron Mining Company, the Continental Syndicate and the Julian Hawthorne Company.

According to the opening address of the prosecution the company conducted a campaign of stock and bond selling by mail.

URGES HASTE IN RAILWAY INQUIRY

Governor Foss today received a letter from Governor Pothier of Rhode Island in which the latter expressed his wish that action in investigating the Grand Trunk-New Haven situation be hastened.

BROKEN ROD DELAYS TRAINS

From 10,000 to 12,000 commuters were late in reaching Boston today as a result of the breaking of a connecting rod on the engine of an inbound local train from Reading on the Boston & Maine road. The break occurred at Melrose Highlands at 7:34 a. m. and it was 9 o'clock before the track was cleared and 9:30 before the railroad could get trains around by the outward bound track. No one was injured.

WASHINGTON LOOKS FOR LATE SOLUTION OF CABINET PROBLEM

Politicians Relate That There Have Been Cases When Places Remained Unsettled Until Inauguration

President-elect Wilson's denial of rumors that he had made one or more cabinet selections is generally accepted in Washington without reservation. It is pointed out that previous cabinets have been slow in the making and the Monitor's Washington correspondent relates in the following article many of the incidents leading to the selection of past cabinets, and the deductions of politicians and others upon which they base an expectation that the next President will select among his advisers one or more great political economists.

State Officials Watch Petitions in Expectation That Other Communities Will Follow Example

Approach of the legislative session of 1913 has raised the question at the State House whether the commonwealth is to extend its paternal beneficence of the last session when it assumed the burden of maintaining two travel-worn highway bridges, one in Fall River, the other at Newburyport.

Were the two bills passed in the 1912 session in effect an entering wedge to secure the state maintenance of all road bridges used by the general public? This is one of the questions puzzling legislators and state officials, and they are watching with interest the filing of bills at the State House to see to what extent other communities will ask to be relieved of the cost of keeping in

WAY SHOWN TO CHECK RAISING COAL PRICES

Atty.-Gen. James M. Swift has referred to Governor Foss the law passed in 1903, in reply to the Governor's inquiry as to the ways of stopping the alleged raising of prices of coal in Massachusetts by coal dealers. This law provides a way for revoking the license of any coal dealer who is found, after investigation, to have charged extortionate prices or to have conspired to this end with other dealers.

Governor Foss today wrote to the officials of the United Improvement Association, who had filed specific complaints of extortionate prices of coal, telling them of the law. Under this law the complaints should have been made to the secretary of state, and the Governor proposes to give the association an opportunity to so do. If charges are not made by the association or some other party outside the State House, the Governor, it is said, will then take action by filing similar complaints with the secretary.

The law, which is chapter 484 of the acts of 1903, requires every coal dealer in the state to secure a license from the secretary of state, and making it unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to carry on the business of selling coal or coke, as principal or agent, at wholesale or retail, without obtaining the license.

Section 3 of the act provides: "These said licenses may be suspended or revoked at any time by the secretary of the commonwealth, after a fair hearing given to the licensee, for using false weights or measures, for charging extortionate prices, for conspiring, combining unlawfully with other persons, or unlawfully discriminiating in the conduct of said business, or for any other just and sufficient reason.

In section 4 the licensee is given the opportunity to present his side of the case after his license is suspended. The section says in part that he "may appeal to any justice of the superior court who shall hear the parties as soon as may be, and whose decision sustaining, modifying or annulling the action of the licensing authority shall be final and binding upon all parties."

Pending such an appeal by the licensee and a decision thereon the license is to continue in force.

ETTOR CASE GIVEN TO JURY BY JUDGE QUINN AFTER FINAL CHARGE

Judge Instructs the Twelve Men That Giovannitti and Ettor Cannot Be Found Guilty in First Degree

TRIAL IS CLOSING

Precautionary Measures Are Taken in Way of Extra Cordon of Police Around Essex County Court House

SALEM, Mass.—The jury which will decide the fate of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo M. Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, charged with the killing of the Lawrence girl striker, Annie Lopizzo, retired at 12:45 p. m. today.

Following the conclusion of Judge Quinn's instructions to the jury, both defense counsel and District Attorney Attwill argued unavailingly for more than an hour, attempting to obtain additional instructions from Judge Quinn.

The jury immediately went to dinner in charge of several court officers, while police officers cleared a passage through the crowd on the sidewalk. The prisoners were removed to jail, where they will await the verdict.

That neither Ettor nor Arturo Giovanitti should be electrocuted Judge Quinn today instructed the jury. He said the only verdict which can be returned against them, if found guilty, is second degree, calling for life imprisonment. Joseph Caruso, however, must go to the chair. Judge Quinn instructing the jury that if they find him guilty the verdict will specify either first or second degree murder.

Shortly before Judge Quinn began his charge to the jury, Giovannitti, in answer to a report from Italy that he had been proclaimed a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies said that he felt honored, but he was ineligible as he had not reached 32 years.

When questioned regarding the rumored plans for a general strike in Italy should the verdict be adverse, Giovannitti said: "That is the usual custom."

Opening his charge to the jury, Judge Quinn urged the jury to try the case without any feeling of sympathy and prejudice and without any regard for possible consequences; that the verdict be determined solely in accordance with the law and on the evidence presented and not by any outside influences.

"This is a momentous issue, not only to the prisoners, but to the public at large," said Judge Quinn.

"Life in this commonwealth has always been regarded of the highest value, and a verdict of murder in the first degree calls for capital penalty. The commonwealth is tender of the interests of dfendants; it seeks no victims."

After defining the law and various degrees of the crime with which the men are charged, Judge Quinn pointed out that accessories, if found guilty, are liable to the same penalty as the principal.

FAVORS MT. GREYLOCK ROAD

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—The Greylock mountain commission filed its report on Sunday, favoring a trolley car line up the mountain, as advocated by the Berkshire Street Railway Company.

THIRTY FISHING CRAFT WITH 408 TONS OF FISH DOCK IN ONE DAY

More than 815,000 pounds of fresh groundfish was brought to T wharf today by a fleet of 30 sail, including three of the steam trawlers. While the total receipts are not remarkable for one day, the number of arrivals are. Not since last spring have so many craft berthed at the pier in one day and the slips on each side resembled a forest of masts and rigging.

The large assembly is accounted for by waterfront authorities by the nearness of Thanksgiving. At a time when people think less of fish and more of turkey the business is not lively, and the eager fishermen seize upon the opportunity to spend a day with their families.

In addition to all the groundfish, there were some more fresh mackerel brought in, just in time to make a dainty addition to the menu of many tables Thanksgiving day. The Julietta brought in 1200 large, Eliza Benner, 200 and Albert Brown, 500; all plump fine fish. Dealers quickly purchased them for 33 to 35 cents each. There were also 1650 pounds of halibut distributed among the various vessels in today, while the groundfish approximate totals were: Haddock, 398,000 pounds; codfish 115,000, hake 193,200, cusk 42,700 and pollock 28,500. The high liner of the fleet of arrivals today was the schooner Elsie with 65,200 pounds. The steam trawler Foam was a close second with 56,500.

HINGHAM MEMORIAL TOWER AND PEAL OF BELLS DEDICATED

HINGHAM—The memorial tower and peal of bells erected in commemoration of the first settlers and founders of the town and to mark the two hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the event is being dedicated this afternoon.

The new tower stands upon land adjoining the historic First Unitarian church on Main street.

Former Governor John D. Long, chairman of the memorial committee, presides at the exercises, and Charles Francis Adams of the Massachusetts Historical Society makes the dedicatory address, while Arthur Lord of Brookline, president of the Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, also will speak. The exercises, which last one hour, include the prayer of dedication by the Rev. Louis C. Cornish, pastor of the First church, after which the audience will sing "Old Hundred," and ringing of the bells. At 7 p. m. hymns will again be rung, and the hymn ringing will be followed by the pealing of bells.

The memorial was erected by a committee consisting of John D. Long, Frederick E. Newell, the Rev. Louis E. Cornish, Thomas H. Buthmer, William L. Clifford, Ira G. Hersey and Ebed L. Ripley.

There has been $11,000 secured, and more money is needed.

INCREASE ALLOWED NEWTON POLICE IN FINANCE BUDGET

NEWTON Mass.—The finance committee of the board of aldermen will make its report on the 1913 buget at this evening's meeting of the board. The committee will recommend that the question as to the increase of pay in the fire department be postponed until after the city election on Dec. 10, at which time the acceptance of the act to give firemen one day off in five is to be determined by popular vote.

The committee will advise that the school appropriation be $335,000, a decrease from the mayor's figures of $7633. There was a long discussion among the members of the committee before this sum was arrived at. Alderman Pratt and Hatch did not agree to this amount, and it is expected that a minority report will be made at the meeting this evening.

The report will advise the raising of all salaries in the police department, except that of Capt. John Ryan. The increases to the patrolmen are based on a schedule allowing $2.50 per day for first year men, $2.75 per day for the second year of service, $3 a day for the third year and $1200 each year thereafter. Frederick M. Mitchell, the chief, is recommended an advance of $200 to $2200. The report also advises the raising of four lieutenants from $1250 to $1400 and four sergeants from $1200 to $1300.

Public buildings commissioner, Walter R. Forbush, is recommended a raise in salary from $1800 to $2000, and is recommended an assistant, to be paid $1200.

The sum of $2200 will be advised for the purchasing of a motor truck and a new automobile for the forestry department. For the maintenance of streets, the mayor, in his report indicated $85,000, while this figure was cut to $80,000 by the committee. It is expected that there will be a long discussion when this question comes up before the aldermen this evening. Last year the department was granted $68,000 and later allowed an additional $10,000.

The total appropriation for the year, according to the report, should be $1,305,393.83, or a decrease from last year of $78,113. The total amount asked for by the various departments was $1,379,706.44, and this figure was cut to $1,320,783.59 in the report of the mayor.

CONFERENCES ON COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS

Grafton D. Cushing, speaker of the House of Representatives, began today to receive members-elect of the Legislature to discuss with them committee appointments.

Mr. Cushing will receive the members-elect daily between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m.

Ten members had called and been given audiences with Mr. Cushing up to 12:30 p. m. today.

CHANGING RAILROAD GAUGE

NORTH ADAMS, Mass.—The work of changing the Hoosac Tunnel & Wilmington railway from a narrow to a broad gauge was started today, and is expected to be completed in four days.

"L" INDICTMENTS ARE ALL QUASHED

Nine indictments against six division superintendents of the Boston Eelevated Company, charged with perjury in connection with the state board of arbitration hearing on the recent strike, were quashed today by Judge Brown in the superior criminal court. The judge holds that the state board had power to summons and administer an oath only to operatives or a person keeping a record of wages paid to them and that the superintendents were not operatives within the meaning of the law.

VARIED HORTICULTURAL FEATURES OF CONVERSE ESTATE APPROVED

Rose garden on the grounds surrounding the summer residence of Colonel Converse in the town of Marion, Mass

Interesting features of the seashore estate of Col. Harry E. Converse at Marion, Mass., whose fruit garden won first prize this year, are pointed out in the report of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society recently issued; the finely finished system of roads through the woodlands, the charming vistas in every direction, the water garden, the flower, fruit and vegetable gardens are among the principal.

"Most of the roadsides," says the report, "are bordered by broad grassy margins, but occasionally plantations of roses and rhododendrons add a pleasing touch of coloring. The water garden has been enlarged since the visit of last season, and two Japanese bridges, bordered with trailing vines and flowering plants, give a pretty decorative effect."

Servia Will Adhere to Her Demand for Albanian Territory

MORE RUSSIAN TROOPS ARMED THAN GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN

Latter Are Declared to Be Unprepared Owing to Political Difficulties of the Last Few Years

Special Cable to the Monitor from its European Bureau

LONDON—The severity of the military censorship not only at the seat of war but throughout eastern Europe, combined with the secrecy enveloping the political situation has had its usual effect in stimulating the imagination of news agencies. There are, however, certain facts which it is possible to accept and certain deductions it is legitimate to make, provided they are recognized as such.

The willingness of the allies to reopen negotiations after the original terms had been declined by the Turks may be due to two quite opposite reasons. It may be due to the discovery that the Tchataldja lines are too strong to force or could in any event only be carried with appalling loss or it may be due to the certainty of success by the slower process of blockade and exhaustion.

In support of the first consideration there is the obvious fact that the Bulgarian losses must have been enormous in the war and that the last reserves have been called out.

With Adrianople held by perhaps 50,000 Turks in their rear, with the Balkan winter coming on and industrial and agricultural energies suspended, the Bulgarians, even if heavily reinforced by the Servians and Greeks, have every reason for caution. The Turks lying behind entrenchments with supplies close at hand, have all the advantages in a winter campaign, provided they have been able to overcome cholera. The factor in favor of the Bulgarians would be the ability of the Greeks to force the Dardanelles.

The Gallipoli peninsula should be invulnerable. Its neck is not five miles across and is protected by six permanent works. In a cup formation only a few miles further south at Bulair, is another group of eight permanent works. Behind these are the fortifications of Gallipoli itself. Beyond are the forts at the actual entrance to the Dardanelles. Finally there are the forts opposite the mile of water between Sestos and Abydos.

No army could force such a passage. No fleet could live through the straits. The question is could troops be landed on the Aegean shore so as to take the permanent works in the rear. Also, has the armament of these works been tampered with to provide Adrianople with guns? Those are problems the Greek or Bulgarian secret service may or may not have solved. The Turks might throw up defenses of a sort at the eleventh hour, but could scarcely provide guns.

The torpedoing of the Hamidieh by Bulgarian torpedo boats off Karaburun in the Black sea has weakened the Turkish defense of the Tchataldja lines on extreme right flank. The Messudieh has been hurried through the Bosphorus from the left end of the Tchataldja lines on the sea of Marmora to take the Hamidieh's place. Meantime the Bulgarians have gained ground in the neighborhood of Derkos and there is every likelihood of an attack in force being launched immediately if the Turks do not accept the latest terms.

Turning to the purely political side it is quite easy to exaggerate the danger of the situation. The sudden censorship which has been established over the military movements of neutral powers in eastern Europe at first sight appears menacing, but may easily betoken nothing more than unwillingness to create a scare based upon simple precautionary measures.

There is no question that Austria, Germany and Russia have carried out certain details of mobilization but at such a moment all three empires would be almost driven to strengthen their army corps on their frontiers. What is much more serious is the fact that Austria has completed a strong concentration on the Servian border.

It is almost impossible to believe that Servia, even supported by the full strength of the quadruple alliance, would defy the triple alliance without encouragement from Russia. Servia's determined march on the Adriatic, combined with the hurried withdrawal of the Austrian guardships from the Bosphorus, is certainly something more than a mere game of bluff and counterbluff.

If Servia is going to defy Austria and force her to cross the Danube, it may be because she imagines that an Austrian invasion of Slav territory would force Russia, nolens volens, into support of her, or because she believes that an Austrian veto of her claim to Durazzo is itself a bluff.

A communique issued by Monsieur Passitch, the Servian premier, this morning to the Times states in a most definite way the determination of Servia to adhere to her demand for an appropriation of the coastline, from Alessio to Durazzo, as the minimum, with a strip of territory to the frontier of the vilayet of Kossovo, comprising practically northern Albania. This strip includes most of the territory of the Roman Catholic Mirdite clan. The northern limit of this territory would run from Alessio to Djakova, the southern boundary from Durazzo to Lake Ochrida. Such a demand has no chance whatever of being admitted by Austria unless she should give way to a threat from Russia and the danger is that the present moment is the most favorable which has been presented to the Czar during the last 33 years of paying off old scores contracted by Andrassy and Aehrenthal.

Russia remembers only too well the secret policy of Andrassy after the signing of the treaty of San Stefano, and even better the tone in which Aehrenthal was in the habit of addressing her ministers.

If Russia is mobilizing today, and undoubtedly to some extent she is, the blame is not altogether hers. She remembers 600,000 men with which the Kaiser threatened her frontier along the Vistula when she objected to the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. In an interview with her new war minister, General Sukhomlinoff, he showed that much has been done to improve her military organization.

The carrying capacity of her railways is very different from what it was at that moment when she was unable to bring her vast reserves of men to the front in time. He has also carried out a redistribution scheme, explained in these columns some time ago, which makes the Russian forces more mobile in spite of the enormous distances they have to cover. The Russian 1,200,000 men on a peace footing, Military Censorship Very Severe—Facts Known Upon Which Hinges Question of European War or Peace

800,000 of which would be brought to bear against Germany and 400,000 against Austria, is available today and in that lies considerable danger to the peace of Europe.

The visit of Archduke Franz Josef and of the Austrian chief of staff to Field Marshal von Moltke, chief of the German staff, may, as is insisted, have been connected with the usual routine of the dual alliance, but it is none the less a coincidence. The truth is the Austrian army is admittedly not as well organized as it might be, owing very largely to the political difficulties of the last few years. Added to this the armament of its artillery is almost a danger to it.

On a peace footing its army amounts to some 400,000 men and that of its ally, Germany, to 627,000. Russia, therefore, has a preponderance on a peace footing which would be enormously increased on a war footing, whilst Germany would have to count on an attack on the Rhine frontier from France. Roumania would, of course, throw in her lot with Austria, just as the quadruple alliance would be found on the side of Russia.

What part Italy and the United Kingdom would play, is an interesting question. Italy is, however, almost committed to the defense of Albanian autonomy, though it is quite certain with her new Tripolitan empire on her hands she is in no hurry to be drawn into a war, the price of which, in the event of failure, might be an extension of the French territory in that direction.

In spite of all this it is well to remember the calm words of Mr. Asquith in his speech a few days ago at Nottingham, in which he declared that the European powers were working steadily together, and were determined not to be drawn piecemeal into a series of negotiations over the rectification of frontiers. Unless Mr. Asquith was veiling the true condition of things, and that in such a crisis is not the tradition of the foreign office in London, there is no need at all for any immediate alarm or room for the engineering of scares.

NEW SOUTH WALES WILL BUILD HOUSES

(Special to the Monitor)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aus.—The great influx of population into New South Wales this year has created a shortage of housing accommodation in the metropolis of Sydney, and it is the intention of the government to meet the shortage by building wooden houses in large numbers.

The government director of buildings has been asked to prepare a scheme for the erection of some hundreds of wooden houses immediately, and the erection of these buildings will be hurried on. Other similar cottages will probably be erected elsewhere in the metropolis to meet the existing demand. These cottages will be substantial, permanent structures, and the rental will be about 10s. per week.

CONSTANTINOPLE NOW WAITS IN FOREBODING

State of Siege in Turkish Capital Is Extremely Severe and Refugees Crowding in It Make the Position More Difficult

An incident in the flight of Turkish soldiers toward Constantinople after Bulgarian victory

(Special to the Monitor)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey—Constantinople is in a state of siege, not merely from a military, but from a political point of view. Stories of all manners are floating about with respect to the sayings of ministers and of their forebodings in the event of the Bulgarians storming the lines at Tchataldja and entering the city simultaneously with the beaten soldiery.

A little while ago a great scare was raised that the water supply of the city had been cut off. This, of course, was merely one of the many untrue statements telegraphed west. The water supply of the city is not dependent upon Lake Derkos. A certain supply does reach the city from pipes from the lake. The better-off Turks would, however, scorn water brought in such a way, and obtain their own water direct from springs closer at hand. The water from Derkos they might use to bathe in, but they would not use it if they could help it for drinking purposes. The remaining water supply could only be cut off if the Bulgarians reached the Makrikoi lines, and if they reach these it would scarcely be necessary for them to resort to the method of cutting off the water supply.

Mob Is Dangerous

The state of siege which exists in the city is extremely severe, and every one has to keep pretty closely to their houses at night. The Constantinople mob is one of the most dangerous in the east, and immense efforts have been made to disarm it. Cartloads of pistols, knives, and swords, have been seized and deposited in the arsenal. How many arms which have not been discovered may remain, is another thing, and though the mob might not be armed, the fanatical troops, if they burst into the city, certainly would be. It has become a favorite occupation to climb to the heights of Pera and watch the Weymouth lying in the Golden Horn, ready to land her marines and bluejackets at a moment's notice.

Across the Bosphorus, at Scutari, the refugees are being passed forward into Asia Minor. Thirty thousand families, it is said, have crowded into the city since the fall of Kirk Kilisse. They are, of course, nearly entirely women and children, the women carrying their household belongings on their backs, or on little carts, and tugging the children with them. They have given up all hope of ever returning to their homes in Thrace, and are clamoring for new homes in the Padishah's Asian dominions. Hundreds of these families have already been sent into Anatolia, but even so the streets are blocked with encampments and the woods round the city crowded with half-starved people who have sought shelter there from what they are convinced would have been their fate from the Bulgarian bayonets.

Exaggeration Exposed

It need not be said that reports spread all over Europe of the dangers of the city have been grossly exaggerated, for sensational or political reasons. The stories of massacres that have found their way into certain papers have been printed without the slightest effort being made to substantiate them. Twice there has been a report of a massacre of the Christians in Salonika. Today the Greeks are there and the massacre has not taken place.

The same calculated recklessness has spread the reports of the dangers of Constantinople, and so dangerous have these reports become that a group of well-known British residents, numbering among them Sir Adam Block, Sir Richard Crawford, Sir Edwin Pears, and Admiral Sir Henry Woods Pasha, have drawn up a statement for publication in the British papers, denouncing the danger of these exaggerations, and insisting on the truth concerning them.

In a state of siege, newspapers very soon cease to be published, and the sublime Porte has a short way with the native papers who question its orders. Nowhere, perhaps, in the world has less been known about the war than in Constantinople. Bulletins describing brilliant victories, there have been enough and to spare; but the arrival of the Bulgarian battalions at Tchataldja has convinced the Turks finally of their defeat. Such newspapers as reach the city come through the foreign postoffices, and are necessarily late in arriving. New news telegraphed by the special correspondents to their papers in such circumstances must be of a marvelous description.

HOME FOR MORGAN ART WORKS IN DOUBT

NEW YORK—Unless the Metropolitan Museum of Art is speedily able to add a new wing to its building in Central park or to appropriate much of the space now occupied to a new use, it is said that the museum and this city will lose permanently the collection of art objects gathered by J. Pierpont Morgan, and for many years kept in his house in London, in the South Kensington (now Victoria and Albert) and other London museums.

The collection has been in process of shipment to this country since last spring, and the last shipment will be received in New York next month. If New York loses the collection it probably will go to Hartford, Conn.

The collection is estimated to be worth $50,000,000. It was stated Sunday by Edward Robinson, director of the museum, that it was the greatest single collection of art objects ever offered to a museum.

STATE DISCARDS PUBLIC PLANTS

LINCOLN, Neb.—State officials have found that the public lighting and power plants are being operated at a loss. The board of public buildings has decided to close the state-owned plants and contract with private companies for light and power.

The plants which have furnished light and power to the state properties will

WIRELESS DETAILS FROM ADRIANOPLE CUT OFF

(Special correspondence of the Monitor)

CONSTANTINOPLE—The interruption of the wireless telegraphy service with Adrianople has been received with the utmost depression.

During the whole war, the holding out of the fortress has been the one bright spot. It has represented something which Plevna represented during the Russian war, and the fact that it may have fallen has had a corresponding effect.

No one knows what is happening at Tchataldja, but the columns of impromptu ambulances always streaming from the front is believed to indicate that heavy fighting is proceeding there. In reality, it may not mean anything more than that the wounded from the earlier battles are now being brought into Constantinople. A few months ago the possibility of the lines being forced would have been scoffed at. Today there is an indefinable fear that the end is only a question of time.

The refugees in the city are gradually being disposed of. Hundreds of these poor people may be seen daily crossing the Galata bridge to Galata and Pera, to embark on the boats which will carry them over to their new homes in Asia. Everything they possess is represented by a bundle of larger or smaller proportions, carried on their backs on in their hands.

Streets Are Crowded

In spite of this, the streets and mosques are crowded with temporary encampments, the people cooking and living in the courtyards and in the buildings. The mosques themselves, including even St. Sophia, have been converted into barracks and refugee camps, where life goes on in that unconcerned way which is only possible to a Turk.

What is happening at the front is left to guesswork, but the papers are beginning to let out something of the truth. One fact which implies much was admitted when numbers of the Asian reservists forwarded to Tchataldja drifted back into the city, because no arms could be provided for them. The panic which existed a little time ago has largely died down, partially owing to the disarming of the mob and partially to the long line of foreign cruisers anchored in the Bosphorus. The intense fatalism of the Turk is beginning to reassert itself. It is all a question of kismet. The time prophesied for holding the Hagia Sophia has been reached, and there is the end of the matter.

Talaat Bey in Trouble

The all-powerful committee of union and progress has fallen on evil times. Talaat Bey, who went to the front as a volunteer, reappeared after a time in Constantinople. It is said that his object was to obtain the appointment of Mahmud Shevket Pasha once more as war minister in the place of Nazim. With this object he actually called on Kiamil, with the result that the grand vizier hinted to him that if he did not return to his regiment, which he had left whilst flight was possible, he might find himself arrested as a deserter.

Subsequently he was permitted to resign and has now been led to understand that his absence from Constantinople will be regarded as a desirable step. Such is the end of the minister of posts and telegraphs in the once omnipotent Young Turk cabinet. His friend and colleague, Djavid Bey, the minister of finance, has already departed on board a French steamer for Marseilles. It is said that the police were in search of him and that he took refuge from their inquiries on board one of the French cruisers.

Hussein Kiazim Bey, Ismail Hakki Banzadeh and Rahmi Bey have also disappeared, and it is said that the two former have fled the country. The committee in the last few weeks made a desperate effort to reassert its supremacy, but Kiamil made short work of it, and the men who ruled Turkey with the scorpions of Rehoboam, from the time of the deposition of Abdul Hamid, are broken and scattered to the winds.

FUTURE OF LONDON UNIVERSITY ARGUED

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The royal commission on university education in London is drafting a report which will be presented early in the year. The fate of the London University is in the balance, and in university quarters interest is running high.

The government have promised to receive a deputation from the Senate, who will approach it on the vexed question of the site. Some months ago, it will be remembered, the Duke of Bedford's scheme for the purchase of the Bloomsbury site called forth the promise of many most munificent donations. The scheme fell through, and some doubt exists as to whether these promises will be made good in the event of the formulation of a fresh building scheme. Should this not prove to be the case, the government grant would have to be enormously increased before operations could commence.

The question, however, of the external side of the university is the principal one before the royal commission, and is being generally discussed in university circles. Some people are favorable to a London university without an external side, one merely composed of affiliated colleges forming the ideal of a university.

Others oppose this on the grounds of the London student of limited means, who has enjoyed the privileges of a university close at hand, and believe that great service has been rendered to national education by the University of London in its present form.

CALIFORNIA RECOUNT ASKED

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—The bill in equity prepared by the Progressive party demanding a recount of the presidential vote in two precincts of Los Angeles county was filed Saturday in the superior court.

JOURNALISM TO BE DISCUSSED

CHICAGO—A conference of teachers of journalism in 15 American universities will be held in Chicago on Nov. 30. The technical training and practical experience in newspaper work that should be included in college courses in journalism will be the chief topic of discussion. Dr. Talcott Williams, director of the Pulitzer school of journalism of Columbia University, will read a paper on "Technical Instruction in Journalism" at the afternoon session.

The universities that will be represented include the University of Michigan, Columbia University, University of Wisconsin, University of Illinois, University of Missouri, Iowa Agricultural College, Kansas Agricultural College, University of Kansas, Depauw University, Indiana University and the University of Oregon.

That to Harvard University belongs the football championship of the East for 1912 is today conceded by all who have followed the campaign in this section of the country this fall. With a team that has not been defeated during the season or held to a tie, the Crimson has given to the football world one of the best teams that has been turned out in some time.

Followers of the team had been confidently expecting, ever since the victory over Princeton on Nov. 2, that the Crimson was going to take the honors; but not until the conclusion of the great battle in New Haven Saturday when Captain Wendell's eleven triumphed on Yale field, by a score of 20 to 0, for the first time since 1908 was the outcome finally settled beyond all question, and to those who saw the Crimson and Blue fight it out in this game there is absolutely no question as to where the championship rightfully belongs.

When one says that it was a great game it expresses the situation perfectly. It was hard fought from start to finish. Speaking generally Yale was clearly outclassed in every department of the game. In fact the Crimson showed so much superiority over the New Haven eleven that many were inclined to believe that the Yale eleven of 1912 was hardly above the smaller college standard. It is true that in some departments of the game Yale appeared woefully weak and far below Yale standards; but considerable of this weakness was due to the wonderful work of the Crimson players.

As a team Harvard was all that could be asked for. The Crimson was abundantly supplied with fine backfield material both as regards physical requirements and football sense and Captain Wendell, Brickley and Hardwick lived up to their reputations to the fullest extent. In Quarterback Gardner, the eleven had a man who by perseverance and able coaching was developed into a field general who surpassed any quarterback in the East this year. His individual playing was faultless and he ran the team with rare judgement and success.

Too much praise cannot be given to the Crimson forwards. Starting with a lot of candidates physically below the average big university qualifications, Coach Haughton and his assistants rounded them into a line of the fast, aggressive type that absorbed football to a very high degree. Ability to follow the ball was never better exemplified than by the work of the Crimson forwards against Yale, and this alone played a prominent part in the victory. The ends, tackles and center were veterans, and they added to their records of former years. The two guards were new to the game, and at the start showed little promise, but they developed rapidly and rounded out a rushline which could hardly be improved upon.

Yale's team failed to measure up to expectations, both on account of Harvard's superiority and her own poor development. The line was made up of men physically superior football timber to Harvard's, but they were decidedly lacking in aggressiveness and football ability, and, with the exception of Ketcham and Bomeisler, failed to play a prominent part in the game.

Yale tried three players at quarterback with rather mediocre success. Wheeler was the best so far as field generalship, but his individual playing was not very strong, especially as regards catching punts. Cornell proved to be no better in individual work and weaker in running the team, and Dyer failed to show up well.

Of the backfield, Substitute Pumpelly seemed to be the best of those who were given a try, although Captain Spalding did some good work and kept his men fighting to the very last. Flynn, who was heralded as the great find of 1912, was a decided disappointment in everything but punting, and he was very erratic at this. Philbin, Baker and Markle all failed to shine.

The striking features of the game from a Harvard standpoint were Felton's punting, some of the best seen in years, the recovering of fumbled punts by Hitchcock and Storer, the line plunging and defensive work of Captain Wendell, the playing of Parmenter against Ketcham and the all round work of Brickley, who scored 12 of the Crimson's points.

For Yale the best work was done as a team in the last quarter, when fresh men hammering at Harvard's tired center, did some consistent rushing for first downs, the brilliant playing of Bomeisler when fresh, the rushing of Pumpelly and the steady work of Ketcham at center. The summary:

CANDIDATES FOR HARVARD CAPTAIN

R. T. P. STORER '14

H. R. HITCHCOCK '14

ATHLETIC NOTES

Yale won the intercollegiate shooting match between Yale, Harvard and Princeton Saturday, with 396. Princeton was second with 393 and Harvard third with 360. White of Princeton was high man with 85.

—ooo—

Harvard won the intercollegiate cross-country championship Saturday, with 32 points. Cornell was second with 48 and Dartmouth third with 87. J. P. Jones of Cornell won the individual honors for the third successive time in 32m. 29 1-5s. Taber of Brown was second and F. W. Copeland of Harvard third.

—ooo—

University of Wisconsin won the fifth western conference cross-country race Saturday, with 61 points. Ames was second with 87 and Missouri third with 111. J. A. White of Wisconsin was first in 27m. 29s., 2 minutes better than the record. R. Wickham of Missouri was second, Thornsen of Northwestern third.

MICHIGAN FOOTBALL LETTERS

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—University of Michigan has awarded varsity football M's to the following players: Capt. G. C. Thomson, Cadilac, Mich.; Clem Quinn, Saginaw, Mich.; O. C. Carpell, Saginaw, Mich.; J. B. Craig, Detroit; R. H. Torbet, Detroit; M. H. Pontius, Circleville, O.; H. H. Huebel Menominee, Mich.; G. C. Paterson, Detroit, Mich.; E. M. C. Almendinger, Ann Arbor; M. H. Boyle, Duluth, Minn.; Charles Barton, Louisville, Ky.; Thomas Bushnell, Cleveland, O.; E. F. Hughitt, Escanaba, Mich.; J. C. Musser, Akron, O.; W. M. Cale, Cedar Spring, Mich.; James W. Raynsford, Detroit, Mich.; W. H. Collette, Menominee, Mich.

COACH SYSTEM IS TALK AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale alumni and undergraduates are asking today what is going to be done to prevent another exhibition like that given by the Blue football eleven against Harvard Saturday. There seems to be a demand for a change in coaching methods and a permanent coach seems to have the call. It is pointed out that the lack of knowledge of one of the first principles of the game, the catching of punts and a general inattention to details, was responsible for the showing made. The matter is now under advisement by the athletic council.

MAY BLOCK INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK—Although Horace Fogel is on record as declaring that he would be ready to proceed when the National League magnates tomorrow start investigating President Lynch's charges against him, it was rumored today that the investigation would be halted with a court injunction, and Mr. Fogel, it was reported, would be behind the order. It was said that the impending change of the controlling interest of the Philadelphia club would be interfered with if the Fogel charges are accepted at this time and that the court will be asked to interfere. At National League headquarters it was stated that up to today no warning of the reported litigation had been received.

SIDELINE NOTES

—ooo—

Warren, Ketcham, Cooney and Captain Spalding played the entire game for Yale.

—ooo—

That ability to follo the ball is one of the chief assets in football was clearly proven by the Harvard eleven Saturday.

—ooo—

Felton and Pennock were the only Harvard men to play the entire Yale game. Most of those taken out were to permit substitutes to win their H's.

—ooo—

The cheering of Harvard and Captain Wendell by Yale, and of Yale and Captain Spalding by Harvard was one of the pleasing features of the game.

—ooo—

Hitchcock or Storer appears to be the logical choice for Harvard captain next year with Brickley a possibility. The two first named will be seniors, while Brickley will be a junior.

—ooo—

Two victories, two scoreless ties and one defeat in his five years as coach, certainly warranted the reengagement of P. D. Haughton '90, as head coach of the Crimson for a few more years.

—ooo—

Bomeisler played a great game at end early in the contest but at times showed too much tendency to tackle a Harvard player around the neck. Cooney also appeared unnecessarily rough at times.

—ooo—

Twelve Harvard players received the football H for the first time Saturday. They were T. Frothingham, Wigglesworth, Trumbull, Driscoll, Lawson, Hollister, Bradley, Hardwick, Brickley, Lingard and Graustein.

CLEVELAND SELLS FOUR PLAYERS

CLEVELAND—Four Cleveland American league players were released Saturday: Catcher Nagelson and Pitcher Wolfe to Waterbury, Conn.; Outfielder Hunter to Flint, Mich., and Infielder Nash, the former Brown University shortstop, to Toledo.

ATHLETICS BEAT HAVANA TEAM

HAVANA, Cuba—The Havana baseball nine was defeated by the Philadelphia American league team 8 to 3 yesterday.

OXFORD FRESHMEN SHOW UP STRONGLY IN THEIR TRACK MEET

D. M. Gaussen Wins Both Mile and Half Mile Runs, Making Very Good Time in Each

GOOD SPRINTER

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—Several very creditable performances were witnessedd in the Oxford University freshmen's sports. The program included the usual track and field events in which the dark blues compete with Cambridge in the spring, with the exception of the three-mile race and throwing the hammer. Freshmen, as a rule, are able to obtain but little practise or instruction before these sports take place, consequently the somewhat indifferent form seen on these occasions frequently develops, under proper training, into something much better. Before making comment on the individual results it may be well to give a list of the winners with times, which are as follows:

100-yard dash—F. W. H. Nicholas, Forest school; time, 10 3-5s.
440-yard dash—J. A. Clarke, Aberdeen; time, 52 3-5s.
880-yard run—D. M. Gaussen, Berkhampstead; time, 2m. 3 4-5s.
1-mile run—D. M. Gaussen, Berkhampstead; time, 4m. 43 1-5s.
120 yards hurdles—J. A. Clarke, Aberreen; time, 17 3-5s.
High jump—E. J. Edenborough, Weymouth; 5ft. 4in.
Long jump—C. D. L. Speed, Eton; 20ft. 9½in.
Putting the shot—C. McCormick, Princetown University; 38ft. 10 in.

With practise Nicholas should improve on his 100-yard performance, for he was slow off the mark, but won fairly easily. He should be heard of again as a sprinter in the near future. Clarke's quarter-mile was registered in very good time for a freshman. He is an all round athlete who is certain to do well, and though his hurdle time was slow, the track afforded very heavy going. The half-mile and mile were captured by D. M. Gaussen in most spirited fashion. In each case he finished with a magnificent turn of speed. He seems a very probable Blue for one of these events at least, and it will not be surprising if he runs for his university next spring. The jumps were moderate, but McCormick of Princetown University did a fine performance in the weight. Altogether the Oxford president, W. C. Moore, may congratulate himself on having some very promising talent among the freshmen, and in this respect he seems even more fortunate than his Cambridge rival.

MANN MAY GO TO PITTSBURGH

Matthew Mann, for the past three years the swimming instructor at the Brookline Gymnasium A. A., is considering an offer to go on to the Pittsburgh A. A. to have charge of the swimming department there. Mr. Mann has before received offers from other associations but none that interested him. Previous to coming to Brookline, Mr. Mann was instructor at the Syracuse University, and prior to that was at Buffalo.

BROWN READY FOR CARLISLE

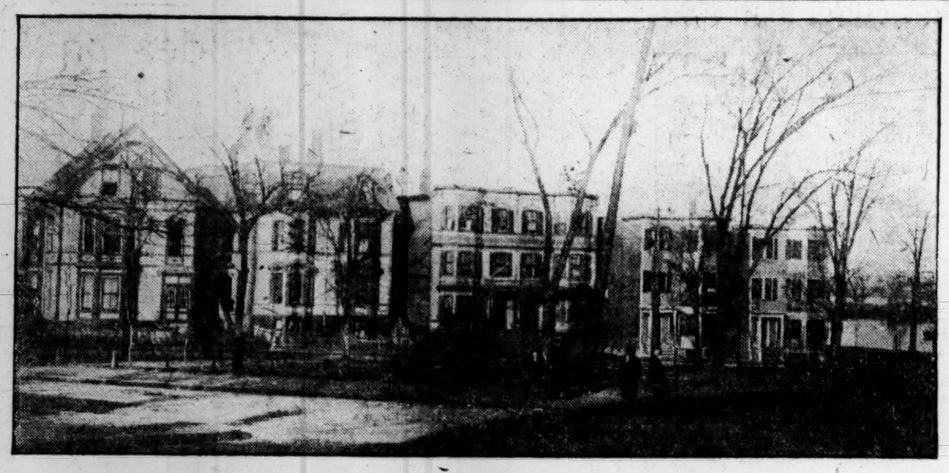

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Brown is ready for Carlisle's football team, which comes here Thanksgiving day for the final game of the season. A brisk, short scrimmage today was the last that will be indulged in until Thursday's game. Brown is in championship form and a big score by both teams is expected.

CORNELL OFF FOR ATLANTIC CITY

ITHACA, N. Y.—The Cornell varsity football squad is on its way today to Atlantic City, where the men will put the finishing touches on the plays which they will use against Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving day.

PUBLIC SQUARES OF BOSTON

Prescott square in East Boston, formed by the junction of Eagle, Trenton and Prescott streets, was laid out in 1873

A considerable part of the easterly portion of East Boston, originally considered worthless, because largely in the form of flats, is owned or controlled by the East Boston Company. Much of this property now has been sold for warehouse and pier purposes, and some has been deeded to the city in the form of streets. Prescott square, at the junction of Eagle, Trenton and Prescott streets, lies near this property, and Prescott street is one of the deeded streets, being taken over by the city in 1856, and laid out in 1873.

STICKNEY SILVER CUP AT CORN SHOW GOES TO FRAMINGHAM MAN

More Prizes Are Awarded at Annual Exhibition of New England Growers in Horticultural Hall

DISTRIBUTION WIDE

More prizes were awarded Saturday at the annual exhibition of the New England corn growers, held in Horticultural hall, Huntington avenue. The banner prize of the show, the silver cup donated to the exposition by George E. Stickney of Newburyport, Mass., for the best 36 ears of traced Stickney improved yellow flint corn grown in 1912, has been awarded to N. T. Bowditch, Framingham, Mass. This trophy, which stands 24 inches high, is valued at about $200, and is given to the winner in exchange for the trace of corn which won the prize.

Other prizes which have been awarded are: Corn growers contest, first prize won by D. A. Watson, Durham, N. H.; second prize, Fred Bournett, Framingham, Mass.

AT RAILROAD TERMINALS

Conrad's orchestra, occupying special New Haven railway equipment, is scheduled to arrive at South station from New York city at 8:30 tonight.

The Boston & Albany last night brought refrigerator cars loaded with turkeys from stations on the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg railroad to the South station freight yards, consigned to the American Express Company.

The private car Westmoreland, occupied by Henry C. Frick and party, passed through Boston by special train early this morning en route from Pride's Crossing, Mass., to Southampton, L. I., via the New Haven.

Beginning today, the Pullman Company will operate on the 10:30 a. m. express to Cleveland, the sleeper that has been leaving Boston for St. Louis on the Boston & Albany railroad's Chicago express from South station at 10 o'clock a. m.

The signal and track department's terminal division of the Boston & Maine road are making extensive improvements on slips and pneumatic switches at the North station passenger yard while bridge work is being done.

The passenger department of the Boston & Albany will provide special service every Monday on the Riverside express for the accommodation of Lasell students of Auburndale.

The operating department of the Boston & Maine is assembling Pullman sleeping and parlor cars and vestibule coaches at Northampton, Mass., to take care of Smith College holiday business Tuesday and Wednesday.

The motive power department of the Boston & Albany received 10 Pacific type grasshopper engines from the Allston shops last week. They have been renumbered in the 500 class and lettered Boston & Albany.

GERMAN CLUB FETE TONIGHT AT WELLESLEY

WELLLESLEY, Mass.—Music and addresses will be given at an open meeting of the Deutscher Verein of Wellesley College, in the Tau Zeta Epsilon Society house, this evening. Miss Margaret Prall of Saginaw, Mich., will give selections from Beethoven. Miss Elsie Lerch of Davenport, Ia., will assist Fraulein Margaret Muller, head of the German department in the performance of parts of "Parzival." Miss Muller and Miss Lerch will give talks on Wagner and Beethoven.

The selection of nine upper class girls to serve under the Student Government Association as "Village Seniors," directing affairs of the freshmen girls, is announced as follows: Misses Marie Hill of Buffalo, vice president of the senior class; Bernice Van Slyke of Lawton, Mich; Esther Balderstone of Ridgeway, Penn; Alice Ross of Plainfield, N. J.; Helen Warren of Brattleboro, Vt.; Clara Hart of St. Louis; Beulah Hubbard of Duluth, Minn; Elizabeth Haynes of Brooklyn and Geraldine Howarth of Fitchburg.

Several fraternity houses on the campus here were opened to young men guests Sunday evening, as further experiment in a new plan of "organized entertainment" for Sunday evening visitors to Wellesley.

RATIONAL GOLF

By STEVEN ARMSTRONG

Few individual shots in golf have received more attention than that which is termed "the push shot," and of late a mild controversy has been carried on in one of the English magazines as to the correct method of playing it. Mr. P. A. Vaile has written a letter to Golf Illustrated on the subject in which he defends his criticism of Vardon's description of how to accomplish the shot. Mr. Vaile says:

Vardon tells us, speaking of the push shot: "What you have to do is to bring the face of the club down to the ball at the center of its mass and then, by that simultaneous stiffening of the elbows, tightening of the wrists and pushing forward of the body, make the face of the implement run almost half way round the ball," and at another place he tells us that "in a way, then, we want to come down half on top of the ball."

Now, Vardon has won five open championships, and, although I know that he is utterly wrong in his description of this shot, it would to a certain extent seem like presumption on my part if I had not something to put against his five open championships, so I proceed on the mathematical principle that plus and minus cancel out, and produce another man with five open championships to his credit to say that Vardon is quite wrong. In Advanced Golf James Braid says: "While it is, of course, in the highest degree necessary that the ball should be taken in exactly the right place on the club, and in the right manner, this will have to be done by the proper regulation of all the other parts of the swing, and any effort to direct the club on to it in a particular manner just as the ball is being reached cannot be attended by success."

Now, here we see that we have Vardon absolutely contradicted by James Braid, but even this would only leave us at zero. However, when we consider that in "How to Play Golf" Vardon himself quotes James Braid as the master among professional golfers of what he himself describes as the master stroke (i e., the push) it will be seen that the scales are going against Vardon, and, when I throw in my avoirdupois, not to mention the higher attributes thereof which cannot be weighed by simple balance, and bring to support me the simplest principles of mechanics, I think it is evident that Vardon's explanation will not for a moment be believed by any intelligent golfer."

There does seem to be something in what Mr. Vaile says, not that I have any intention of criticizing Vardon's method. Vardon might say that he could turn his back to the hole and play the shot that way and as long as he got the desired result he is quite welcome to his method. When masters of the game differ it does not say that either is wrong. Vardon does make an attempt to tell how to play the shot, but I agree with Mr. Vaile in questioning the attempt; not because the description of the shot is wrong, but because it tells you what is to be done, but not how to do it. Perhaps to those who already have added this shot to their repertory the description may be clear enough, but I doubt if many of the uninitiated would know much more about how to accomplish the shot after reading either Vardon's or Braid's advice as quoted in this letter. Mr. Vaile then goes on to say:

"The push shot is merely an ordinary drive or cleek or iron shot, with the exception that the ball is struck by the club before the club has reached the bottom of the swing; but although the ball is struck by the club before the club has reached the bottom of the swing, it is absolutely essential, as it is in all other strokes in golf where it is intended to get the ball into the air, that the loft of the club shall get beneath the center of the ball's mass so as to exert its lifting power. It is such an extremely simple explanation and so utterly incontrovertible that I marvel to think that in books like 'The Complete Golfer,' 'Advanced Golf,' 'Taylor on Golf,' and other works of that description, there is no proper account of this shot.

"It is utterly impossible, as Braid says, to obtain any satisfactory result at golf by trying to do anything such as that hinted by Vardon in the way of twirling one's club about the ball at the moment of impact.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK SINGS

Before an audience that took up the entire regular seating capacity of Symphony hall, that filled all the standing room in the side aisles on the floor and occupied all the chairs that could be placed on the platform, Mme. Schumann-Heink, the contralto, sang to great applause Sunday afternoon, presenting songs from her German and English repertory as follows: Die Ehre Gottes, Vom Tode, Bitten, Ich liebe dich, Neue Liebe, neues Leben, L. v. Beethoven; In der Fremde, Mondnacht, Fruhlingsnacht, Schumann; Liebesbotschaft, Erl-Konig, Franz Schubert; Im Herbst, Gute Nacht, Robert Franz; Traum durch die Dammerung, Befreit, Richard Strauss; Waldeinsamkeit, Max Reger; Spinnerliedchen, H. Reimann collection, seventeenth century; Down in the Forest, Landon Ronald; Cry of Rachel, Mary T. Salter; When the Roses Bloom, Louise Reichardt, seventeenth century.

Mme. Schumann-Heink's singing was different from that of other artists of her rank who have given concerts of their own, because of its extraordinary power to stir the audience in ways that had nothing to do with mere admiration. In her work there was little of that formal quality which commonly clings to the type of entertainment known as song recital. Doubtless the makeup of the audience had much to do with this. The great assemblage of listeners was there with intent to be moved deeply, and the singer could not do otherwise than respond to its desires. There was unusual unity of feeling, as though everybody in the house had an understanding with all the others. Music with that audience was not voice; it was not carrying out formulas of expression; it was an awakening of the emotions, starting up slumbering echoes in the heart. Regular subscription audiences are probably of greater service, on the whole, than any other kind in the musical development of the community, but an audience so boundlessly receptive as the one in Symphony Hall Sunday afternoon, and so unanimous in its sentiments, must have an influence on appreciation of art that will be permanent.

Mme. Schumann-Heink's stirring effects were not lavishly distributed about her program. Much of the singing was very much on the order of that of any good contralto. Beethoven, Schumann and Schubert, as far as "The Erl-King" were sung with that nobility of thought and grandeur of style peculiarly belonging to the feminine voice that produces effective tone from the middle tenor to the middle-high soprano ranges and the work was not remarkably distinguished. But in the last 20 measures of the Schubert narrative song, emotion took wings and soared high above the plain of the earlier expression. The singing here gave the listeners an exaltation that they will always remember. Such a moment as that which occurred in Mme. Schumann-Heink's reading of the last page of this song must remain historic in the listening career of every music-lover who was there.

Emotion reached a high point in both the Franz songs. It attained intensity in the songs of Strauss. There was extreme contrast in the humor of the little "Spinning Song" of the seventeenth century, and in the "Cry of Rachel," the powerful composition of Mary Salter. With all the strength the singer put into the reading of this piece there was a restraint that kept it in the realm of classic art.

Mme. Schumann-Heink could not have failed to make friends for the German composer who is supposed to appeal more strongly to intellect than to the heart, Max Reger, in the delicately humorous little song about the blackbird.

Mrs. Katherine Hoffmann lent a sympathetic hand to the concert with her piano accompaniments. She played so appealingly in "The Erl-King" that the singed made her bow in acknowledgment of the applause. Edward Collins filled the intervals in Mme. Schumann-Heink's program to the pleasure of the audience, playing a group of pieces from Chopin and another from Liszt.

OPERA OPENING TONIGHT

At the Boston opera house Saturday evening there was a dress rehearsal of "The Tales of Hoffmann," with all the regular artists in the cast. The opera will be given its first production at the opera house tonight when the fourth season opens. The principal singers will be Miss Edvina, who makes her first appearance in Boston, singing the role of Antonia; Miss Fisher, who impersonates the doll; Miss Amsden, who is the Giulietta; Mr. Clement, who is the Hoffmann, and Mr. Marcoux, who appears in the prologue and epilogue as Lindorf, fills a character in each of the three "stories." Mr. Caplet conducts.

Miss Mary Garden arrives in New York today and sings in Carnegie hall Tuesday with the violinist, Ysaye. She makes her first appearance in Boston on Dec. 2 in "Tosca." The Cavaradossi in this performance will be Charles Dalmores. Miss Garden will be the soloist at the Boston opera house Sunday concert of Dec. 8. Ysaye will be the soloist Dec. 15.

SOUSA'S BAND CONCERT

In Mechanics hall Sunday evening John Philip Sousa and his band appeared before a large house. The program included the "Tannhaeuser" overture, three character studies from Mr. Sousa's "Dwellers in the Western World," and the latest of the famous band composer's marches, "The Federal." There were many encore selections played.

Assisting Mr. Sousa were Miss Virginia Root, soprano; Miss Nicoline Zedeler, violinist, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist, all of whom were warmly applauded.

REBATE INDICTMENTS FOUND

PUEBLO, Col.—Eighteen indictments against railroads and corporations, charged with rebating, were filed by a federal grand jury here Saturday. The defendants include the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, the Colorado & Southern railroad, the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, Victor American Fuel Company, Great Western Sugar Company, Portland Cement Company and the United States Portland Cement Company.

COACH RECORD IN HORSE SHOW

NEW YORK—The final feature of the national horse show, a four-in-hand coaching party, was won by Emil Selig's outfit, which covered the 12-mile course from Arrow Head Inn in 40 minutes 40 seconds, lowering the previous record by about 10 minutes. Gilbert Taylor's horses twice lost their footing in the presence of thousands of persons who thronged the city sidewalks.

The prade of prize winners showed 200 horses, led by a mount ridden by Judge W. H. Moore of Chicago, whose entrants won 20 blue and nine red ribbons.

Judge Moore's nearest competitor was Miss H. D. Atterbury of this city, whose horses won 10 blue ribbons.

SPINSTER'S TROLLEY PILGRIMAGE

Part II. of Account of Happy Tour from Boston into Picturesque Maine Covers Capital City, Bath, Waterville, Fairfield

Herewith is given the second part of the account of a pleasure trip by trolley from Boston into the southern part of Maine. The first part was printed on Saturday, and the concluding chapter will be contained in Tuesday's issue.

ONWARD, upward, towards the upper levels of a cheerful and prosperous farming country was the writer whirled away from Lewiston on the observation platform of the Waterville car on the third morning. Beside her were several large metal cans in which were being transported diminutive fishes from a nearby hatchery for the restocking of Webber park, some miles farther up the line.

The interest of the writer when shown "the small fry" circulating about in their temporary aquarium led to fellow-travelers pointing out to her the passing features of the country. Here were potatoes grown; there a fine apple orchard, for these Maine products are of world-wide renown; yonder were the feeding places of deer, their wooded retreats; and as the car skimmed over the ever rising uplands and through the rarefied atmosphere, school children with "shining morning faces" were taken on at intervals and deposited at their respective "halls of learning." All were cordially greeted by urbane conductors, and interest was expressed in their acquirement of knowledge.

Sabbatis pond, a local beauty spot a few miles from Lewiston, is passed all too rapidly for more than an exquisite memory of the blue sheen of its waters in their setting of leaves of bronze, of amber, of gold, contrasted with those of crimson, red and scarlet, with insets of velvety dark green pine—a remembrance, perhaps, of the far east with its oriental pageantry of color, as expressed in those detached lines by Edmund Gosse in "Gilead":

"But when I feel the west wind, not the east,
From drought and chilly blue by soft gray airs released, . . .
I'll bend my hand and touch the country at my feet. . . .
That scene, though wild and far and acrid with the sea,
Pilgrim of life, is still Gilead to thee and me;
And in a tender twilight, mystic and divine,
The homely scenes we loved take hues of Palestine."

Kennebec is Met

At Gardiner the Kennebec river flashes into the landscape and the car line follows the stream as it winds towards Hallowell. From London hill, just before entering Augusta, is a superb view of that city. The domed state capital in its parking of trees on a plateau, standing out in cameo-like relief as a symbol of those laws—"that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth"—and whose practical application counts among the great world forces of today as the leavening influence towards the universal brotherhood of man.

The car runs swiftly down the slope, past the capitol, past the gray-painted mansion of James G. Blaine, past the Augusta house, the leading hotel, beckoning the passing traveler to enter its freshly painted, yellow brick walls. She is hurried on to the business center of the busy little city, where is left her suitcase and coat while she goes forth to see the sights.

A State street car takes her back to see the interior of the capitol. A saunter in the grounds, a few moments of waiting in a tiny, vine-covered waiting room for the street car to Togus, six miles across the river, where is the National home for soldiers, the standard of its kind in the United States, and a fitting place, in its setting of green and yellow, for these veterans of the civil war whose courage and heroism have made freedom possible for an oppressed and alien race.

Back to Augusta across the two steel bridges spanning the branches of the Kennebec to a substantial table d'hote lunch across the street from the car waiting room; then "all aboard" again on the Waterville car and away on the last lap of the trolley trip. We pass Ft. Halifax, a relic of the early days in the settlement of the new state when the trail of hostile Indians was the connecting link with outer civilization. Now the slender steel threads of railway lines run beside this old block house on the Kennebec river, and have brought advancing thought with them, as featured in the cotton, worsted and pulp mills, which last are the principal industry of the thriving town.

The old fort is on the left side of the track as the electric car whirls into Waterville with a prolonged metallic screech for which the above mentioned Indians would have given much when in pursuit of the invaders of their primeval forests, whose trees are supplying the material upon which newspapers are printed. Later on in the day the writer went to a pulp mill, saw the spruce logs cut into lengths for the boiling and chemical processes, and brought away a piece of the pulp fiber.

Back from Fairfield

Although Waterville is technically the terminus of the main electric line, there is a connecting local line with Fairfield, three miles up the river. On this the writer continued her trip to the pretty suburb, passing Colby University and its academic campus en route; then another short connecting line of two miles to Benton Falls, still farther up on the Kennebec, where she made her "end of the route."

Retracing her steps to Waterville she found pleasant quarters for that night at the Elmwood in a large room on the second floor, with hot and cold water, eelctric lights, appetizing meals, with string orchestra included, without extra charge, for two-fifty per diem. Going out later, she was directed to the postoffice by two French-Canadian policemen, and she exclaimed inwardly, 'O America! thou art indeed 'The Melting Pot' of Israel Zangwill and 'The Promised Land' of Mary Autin!" and with these reflections she returned to the hotel for a well-earned night's rest on the hair mattress of ultra civilization.

Here beginneth the fourth day with a late breakfast and quiet morning with her books before this intrepid traveler found herself again upon "the metals" for the continuous trip of three hours back to Lewiston, pleasant converse, as usual, with agreeable fellow passengers, the rotation of crops on this or that acreage where now contented cattle were peacefully grazing, the conservation of forests whose interested lumber officials pointed out the wholesale cutting down of trees on hillsides and the commercial gain thereof, and were temporarily silenced and perhaps awakened to a perception of larger profits in the near future when the point was made that trees, forests, wooded lands, were among the most valuable assets of any state if one wished to attract the traveler, the tourist. "For what," said the writer, "would this electric car trip be to her without the pageantry of foliage in its enamelled settings of green forested hillsides and of glistening waters?" Alas! what meant "Hecuba" to dormant thought?

At Lewiston a change to the Bath car, via Brunswick, over the now familiar scenes of the second day's run, descending gradually to "fresh woods and pactures new," over level plains during the hour between Brunswick and Bath, the New Meadows inn making the first important stop for passengers leaving for that gastronomic hostelry, their places in turn being taken by others who, like Sydney Smith, "have dined today." Of these last, one sat next the writer and kindly pointed out streets, buildings of interest as the car wound its way towards historic King tavern, once the home of William King, first Governor of Maine, 1820. The writer found herself in a quaint, spotlessly clean, old-fashioned room, with up-to-date electric lighting, however, and spent an hour in watching a golden sunset of surpassing beauty before descending to a substantial supper of stewed oysters, cold roast beef, baked potatoes, apples, cake—well cooked, well served.

Fifth Day Begins

The fifth day, after breakfasting as satisfactorily as she had supped the evening before, the traveler was ready for the day's sightseeing. A walk first through the business streets, then Washington street in the residential section, into a delightful little park spread with a carpet of fallen yellow leaves, and overlooking the shining waters of the Kennebec, and towards which the writer now descended for embarkation on a little ferryboat across "the long reach" to Woolwich, three quarters of a mile on the other side, and while enjoying the quiet beauty of the scene about her, there steamed from her slip down the river a huge transport ferryboat with a train of freight cars of the Maine Central upon her broad decks, and on her paddle wheels, "writ large," the name of "Ferdinando Gorges," the once proud owner of these lands, a grant from the King, James I. of England, to whose ambition and enterprise the state of Maine largely owes its settlement, but of him who ruled his domain with a powerful hand from across the sea, this memorial alone remains.

Better so, Sir Ferdinando Gorges, ran the musings of the writer as she followed meekly in the wake of his namesake, better this prosaic transport of the twentieth century bearing your name of ancient Norman lineage than the mighty fleets of your command in English waters; and what would you have said, Sir Ferdinando, when the "purser," who with the man at the wheel comprised the crew manning the little ferryboat, mysteriously informed the writer that he could not take her on the return trip because a load of hay was going over? She was advised to "take a little walk" to an indicated wooded point pending his rapid transit over and return for her. Later, when asked for reasonable explanation of his singular proceedings, she was gravely informed that, "hay being combustible," acording to one of the antiquated statutory laws of Maine, no passengers were allowed to cross when it was on board. She pointed to a large touring car at her side belching forth fumes of gasoline, and demanded under what rating that would come. "The ancient mariner . . . here beat his breast," and with an apologetic snort, "seeks the seclusion which the cabin grants."

BRITISH AMBASSADOR FOR WASHINGTON HAS HAD VARIED SERVICE

(Copyright by Elliott & Frye & Ltd.)
SIR CECIL SPRING RICE
Who is successor to Mr. Bryce in the British embassy at Washington

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The resignation of the embassy in Washington by Mr. Bryce had been in contemplation for some time, so that the disclousre of his successor's name came simultaneously with it. The appointment of the British minister at Stockholm to take his place is regarded as a good selection.

Sir Cecil Arthur Spring Rice, who has been minister in Sweden since 1908, is a man who has gained considerable diplomatic experience in the capitals of Europe. As a young man, he served in the foreign office, under Lord Granville and the Earl of Rosebery, both of them foreign secretaries in the era of Mr. Gladstone. His father, the Hon. C. Spring Rice, was married to a daughter of the Rt. Hon. Sir Frank Lascelles, and the present ambassador, who was their second son, was educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. At Oxford he was an exhibitioner and took a first class in moderations and in final classics.

He began his public life in the war office, but subsequently entered the foreign office. It was here he acted as assistant private secretary to Lord Granville, and afterwards as precis writer to the Earl of Rosebery. His first diplomatic appointment was as secretary to the embassy at Brussels, and from this he went to Washington, and from there, in turn, to Tokio, Berlin, and Constantinople.

In 1900 he was appointed charge d'affaires at Teheran, and a year later British commissioner of public debt in Cairo. In 1903 he became first secretary to the embassy at St. Petersburg, and three years later went back again to Persia as minister and consul-general. Whilst at Constantinople, he received the Turkish decoration of the Medjidie. In 1906, whilst serving in Persia, he was created a knight commander of the order of St. Michael and St. George.

CEMENT PLANT TO COST $3,500,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Work on the completion of the great plant of the Old Mission Portland Cement Company at San Juan, San Benito county, has begun. A crew of 40 men is now engaged on the excavation for the lime kilns, which the engineers have located directly south of the cement plant. The foundations of the latter are now in place, and only awaiting the installation of the machinery, which is on the ground.

Together with railroad extensions, the value of lime, lime rock, clay and oil deposits, and the cost of installation of machinery and building construction, the plant will represent, on completion, an outlay of $3,500,000.

Engineers estimate that the materials on the ground, in sight, are sufficient for the manufacture of 600,000,000 barrels of cement, this taking into consideration only the limestone above the first bench plane now being stripped for the operation of steam shovels.

The lime kilns will be in operation in about 90 days, but it is estimated it will be six months before the first unit of the 4000-barrel cement plant will be fired.

SUCCESSOR TO BE REPUBLICAN

WASHINGTON—As the present Governor of Maryland, Lee Goldsborough, is a Republican, the successor to Senator Rayner probably will be of that political faith until the Legislature meets in January, 1914. William P. Jackson is reported to be Governor Goldsborough's choice to fill the vacancy. He probably will be appointed within the week, so as to take his seat at the opening of the next session of the Senate.

RACE DIFFERENCES TO BE TOPIC

A talk on race differences will be given at the five hundred and forty-fifth corporate meeting of the Boston Scientific Society on Tuesday evening by Joseph F. Gould, a Harvard man. At the first December meeting John Ritchie, Jr., will speak.

RAILROAD ENGINEERS GAIN SOME DEMANDS IN FINAL DECISION

Board of Arbitration Advises That Some Wage Advances Be Given and That Rule of Work Be Modified

TO PREVENT STRIKES

Decision made by the board of arbitration which since July last has been considering the demands of the locomotive engineers of 52 eastern railroads for higher wages and different conditions grants higher wages to some of the engineers, finding that on certain roads the compensation was too small. The award recommends that federal and state wage commissions be established whose powers shall be similar to those of public utilities boards to abolish possibility of strikes.

Increases in wages granted by the commission were: For passenger service a minimum of $4.25 for 100 miles or less with overtime of 50 cents an hour, for average speed of 20 miles an hour; $4.25 a day of 100 miles or less for freight service, with overtime pro rata after 10 hours; for local freight service 25 cents more than through, and for switching service a minimum of $4.10 a day of 10 hours or less.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the 52 general chairmen of the roads affected by the decision of the arbitration commission, made public at Washington, will go over a synopsis of the commission's report, so that it will be thoroughly understood on all sides. The first session of the conference was held today behind closed doors at the Brozel Hotel.

Chief Stone denied that he had gone into conference with delegates of the railways concerned in the award behind closed doors last night. Regarding the commission's award, he said:

"I will say that I, personally, am satisfied and that the directions will be put into effect at once. The decision is far-reaching and will affect thousands of engineers. It dates back to May 1, and the increase in pay will, of course, date from the same time, thus assuring an increase of seven months back pay.

"Under the conditions," said Mr. Stone, "that we consented to arbitration of the matter which, of course, affects the whole country, there is nothing for us to do but to accept the findings of the body."

WASHINGTON—Decision by the board of arbitration which for months has been considering the demand made by 30,000 locomotive engineers of 52 eastern railroads was announced here on Sunday. The award grants certain increased compensation and improved and uniform rules of service requested by the engineers, but holds that a general increase of wages on all roads is not warranted. The board has introduced the principle of a minimum wage in the entire district. The award dates back to May 1, and stands one year.

The board advises the creation of federal and state wage commissions which shall exercise functions regarding labor engaged upon public utilities analogous to those exercised with regard to capital by the public service commissions already in existence.

The representative of the engineers on the board, P. H. Morrissey, dissented from this recommendation, which, he said, virtually meant compulsory arbitration.

The board states as its belief that the engineers should be granted a fair compensation. It further states it to be probable that the great majority of the railroads in the district considered are able to pay a fair compensation. If they are not able to pay such compensation with existing rates, the report says, there is just cause for them to open again the question of an increase of rates with the interstate commerce commission.

The board points out that a railroad strike for the great centers of the United States can no longer be considered as a matter which primarily affects the railroad operators and employees. Indeed, the interests of the public so far exceed those of the parties to the controversy, says the report, as to render them paramount.

In many respects the railroads are subject to the interstate commerce commission and various state commissions. The same is not true of the employees of the railroads, the board says. This disparity of status causes recommendation for the creation of federal and state wage commissions which shall exercise functions regarding labor engaged in work upon public utilities analogous to those exercised with regard to capital by the public service commissions already in existence.

The report is signed without reserve by Charles R. Van Hise of Madison, Wis., chairman; Oscar S. Straus of New York, Albert Shaw of New York, Frederick N. Judson of St. Louis and Otto M. Edilitz of New York, who were appointed by the chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, the United States commissioner of labor and the presiding judge of the United States commerce court and by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, representing the railroads.

P. H. Morrissey, formerly grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, representing the engineers, wrote a dissenting opinion, in which he expressed the belief that the award would have the effect of retarding the progress of arbitration in the settlement of industrial disputes on the railroads.

Mr. Morrissey contends that the award does not settle the important principles raised by the engineers, and claims that it is based upon statistics that are not only reliable for the purposes for which the board used them, but that the board also erred in the application of these wage statistics.

Mr. Morrissey dissents from the majority of the board in the recommendation that wage commissions be established, with power of compulsory arbitration, although he recommends that there are some important activities to which wage commissions might profitably give their attention.

"There has been," he says, "a gain in essentials and a step forward has been taken in the standardization in engineers' rates and of conditions for the eastern district."

A striking declaration is made in his recommendation that hereafter arbitration boards be so constituted that none of the parties composing them—not even representives of the public—shall have a majority of the members; that the majority shall be constituted by representatives of at least two of the parties agreeing.

New Haven, B. & A. and New York Central Engineers Get Increase

John A. Towell, vice-chairman of the general board of adjustment of the New Haven system Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in commenting on the decision of the arbitration commission today said he considered that the New Haven men had "fared fairly well." He maintained that the Boston & Albany had gained 10 cents a day, the New York Central five cents a day, and the New York, New Haven & Hartford road 15 cents a day. In view of the fact that the Norfolk & Western and the Pennsylvania roads are being paid a higher rate than that fixed by the commission he was of the opinion that dissatisfaction would be expressed there.

Mr. Towell said it had cost the commission about $100,000 to bring the question to a decision. He said that the general board of adjustment with Fred S. Evans as chairman, is to meet the New Haven management in about 10 days time to talk over the situation but no action will be taken by the board. The matter will be reported back to the various unions.

Second Lieuts. P. C. Marmion, L. B. Stephenson and C. . Metcalf, to marine officers' school, Norfolk.

Movements of Naval Vessels

The Whipple, the Preble, the Paul Jones, the Stewart, the California, the Colorado and the Maryland are at San Diego.

The Caesar is at Puerto Plata.

The Eagle has left Guantanamo for Aux Cayes, Hayti.

The Culgoa has left Puerto Plata for Tompkinsville.

The Sterling is at Boston.

The Tingey and the Craven are at Norfolk.

The Iroquois is at San Diego.

The Tennessee and the Montana are at Gibraltar.

The Minnesota, the Kansas, the South Carolina and the Michigan are at Pensacola.

Navy Notes

The Arethusa, which left Port Arthur, Texas, on Nov. 14 for Hampton Roads, has been directed by radio to proceed to Newport.

Vessels of the Atlantic fleet held at navy yards for overhauling when the fleet goes to Guantanamo, Jan. 5, will conduct gunnery exercises off the capes of the Chesapeake. Those to be held at yards are the Deleware, the Kansas, the New Hampshire and the Rhode Island. The South Dakota, being overhauled at Mare Island, will not participate in gunnery exercises with the California, the Colorado and the Maryland, off San Diego, Cal., early in December, but will conduct gunnery exercises later in the winter.

Tests of the battery of the Arkansas will be conducted early in December in Chesapeake bay under observation of the board of inspection and survey for ships.

Similar tests will be held with the Wyoming later. Lieut. Commander W. D. Leahy, until lately ordnance officer of the Pacific fleet, will be ordered to duty in the office of the director of target practise and engineering competitions, to take the place of Lieut. Commander E. C. Kalbfus.

The next emanination of candidates for the marine corps will take place on Jan. 7. Examinations will be held at Washington and wherever there are a number of candidates for a commission. There will then be about 19 vacancies in the corps.

The bids of the Washington navy yard, the naval gun factory, on four and five-inch guns for secondary batteries on the new battleships of the navy, which were opened Saturday, show that government workmanship will result in a great saving to the government on each gun. The Washington navy yard estimated a cost of $7202 per gun on the five-inch type, and $6370 on the four-inch. Other bidders were Bethlehem Steel Company, five-inch $9080; Midvale Steel Company, five-inch $10,950, four-inch $9280, and Watervliet $6709.

The 1913 construction program will call for about 32 five-inch and 50 of the four-inch bore. They will be used on the battleship Pennsylvania and other war vessels to be built, including six destroyers, two oil fuel ships, one tender for destroyers and one submarine tender.

TO FORM BRANCH OF LAND LEAGUE

The committee of the Forward-to-the-Land League will meet at Hotel Bellevue Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to consider articles of incorporation. The members of the committee are: James P. Munro, Louis J. Johnson, Mrs. Louis J. Johnson, J. H. Vanhorsen, E. T. Hartman, J. W. Beatson, Fiske Warren, Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. S. E. Stevens, Charles Zueblin and John G. Brooks.

Mrs. Haviland H. Lund of California who represents the national Forward-to-the-Land League, will be present to further direct the formation of the Boston league, first local league in the country.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

FASHIONS SEEN IN NEW YORK

Outfits that harmonize with the wearer and occasion

SOME one who knows has said that any woman can be well dressed for all occasions if she possesses "a smart street suit, a good evening dress and a pretty tea gown." Add to this a long coat of the order that covers the dress and will do for day or evening wear, and most women could get along nicely with this outfit, provided all the pieces harmonized and the smaller belongings, hats, footwear, gloves and blouses corresponded.

It's the effect made as a whole that counts, for harmony makes for distinction in dress. Every one knows how surprisingly improved in appearance many people are when they put on black, though the sable dress is itself trying to any but a blooming complexion. People who are not sure of their dress instinct would do well to stick to a one-color scheme, therefore, choosing the quiet tone that is most becoming and varying this with little accessories, in some pretty and fashionable contrasting color which relieves the monotony. Just now pretty contrasting linings are faddish, especially for the long coats of cloth or fur that are a necessity if one is to be well turned out for any occasion—in fact, with the right sort of coat the suit may be dispensed with, and a tailored style of street dress substituted at less cost, since the latter can be easily made by a home dressmaker.

Velveteen dresses after simple models, or those of nice corduroy, last well and go almost anywhere, and dresses of satin or serge can be made after the right styles, equally dressy. French designers show great preference for navy blue serge with black satin sashes, collars and buttons and add just a little striking embroidery to the four-inch sash end, giving distinction to the whole garment. Such embroideries can be had at most shops, or are surely to be found where oriental goods are carried.

While the small hat is the leading favorite, large shapes are not by any means out. In fact, if a woman cannot find the right hat this year it must be because she is impossible to suit. Puffy styles in velvet are almost sure to be becoming, especially in black, and a bit of color can be added in the trimming to harmonize hat and dress or to increase becomingness. Puffed tam crowns with plainly covered narrow brims are exceedingly popular and the favorite garniture is a bit of paradise feather in its natural yellow tone, or dyed black. A pretty girlish hat of black velvet seen the other day, says a New York fashion writer, had the crown surrounded by a narrow band of white ostrich that was apparently tied together at the side by a bow of inch-wide white picot-edged ribbon.

A touch of fur is both pretty and exceedingly modish, and when a great variety of pelts are used almost anyone can possess either a pretty fur set, or the cozy long coat that every woman would like to own. Skins are now dressed to soft suppleness and linings are so pretty that there is nothing clumsy about such a garment.

Both slippers and boots emphasize the combination idea. Colored uppers with matching buttons and black foxings are the rule for dress boots. Evening shoes and slippers of black satin are the choice of the conservative woman, though slippers to match the dress are especially modish.

DISHES IN JAPANESE FASHION

Rice and soy are indispensable

RECIPES for dishes prepared in Japanese style are given in the San Francisco Call as follows:

Azuki meshi (red rice)—One large cup of rice, one small cup of small red beans, two large cups of water, half a teaspoon of salt. Place beans in saucepan with two cups of water and salt, bring to a boil, then add the rice, which has been thoroughly washed; cook until soft, stirring occasionally. The result will be a tasty and pretty dish of rice, pinkish in color. Rice cooked in this way is eaten by the natives on most of their festal days. The following dishes here appended may be eaten as an adjunct to this rice.

Ni-Sakana (fish cooked in soy)—(The indispensable soy can be found at any of the large groceries). One small cup of soy, one fourth small cup of water, one heaping teaspoon of sugar, one small turbot, sole or any fish preferred. Put soy water and sugar in a saucepan and bring to a boil; add the fish (prepared as for boiling in the usual way) and cook until done. The fish may be served either hot or cold in the sauce in which it has been cooked.

Ushi Knabe (beef and onion stew)—Half a pound of lean and fat beef, two large onions, one small cup of soy, one and one half teaspoons of sugar. Cut beef into pieces about one inch square and put into a frying pan, toss over a hot fire until some of the fat is drawn out, then add the onions, which have been sliced thin; the soy, sugar, and, if liked, a little cayenne pepper, cook until the meat is well done and the onions soft, stirring to prevent burning. To be eaten hot.

Ya-sai Mono (stewed vegetables)—This dish may be made from sweet potatoes, carrots, salsify or Irish potatoes. For squash or pumpkins take half of one, cut into slices about two inches thick (do not pare them), steam, and when soft plunge into a small cup of boiling soy slightly diluted with water, and set to simmer in the sauce for 10 minutes. Sweet potatoes should be boiled first and then treated in the same way. In a like manner carrots, salsify, etc., may be cooked, adding to the sauce above mentioned one heaping teaspoon of sugar.

Shiru (fish soup)—Into a saucepan pour two large cups of water, bring to a boil, put in one fair sized fish turbot or whatever is desired cut in half; add one head of lettuce, about two dozen string beans very thinly sliced lengthways and soy to taste; boil until fish is well done. Serve in bowls with covers for individual service, putting a piece of fish, leaves of lettuce and a few of the beans in each bowl and pouring the soup over them.

Hachi Sakana (broiled fish)—Take a salmon or any fair sized fish and, splitting it in half, broil the pieces over a fire of red hot charcoal. Sprinkle on the fish from time to time a little salt, also a couple or more dashes of soy. For a piquant sauce for same grate a half dozen large radishes and add to the pulp thus obtained a tablespoon of soy.

Chawan Mushi (baked custard soup)—Into one teaspoon of chicken soup or weak consomme stir one well beaten egg yolk and white beaten together; place in a small bowl for individual service one small bunch of spinach leaves, a few pieces of canned fish, some button mushrooms and a few small shrimps (already boiled). Over this pour the prepared consomme and place the bowl well covered into a kettle or pan of boiling water, where it may steam for 20 minutes. Serve at once very hot.

OUR STORE ETHICS—And Other Things—No. 28

To do a great business—and do it RIGHT—that's our target. We are hitting it.

It is not only RIGHT—but necessary for us to indulge in Clearance Sales at the end of each month.

This movement for November is now under way. Surplus quantities and slim stocks will be offered at attractive prices.

Here's the argument: Too much merchandise of certain kinds; too little of others. The law of retailing is the same as the law of any other material activity. Extremes have the same effect. Too many goods, or too few—the price-effect is identical.

CARING FOR KEROSENE LAMPS

Sandpaper recommended as an aid

ONE of the household duties I have long assumed is the care of the lamps, writes a correspondent of the Michigan Farmer. As this has covered a period of quite a few years, I have learned several things that have been helpful. One of these is the use of sandpaper. We try to get good oil, but the burners will get a coating of brown, varnish-like substance on the edges next the wick which does not rub off readily by merely using a cloth. Every morning or so this scale must be removed or the lamps get to smelling badly. I turn down the wicks, tear off a small piece of sandpaper about an inch square, and rub off all the scaly deposit, making the brass as bright as new. That done, the lamp cloth is spread over the burner, the wick turned up, and all the burned part pinched off, then turned down nearly level with the burner and rubbed across several times with the lamp cloth. Trimmed in this way, it is rarely necessary to use the scissors on the wick to produce a nice blaze.

One of the lamps has a perforated cylinder which must be removed before sandpaper is used. As it is so much more difficult to fill this lamp under the faucet without overflowing it, I draw a large bottle of oil, set all the lamps on a table near at hand and fill them at one time, using a small 5-cent tunnel. By getting all the lamps together, and doing each part of the work on all as I go along, they can all be wiped off together, and the work is soon over.

The chimneys are washed along with the breakfast dishes. If an excess of soot has collected on the glass, it can readily be removed before putting into the dish pan by holding the chimney over the sink and pouring cold water through it.

I have tried dry cleaning with paper, but never made good success of it and think it takes longer. I have also tried various recommendations made in the magazines for cleaning the burners by boiling them in one solution or another, but did very little good. When a burner gets too bad to be used longer, it is better to throw it away and get a new one, as the extra expense is not to be compared with the unpleasantness of boiling up an old burner. Old cotton pieces are best for lamp cloths and should be burned after using a week or two.

Record of saving in one household

TWO years ago, with the aid of an interested maid, I made a careful experiment of what could be done with left-over fats, and how much could be saved by their use, writes a contributor to the Ladies' Home Journal. At the end of year I had this record:

In a family of six, with plenty of company the year round, we had bought just three pounds of lard, and no increase in butter over any previous year with the same-sized family. We had pies, cakes and all the good things any family has, although we broil all meats possible and fry fewer of other things, I think, than the average family.

We went about it in this way: Each fat, like bacon, beef, chicken, ham, lamb or pork was kept in a crock by itself in a cold place well covered. Two members of the family had been ordered to eat bacon every morning and chicken twice a week, so that bacan fat became our mainstay and dependence. About three-quarters of a pound of bacon was cooked every morning, each panful being fried crisp and the fat removed from the fire before it could brown or scorch. The fat from the chicken was removed and carefully rendered. Pork and ham was used sparingly; we saved this fat usually for baking beans. Lamb and beef fats were kept for the deep fat pot, but used in other ways when needed.

All fats were strained through a small cheese-cloth laid in a sieve. The cloths were burned every day and a new crock was started every two or three weeks, according to the weather.

It would be impossible to tell you every way in which we used each fat. But generally the chicken fat was used in place of butter or olive oil, and the other fats in place of lard.

All our pies were made of ice-cold bacon fat. The devil's food and molasses cakes were also made of this, and it was used in bread and in tea biscuits. We never allowed any to become rancid, and we used the strongest fats, such as lamb and bacon, where spices and flavoring would overcome any possible taste.

If you will forget your time-honored idea of lard and try to clarify and use up your fats, keeping them separate, you will save a great deal in a year.

This year I had a regular cook. We have used bacon for breakfast nearly every day, had the same amount of chicken, bought two pounds of butter more per week with the same-sized family, and buy an average of two pounds of lard each week.

To sweeten rancid butter, melt the butter, skim it, then place a piece of light-brown toast in it, and in a few minutes the toast will have absorbed the unpleasant taste and sm

SKILL IN MENDING MATTING

Success lies in using raffia instead of thread

MATTING is such an unhandy thing to work with?" exclaimed a young housekeeper who was trying to mend a hole that had been worn through the matting on the bedroom floor.

"It's impossible to sew it, and if I tack a patch over this hole, it will look untidy, and will be kicked up at the edges in a few days, anyway."

That is partly true; matting is difficult to work with and tacked-on patches are unsightly; but it can be sewed, if you go about the sewing properly and use raffia instead of thread, says the Philadelphia North American.

Raffia can be bought by the hank in colors that correspond with the colors in the matting, or in "natural" color, which matches the groundwork in nearly all the mattings. It costs but a few cents and will wear as long as the matting itself.

When a worn place or hole appears in the matting, it can be darned with threads or strands of raffia. Use a long darning needle having an elongated eye, and work the strands of raffia in and out of the matting, the same as you would if you were darning a hole or torn place in any other material.

When patching, cut a piece of matting several inches larger than the hole itself, taking care to match the figure in the patch with that in the matting on the floor; then lay the patch under the hole and darn the worn edges of the matting down to it, weaving the raffia in and out, over and under, using colors where colors in the figure in the matting demand, and natural-colored raffia on the groundwork.

If neatly done, this is a successful way of mending matting. After the work is finished, the worn place will not be at all noticeable.

Raffia is the best thing to use when sewing strips or breadths of matting together. Lay the two breadths together, as you would when sewing carpet, and sew over and over with a firm but not too tight stitch. When the breadths are opened out flat, the stitches will look like a portion of the woven material.

SPRIGGED CREPE AND CHIFFON

Both make up well for girl's wear

SPRIGGED crepes and chiffons make up quaintly and charmingly for the girl's wear if they are properly handled, but they are easily spoiled by over-elaboration. The most effective models in this class have practically no trimming except some chic girdle arrangement, knots of ribbon and some pretty softening lace or tulle about the neck and sleeves. Such materials lend themselves particularly well to panier effects, and one uncommonly dainty little house frock was of crepe over whose creamy ground were scattered prim little clusters of flowers in old blue, old rose and soft yellow.

The skirt and panier draperies and the underskirt was trimmed in fluted bands of old blue velvet ribbon. A similar band defined the top of the high girdle, and above that the softly fulled bodice and the short sleeves were of cream tulle with corded shirrings around the neck and heading the sleeve frills, and with little knots of blue velvet on the sleeves.

Outside the province of the evening frock there is great variety in things for girls wear, says a New York Sun writer. The girdled coats of Russian or military style are especially youthful and there are numerous models of this type, which girls of from 17 to 22 or 23 should hail with joy. The coats, like so many of the season's smartest models, fasten high across the chest, often coming quite up to the throat, and being finished by a close fur collar.

The coat varies in length, but is loosely belted or girdled, and the skirt may be plain with just a few plaits let in somewhere, but pressed so flatly that they do not interfere with the narrow lines or may be slightly draped. A sort of military frogging is often used down the coat front, and narrow bands of fur border the best looking models.

One suit was in a handsome thick woolly stuff which looked like a silk ratine. It was of a deep gold tone—one of the yellows that are so beautiful this season, and it was trimmed in brown chiffon and dark brown fur.

Velvet, plain and corded a uncut, but not brocaded, will be much worn by the younger folk for dressy afternoon frocks and suits, and altogether delightful things of this kind are shown by the dressmakers and importers. The browns are especially liked for these costumes, and there are some wonderful blues and reds in the velvets that are still more wonderful when fur trimmed or worn with furs. Black velvet, too, when appropriately made, is very attractive for youthful wearers, and it seems likely that we shall see many girls wearing black or very dark blue velvet with white blouses and white fox furs.

Among the afternoon frocks it is hard to pick a choice, for there are innumerable pretty examples in velvet, in charmeuse, in crepe, in chiffon, in corded silk, in silk ratine and in lightweight woolens. The best of the models are simple in design but lovely in color and material, and with some dainty, original touch about the collar or sleeve or girdle that stamps the frock as of this season.

SEWING TABLE SUPPLIED WITH FITTINGS A VERY USEFUL GIFT

A SMALL colonial sewing table is of solid mahogany in the satin finish and has taper legs. There are two drop leaves and two drawers, one divided for spools, etc., with a sliding tray which will be found convenient. The other drawer is without compartments. The table is $15.50. For an additional small sum this table could be fitted up very completely with scissors, needles, bodkins, silks, cottons, fastenings of all sorts, etc. This would make an extremely useful gift, says Harpers Bazar. One thoughful woman made it a point, whenever possible, to give such a table to the brides of her acquaintance. "When they aren't industrious with their needles," she says, "it is an incentive to make them so; when they are it's an encouragement." In any event these fitted sewing tables are a great convenience and this particular model will be found a good one.

TRIED RECIPES

QUAIL SOUP

CLEAN quail and cut off breasts. Pound the remainder of the quail. Boil in brown boullion for a long time. Brown, butter and flour. Stir in bouillon until smooth, strain, season with salt, cayenne and white pepper. Chop breasts and make dumplings and serve in soup.

SALMI OF GAME

Cut meat from cold cooked game (any kind). Break the bones and cover with four cups of cold water and simmer. Brown two tablespoons of minced onion in four tablespoons of butter, add one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce and the liquor in which bones were cooked. Season with salt and pepper, add two cups of the cold game cut into pieces and simmer 15 minutes. Serve on slices of fried bread surmounted with a border of mashed potatoes. Garnish with parsley.

STEWED QUAIL

Make a stuffing of the livers and hearts chopped fine with a little butter, chopped pork, the yolk of an egg, salt, cayenne and a little lemon. Stuff six quail with this, put them in a stewpan, cover with soup stock and stew gently half an hour; take out the birds and add salt, cayenne, one tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoon of lemon juice, and tablespoons of butter, blended with two of browned flour; put back the birds for 10 minutes; toast some slices of bread, stand a bird on each and pour sauce over all.

WILD DUCKS FRIED

Prepare as many ducks as you wish for a meal and cut them up as you would for a stew. Cover with cold water and let come to a boil, then pour off the water, adding a fresh supply. Boil until tender, salt and pepper to taste, then, pouring off the water, fry brown in butter or drippings. The parboiling takes out the wild taste ducks usually have. This recipe may also be used for wild dove, quail, etc.

RABBIT IN AMBUSH

Select a plump rabbit and cut into about eight good-sized pieces. Let it stand about half an hour in salt water before cooking. Slice two good-sized onions and fry slowly in butter or olive oil, adding salt and a pinch of red pepper. Then put the rabbit into this and pour hot water on to cover, then cook for an hour. A few minutes before it is done add a small can of tomatos which have been seasoned with sage and thyme. When the rabbit has been cooked tender place on a platter, thicken with gravy and pour over rabbit. Then add the ambush, which is made by cooking about half a cup of rice, dash of salt and pepper and a dozen mushrooms for about two hours. Place this around the rabbit on the extreme outside of the platter. Not only is it a dish outside the ordinary, but it is very delicious.—San Francisco Call.

BOAS FULLER

Many boas are made with the French flowers and satin ribbons and are round, though the flat stoles are still worn. Those which blend in tints from white to gray and from stone gray to black are striking, and can be worn by almost any woman as far as her individual coloring goes; they are also appropriate for evening or day wear, which makes them worth considering, says the Richmond News-Leader. Boas are fuller than formerly, and the aim is to have the flues longer, though for that matter the longer the flues the more valuable the feather at any time; thickness also counts.

NARROW BELTS

Belts are being worn narrow in shiny black, with touches of scarlet or some other hue about the buckle, or of suede or soft silk, but on many dresses belts are a necessity, says the Indianapolis News. On country coats it is the half-belts at the back that are the distinguishing feature.

ADD RAISINS

It is remarkable how much better cranberry sauce and jelly are if some raisins are added when the cranberries are partly cooked, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. It removes the bitter taste that children and some grown people dislike.

Every Man and Woman of Intelligence and Education

no matter what their vocation may be, wants to keep in daily touch with the world's work. How better can they do that very thing than by reading the one newspaper which has a world perspective, which does not use valuable space to tell about crime and scandal—in fact none at all—which prints the real news of the world, which devotes generous space to international politics, to universal progress in important branches of human endeavor, which speaks with clarity, directness and impartiality in all its editorials?

SCHOOL GIRLS WORK FOR SPEED

Dressmaking against time in New York

AT the Washington Irving high school for girls in New York all is hustle and bustle, says a World writer. Things must be put together by deft fingers in record time—baby dresses, evening gowns, a chiffon waist, a set of lingerie, a walking frock. Time is the great factor. The girl who does her work in the fastest time gets the highest mark on her card. And it must be up to standard, too.

It is 1 p. m. and the luncheon hour is over. Miss Miriel Willard, the teacher of dressmaking, is at her place in class. "Petticoat tomorrow at noon, girls," she says.

Busy hands take down boxes from the shelves; each girl has her own box of sewing materials—needles and thread, buttons, tape, braid, scissors, tape measure and pins.

"Cut and baste today; we want the finished skirt tomorrow at noon, no later! Let me have all the unfinished work by half-past two."

Watch the flying fingers! An hour before some of these girls were finding out what interest is due on a note for $2008.32 for 90 days at 4½ per cent interest.

The scissors fly. On the tables the girls cut out their skirts and baste them. The work is inspected and home they go, carrying the unfinished stint with them. It must be turned in next day.

"Oh, yes," Miss Willard will tell you, "we are here to gain skill and speed. We begin at the beginning; we work on until a girl can work as rapidly and as skilfully as the best of them in the shops. The girl starts in for speed right at the first. Her first task is five inches of hemming. Then we start her on fast buttonhole work. So she advances, step by step, until in the older courses she makes full garments on time."

Miss Willard turned to her class.

"Miss Rummelin?"

A pretty girl of 16 stepped up.

"That dress you've just finished?"

The girl brought out a walking dress of dark green suiting piped and trimmed with red satin. It was trim and smart and Miss Rummelin laughed as she said she was going to wear it herself for best.

"That's our record dress," said Miss Willard with just a little note of pride. "It was made from the pieces of material in just seven hours—cut, basted, lined, fitted, trimmed, sewn and ready for delivery."

Miss Willard went on to show forms on which dresses are fitted without patterns, cutting tables where dresses could be made from patterns, sewing machines, pressing boards—all the appliances of an up-to-date modiste's shop.

"Here's a baby dress made in three hours. It cost 37 cents for material; it sells for $1.50. Here's another that cost 12 cents. It is made in an hour and three-quarters. It sells for 30 cents."

On the blackboards were the girls' own designs for costumes from the simplest to the most elaborate—many of the girl graduates earn handsome salaries by designing costumes for their richer sisters to wear.

"We can draw one of these in four minutes," said one of the girls, "even if it costs $100 to make it."

Trade models are bought for the girls to work from, but they have even harder tasks than that. They are sent out in small groups under their teachers and they make hasty sketches standing in front of the store windows, jotting down the latest things from Paris or London. Then they must go back to school and turn the sketches into real clothes.

Sets of lingerie—three, four, five or six pieces—are made from the raw materials, trimmed with lace and ribbon, hemstitched and all. And against time.

"It is strange," added Miss Willard, "but generally the girl who does the fastest work does the best work. And we have found that city girls can always work more rapidly than country girls!"

The girls are taken out to shops and factories where they can see other girls at real work. They look over the factory appliances and learn how to use them to advantage. Short cuts to fast work are shown to them and explained—everything is jotted down in note books.

MODES IN BRIEF

The newest winter negligees of challis have accordion plaited skirts.

New Books and Field of Literature

PROF. PERRY ON AMERICANISM

Member of Harvard Faculty, in Newest Book, Deals with Broader Subject Than Title Would Imply

UP-TO-DATE STUDY

THE rise and decline of faculties on the teaching staffs of great universities is an interesting process to watch. When Longfellow and Lowell were professors at Harvard and F. J. Child and Charles Eliot Norton kept them company the department of literature was unrivaled, and it had widest national and international renown. Time wrought its changes and later the philosophical faculty came to place of primacy. With James, Royce, Palmer, Peabody, Santayana and men of lesser note, it drew to the university graduate students from Europe as well as from all parts of North America. Signs multiply now showing that this faculty is soon to pass into an eclipse. A variety of causes have brought to pass swift change in the situation compared with that existing five years ago, and the query at Harvard now is, which one of the faculties is to lead for the next decade or two?

The answer is not altogether easy to give, but there is this to be said for the department of American and English literature, that it is stronger than it was a decade ago. With Professors Perry, Briggs, Neilson and Copeland busy as teachers some vital and adequately put thought on matters of literary criticism is accessible to students electing their courses. Moreover, as authors they are prolific and influential.

Prof. Bliss Perry, whose book on "The American Mind" (Houghton-Mifflin Co.) embodies lectures given by him to popular audiences last winter, is the one outstanding person of this group who has that valuable asset to a person of his station and calling, namely, the gift of successful exposition in public of the real essence of literature. Consequently he is in much demand as speaker before academic, civic and religious assemblies throughout the country. Enabled by the conditions of his professorship to accept many of these invitations he is thus becoming a man of far more than local or sectional reputation, and his touch is being felt by a considerable portion of the most critical section of the public.

For the benefit of American as well as European readers let it be said at the outset that this collection of essays is not most felicitously named. What Professor Perry has done in his discourse is not to talk so much about "the American mind" as about the American temperament, character, ideals, manners, morals, and social conventions and principles. So that the book turns out to be something much broader and more vital than its title would imply. As an up-to-date study of Americanism, with no blinking of faults and limitations, it may be commended most heartily to natives or to those of other nationalities who like a combination of insight and candor, wit and good sense, all dressed up in a stylistic garb that has life and motion, color and fluidity, urbanity as well as substance. Not every man of letters can combine as Professor Perry does capacity to write satisfactorily for his own scholastic circle and also for the larger public; but in this book are all the shadings and nuances and fine turns which indicate the practised artist in prose as well as the sober reflections of a social analyst who goes about the streets with his eyes open, and who reads Boston dailies as well as the New York Nation and the London Athaeneum. Aware then of phases of American life that many New Englanders and most university professors ignore he speaks plainly to superficial or ignorant critics of his countrymen, while at the same time preaching idealism as necessary for national well being.

Not the least interesting aspect of this book is the blending of literary criticism and of interpretation of the religious traditions and ideals of a people who never have known union of church and state and who have been free to experiment in all forms of ritual, polity and creed. The author is a child of the Puritan strain of Protestantism, and is loyal to the faith of his fathers; but he also has the detachment that enables him to see wherein the ampler American environment has made natural modifications in the pioneers' point of view and the necessity of welcoming other conceptions of faith and duty. Moreover, he is sufficiently versed in earlier records of national life to be able to show that even in colonial days there were less austere conceptions of life and duty than are commonly attributed to the era of the Mathers and Jonathan Edwards, and that appreciation of beauty as well as duty existed at a time when neither art nor humanism had outstanding exponents among authors and other moulders of opinion. Early American idealism found expression in study of the Bible, in elaborate sermons, in a passion for popular education, in the forensics of town meeting and of senate chamber, in the rhetorical commemorative oration, and in romantic literature.

Latter-day Americanism, he argues, on its religious side has grown "more human, natural and possibly more Christlike."

Americans are more sympathetic today, but also even more sentimental than in the past. That Americans have been a sentimental people, he says, is shown by their popular literature, by their attitude toward women and children, by their glorification of labor, by their sectional and local loyalties, and by the sentiment of union "preached in pulpits, pleaded for in editorials, sung in lyrics, and woven into the web of fiction."

In days like the present when so much is said of the passing of individualism and the coming of socialism, it is probable that one of the first chapters of this book to be read will be the last one on "Individualism and Fellowship." The Harvard man of letters, like his predecessor Lowell, is not found wanting when it comes to fundmental sympathy with the best ethical ideals of his day and generation, and he stands for the abiding essentials of democracy. He sees as clearly as do the leaders of the contemporary political revolt against the privileged few that an era of greater collective action has dawned and that, as in former days, the literature which is most characteristic of America will have the "civic note" and be a "citizen literature." But he stands for a national ideal that will conserve the best of the older ideals of personal liberty and individual aspiration as well as for the newer ideals of fraternity and social justice. A New Englander by tradition and training, he is national enough in his vision to see and argue that "it is the western interest in the ethical aspect of social movements that is creating some of the moving forces in American society today," and that "no one can understand the present America if he does not understand the men and women who live between the Alleghany mountains and the Rocky mountains. They have worked out more successfully than the composite populations of the East, a general theory of the relation of the individual to society: in other words, a combination of individualism with fellowship."

LONDON LITERARY NOTES

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The news of the election of Dr. Woodrow Wilson as President of the United States will be received by all friends of education with satisfaction, says the Athenaeum, a weekly journal which is widely read in literary and educational circles. "Since his Princeton days he has shown that a professor of jurisprudence and politics can translate theory into practise."

The head master of Eton has accepted a place on the editorial board of the Hibbert Journal.

Sir Edward T. Cook's "Homes and Haunts of Ruskin" (G. Allen) is due this month and will, no doubt, prove a fitting successor to the "Life of Ruskin" from the same author which appeared earlier this year and met with so much appreciation. The illustrations, which are in color and black and white, are by Emily M. B. Warren.

Smith Elder have ready for publication "The Land That Is Desolate," by Sir Frederick Treves, containing his impressions of travel through the Holy Land as it is today, in an atmosphere wherein the glamour of the sacred past meets with Turkish desolation and the barefaced exploiting of tradition by the present inhabitants. The same firm is publishing "A Housemaster's Letters," giving the author's reflections and counsels on the varied problems which a schoolmaster has to face.

The second volume of Mr. Moneypenny's "Life of Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield" (Murray) is promised immediately. This volume covers the 10 years between 1837 and 1846, a period which includes Disraeli's marriage, the writing of the three novels "Coningsby," "Sybil" and "Tancred," the repeal of the corn laws, the Russell ministry, and Disraeli's succession to the leadership of the opposition.

Macmillans are publishing "George Frederick Watts: The Annals of an Artist's Life," consisting of the two-volume memoir of her husband, on which Mrs. Watts has been engaged for the past six years, with a third volume containing unpublished writings of Watts on artistic matters, together with a representative series of reproductions from his works.

Williams and Norgate have ready "The Lost Language of Symbolism: An Inquiry Into the Origin of Certain Letters, Words, Names, Fairy Tales, Myths and Theologies," by Harold Bayley, whose object has been to substantiate the conclusions which he formulated in "A New Light from the Renaissance." The work contains some 1400 facsimiles of medieval emblems.

The same firm of publishers are adding two volumes to their Crown Theological Library: "Protestantism and Progress," by Professor Troeltsch, and "Bible Reading in the Early Church," by Professor Harnack. The last named aims at describing the religious life of the early Christians and the profound influence exercised among them by the Bible.

After a period of considerable delay the crown has been moved to appoint Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch ("Q") professor of English literature at Cambridge. In view of the selections of rumor, says the Athenaeum, the choice is a pleasant surprise, and maintains the traditions of classical scholarship, which, however scouted by modern ideas, is an excellent discipline alike for English style and research.

LITERARY NOTES

The lectures on Christianity now being given by Prof. Josiah Royce before the Lowell Institute, Boston, will be published by the Macmillans under the title "The Problem of Christianity."

J. C. Snaith, now best known to the American reading public by his fiction, next year will appear as a depictor of contemporary political and industrial conditions in Great Britain.

The demand for "The Yale Book of American Verse," compiled by Prof. T. R. Lounsbury has made necessary a second printing. A special limited edition, with the author's autograph, is to be issued for his friends and Yale admirers.

William Allen Knights' "At the Crossing with Denis McShane" reveals him working in a new field of character interpretation, more modern and racy than some of his earlier reconstructions of Biblical tales.

Paul Elder & Co. are supplying a book loving public with an "impressions calendar" for 1913, especially prepared for book-lovers. With fine portraits and apt quotations it fills the bill.

Mrs. Margaret Deland, whose sense is equal to her sentiment, is enlisted in the campaign to restore holiday giftgiving to something like right proportions in the December habits of the average American family.

The orientalism of Pierre Loti and his personal admiration for Carmen Sylva are set forth in his latest book, just issued.

Ambassador Bryce's study of South America has gone into a second edition. The first one was large.

A collection of letters, written by William James, is being gathered. They will be edited by his brother, Henry James, the writer of fiction and literary criticism. Scribners are to be the publishers.

The automobile has not wholly excluded the horse from modern high life circles. There are still women of means and quality who will ride and drive the equine creature in preference to the petrol or electrically propelled car, and for such Belle Beach has written, "Riding and Driving for Women."

Reginald Wright Kauffman is an American who, specializing in the definite field of sociology, and then using his material for fiction and for verse, has won a hearing, not only in the United States, but also in England, Germany and Scandinavia.

Mary Johnston, the southern novelist and an ardent suffragist, has recently invested in a complete file of the Woman's Journal from 1870 to date. In her research work preparing for her historical novels she doubtless has come to see the service rendered by journalism to a social historian.

Both Harpers Monthly and the American Magazine announce serials by Arnold Bennett.

"The Hnmane Idea," by the Rev. Dr. Francis H. Rowley, is published by the American Humane Education Society and not as announced in these columns last week, by the American Unitarian Association.

Prof. Shailer Matthews hereafter will edit the Biblical World, issued at Chicago University.

Maud M. Holbach, writer of books on the Balkan states and their people, soon will come hither from England to negotiate with publishers.

Scribners magazine is to have Edith Wharton's next story, "The Custom of the Country."

"The Lyric Year," containing 100 poems by as many American poets, has just appeared. The first prize of $500 goes to Orrick Johns for a poem entitled "Second Avenue," depicting life in New York city. T. A. Daly of Philadelphia and George Sterling of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal., win lesser prizes of $250 each. The venture of gathering, appraising and publishing this interesting collection of contemporary American verse, has been made by Mitchell Kennerley of New Yerk city.

NEWS BRIEFS

I. M. R. TO ESTABLISH FARMS

ALEXANDER, La.—The Iron Mountain Railroad Company will soon select two 40-acre tracts of land on which to establish exhibition farms in Louisiana. It is the intention of the company to select one farm in the hill lands and one in the river lands. It is probably that Rapides Parish will get one, probably both of the farms, as there are suitable lands of both kinds here.

NEW STATE HIGHWAY URGED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—The proposition for a state highway connecting Little Rock and Memphis is meeting with general commendation. The Cross-State Highway Association of Forrest City is promoting the enterprise, and will soon hold a conference to which Little Rock will send delegates.

INTERURBAN PROJECT REVIVED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—There has been a revival of the Hot Springs-Little Rock interurban project, which was originally started five years ago. L. Garrett, the original promoter believes he is getting to a point where he can see a successful issue. The Arkansas Interurban Construction Company is the corporate name of the organization, and the capital stock is $500,000.

$1,500,000 FOR TROLLEY LINE

EDMONTON, Alta.—Arthur G. Harrison, of the board of city commissioners, announces that the municipality will expend approximately $1,500,000 for street railway construction and equipment and sub-stations in Edmonton in the coming year. This is exclusive of extensions to St. Albert and Calder.

INCREASE CATTLE SHIPMENTS

NEW ORLEANS—During the last four months Mississippi has sent to the St. Louis national stockyards 7000 more cattle than it sent last year during the same period. The cattle gain from Mississippi in October was 17,000 head.

CITY USES ARTESIAN WELLS

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—The city water works is now pumping from two 12-inch artesian wells at 600 gallons per minute. The company is sinking another well of the same size, and will furnish water for the city during the coming summer for irrigation as well as for domestic purposes.

ELECTRIC LINE TO PORT WARREN

NEW WESTMINSTER—That a survey has been made for an electric car line from New Westminster to Port Mann was the gist of a report presented at the Board of Trade meeting recently by the transportation committee of the Board of Trade, Progressive Association and city council. This information had been obtained from Acting General Manager Conway of the British Columbia Electric Railway.

SCHOOL AS A CIVIC CENTER

CHICAGO—For the first time in the history of the city a high school is to be made use of as a civic center. A "city welfare" exhibit, under the auspices of the Woman's City Club, will be opened at the John Marshall high school, Adams and Kedzie streets.

HISTORICAL BUILDING PLANNED

MINNEAPOLIS—The Minnesota Historical Society has organized a committee to work for a legislative appropriation for a state historical building. The space accorded the society in the basement of the Capitol is not a proper place for records. The library contains 105,364 titles and 9327 bound volumes of newspapers. The newspaper files are growing at the rate of 350 a year.

WHAT EDITORS ARE SAYING

CURRENT affairs are dealt with in the following editorial excerpts:

NEW ORLEANS PICAYUNE — The national rivers and harbors congress which will meet in Washington Dec. 4 to 6 promises to be the most important gathering of the sort held in years. The labors of this organization have been fruitful in former years in inducing Congress to make liberal provision for the improvement of our rivers and waterways as well as for the betterment and deepening of our harbors. The work of the organization appeals to all parts of the country, as the navigable streams penetrate to practically every portion of the interior, while the coast states all have harbors that would do a larger traffic were they properly improved. There never was a time when the navigable waterways of the country, as well as its harbors, needed greater attention at the hands of the federal government than now. While the railroads control the bulk of the commerce of the country, and are therefore able to dictate rates, the competition of the waterways, even as they now exist, acts as a check upon the charges which the farmers and manufacturers have to meet in transporting their products to market. As long as the waterways are navigable there is always competition and if the streams were only kept open at all times cheap water transportation would not only compel the railroads to lower their rates, but to adopt more expeditious methods of transporting freight. As far as the harbors of the country are concerned there are few ports that are actually up to date and have channels of sufficient depth to accommodate vessels now engaged in the carrying trade. This is an era of big ships and the ports that are unable to accommodate such ships must be content to see their business drift away. Ports cannot be improved by private effort. The government must dredge the channels and remove such obstructions as may be found to be in the way of safe navigation. At the present time it is said that New York alone has a channel sufficiently deep to accommodate the leviathans of the sea which are now being constructed. This is a situation which the government should not tolerate.

DALLAS NEWS—How to carry eggs through the mails is a question that is just now perplexing Mr. Hitchcock and his numerous assistants, according to reports from Washington. Or, rather, to state it more precisely, the question is how to carry eggs through the mails and deliver them intact to the consignees? It is all a matter of devising some container that will adequately buffet the fragile shells, and enable one in the city who has contracted for a stipulated supply of eggs from a producer of them in the country to have them delivered in usable shape. For it is expected, and certainly hoped, that when we get the parcels post in full and orderly operation, we of the cities may be able to get eggs direct from the nests without the intervention of commission and cold storage men, and without the delay that their function entails, a delay that too often operates to the detriment of the eggs. Incidentally, of course, it is hoped that we may be enabled to get eggs for less and the farmers more for eggs than they now get, a desideratum that is saved from being paradoxical by the obvious circumstances that then the waste which the present method of marketing entails will be abolished. One who will give some rein to his imagination can descry other and larger beneficent possibilities that lie in the institution of a parcels post.

ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC—The creation of two bureaus—one to look after the state highways, the other to have charge of the reclamation of swamp lands and the building and maintenance of levees—is to be considered by the next General Assembly. Governor-elect Major is said to favor the plan. His approval probably will suffice to pass the act. It will be a progressive, constructive step. The reclamation of our swamp lands will add tremendously to Missouri's wealth-producing area. This fact is too well understood to require elaboration. Out of the understanding of this fact has come the sentiment which now seems about to take concrete form. Under the direction of a competent bureau results will come thick and fast. New statistics will be written in corn and oats and eggs and poultry. In effect it means the conquest of new and virgin acres. The back-to-the soil procession marches by way of good roads. It is the country's salvation and the cities', too. The last census sounded a warning. The danger that threatens does not explain the resolute interest in road building. The prospect of what it will accomplish has given the project its momentum. The good road will mean the end of rural isolation. It will lift from the farmer's back one of the heaviest loads that has oppressed him. It will mean a bigger prosperity and a fuller contentment. The need for selecting the ablest available men to direct those enterprises cannot be overstated. The money, too, should be forthcoming. The upbuilding of Missouri calls for men and means.

CHICAGO POST—Dean Kirchway of the Columbia University law school, in the course of a layman's sermon at one of the New York churches . . . declared that the presidential campaign . . . should be of immense interest to philosophers. By that he meant that this campaign, far more than any previous one, seemed to turn, to a very large degree, upon philosophical conceptions. It is true that these were held rather loosely, but they were there, he insisted. "Our philosophers will become our rulers if the platforms of our political parties may be accepted as a criterion of the times." True enough. It really looks as though the day were passing when our political parties could brag about muddling along with a maximum of "practical men" and a minimum of general ideas.

NEW YORK HERALD—"Get-rich-quick" operators who sell worthless "securities" to small investors have recently received some hard blows. The whole tribe, we hope, will be exterminated as a result of the formation of the Investment Bankers Association of America. . . . This organization of bank officials, private bankers, bond houses—all classes of firms that deal in securities and offer them to the public—having representatives in all parts of the country, will be able to give effective aid to the press and the authorities in eliminating this most cruel species of fraud. While this particularly appeals to public sympathy, the newly formed association has opportunity for other splendid work, including the improvement the ethics of the craft and bringing about a reconciliation of existing state laws which by their conflict afford protection to swindlers.

ANNIVERSARY OF READING LODGE

President-Elect Faces Big Problems

in this city of politics. Politicians here have been very slow to pick out a cabinet for Mr. Wilson and they say that his warning was inevitable from the moment the cabinet stories began to appear.

Mr. Wilson says further that he knows of cases where the list of cabinet members was not decided upon definitely until shortly before inauguration day, the inference being that he would wait that long, if necessary; and at any rate, that he would not be in a hurry about it.

Cabinets as a rule have been made up slowly and painstakingly, a name at a time. In more than one instance cabinet selections have been rejected and others made, on the night before inauguration.

President Taft spent several weeks at Virginia Hot Springs and in Georgia following the election in 1908, and there was much gossip regarding his forthcoming cabinet appointments. The list in full was not decided upon, even tentatively, until after the first of the year, while more than one place was kept open until February. There was very strong pressure to induce him to retain several members of the Roosevelt cabinet, especially James R. Garfield as secretary of the interior, and it was not until after the lapse of a number of weeks following the election that Mr. Taft let it be known that he would make up a cabinet that was to be new, with the exception of the secretary of agriculture.

Pressure at Last Moment

The failure of President Garfield to give a cabinet place to Jerry Rusk of Wisconsin, very clearly illustrates the tentative way in which cabinets are formed, and how pressure at the very last moment may indicate an incoming President to alter his previously arranged plans. When General Garfield arrived in Washington to be inaugurated he had the name of Mr. Rusk on his cabinet list, but with the understanding that, at the last moment, he might be compelled to drop him. And drop him he did, although with reluctance, and at the last moment.

Mr. Garfield, when the situation had been made clear to him, sent a mutual friend to Mr. Rusk to explain matters and offer him a place that was almost as good. But Mr. Rusk, with jocular emphasis, declined the place and said that he was going home to run for Governor. This he did and with the result he had made himself so strong politically in the Northwest that he became the representative of that section, along with William Windom of Minnesota, in the Harrison cabinet.

When Mr. McKinley arrived in Washington for his first inauguration, the selection of Mr. Bliss for the interior department was only tentative. New York, as is always true of her, wanted the secretaryship of the treasury in the new cabinet, but under pressure that was brought to bear Mr. Bliss, at the last moment, consented for a short time to accept the other place.

No doubt Mr. Wilson had these and similar cases in mind when he said recently in the Bermudas that he knew of cases where the cabinet had not been made up until shortly prior to the date for inauguration. And it is not unlikely, as public men here view the situation, that he may have similar experiences. A name fitting perfectly into a certain place today may have to be shifted tomorrow to accommodate the evolution of a political situation nation wide in its importance and interest.

Many names will be under consideration for all of the cabinet places. At least a score of farmers, for instance, already have been mentioned for secretary of agriculture, and at least half a dozen lawyers of widely different types and temperaments have already been mentional for attorney general. The work of sifting out the best of these names and then of making the final selections is no small job, and it may well run along pretty nearly to March 4, as folks here believe will be the case.

Planned for Lawyer Cabinet

Referring again to the Taft cabinet, it will be timely to point out the chief thought in his mind when he was engaged in cabinet building. The story is new and it ought to be interesting. Having been a lawyer and a judge for many years, and on that account being well acquainted with the greatest lawyers and judges of the country, and naturally having more or less prejudice in their favor, Mr. Taft came to the conclusion that the thing to do was to appoint a cabinet of lawyers of national reputation for ability and reputation.

It was his opinion that such a cabinet, experts in the best sense of the word, would at once command the confidence and good will of the American people and start his administration off with a great deal of prestige. But alas! When Mr. Taft came to look for his great lawyers, he found them most easily and in largest numbers, according to the story, among the ranks of men who for years had been in the service of the great corporations. The public was slow to permit ability to offset previous corporation service, and it was only after some of the "corporation" lawyers of the Taft cabinet had "made good" as the result of several years of earnest work in behalf of the people that they began to be received with favor by the country as a whole. Mr. Knox had a similar experience as attorney-general in the Roosevelt cabinet.

Mr. Wilson, obviously, will want to steer clear of criticism and so it is assumed here that he will give very few, if any, places to corporation lawyers. It is also assumed that he will not make up a cabinet of practical politicians—men who have been of use chiefly on the stump and in conventions. There probably will be some politicians at the council table and no doubt a great lawyer or two, but it is also believed that Mr. Wilson will want to have well represented in his cabinet the school of thought and activity of which he is a conspicuous example—men who have given their whole time, practically, to a study of political conditions in the United States, who are the highest authorities on all public questions that come up, but who have not heretofore been largely called upon to do important public service, either in the executive or in the legislative branch of the government.

In other words, politicians and others in this city expect Mr. Wilson to offer cabinet places to one or more of the great political economists, men who have been with the great colleges and universities for years, and who are the authors of standard works on all phases of American government.

But whoever goes into the Wilson cabinet Washington is not prepared to be surprised if the list is not announced earlier than Jan. 1 or Feb. 1, or even later; for it has Mr. Wilson's own word for it that he is not going to be in a hurry.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS FOR WATERWAYS CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—That pressing transportation problems will mark the coming convention of the national rivers and harbors congress, to be held in this city Dec. 4, 5 and 6, is shown, by an official of the congress, who says:

"The hard struggle of recent years to reach some reasonable ground for regulation of railroad rates, while it has made distinct and promising progress, has only served to accentuate the truth that the surest and best conservator of reasonable rates for transportation is in the unremitting care and improvement of government-controlled water highways of commerce. The master minds of railway transportation have come to realize this truth in a fuller sense than ever, and the indications are that the railroad people will take a greater interest in the coming sessions of the national rivers and harbors congress than they have heretofore."

From ocean coast to ocean coast and from the lakes to the gulf the Governors of the states have designated as delegates their foremost leaders in commerce and politics. The occasion seems to be auspicious for giving impetus to a pronounced forward business movement.

PANAMA-PACIFIC POSTAGE STAMPS ISSUE ANNOUNCED

WASINGTON—Official notice is given by Postmaster-General Hitchcock that the postoffice department is about to issue a special series of postage stamps in commemoration of the Panama-Pacific exposition to be placed on sale in January, 1913.

These stamps measure about three fourths by one and one sixteenth inches, the long dimension being horizontal. At the top appear the words "U. S. Postage" and "San Francisco, 1915." In the left hand border is a branch of laurel and in the right hand border a palm branch.

The 1 cent stamp is green, and in the center appears, within a circle, a bust of Balboa. The 2 cent stamp is red. It represents the Gatun locks of the Panama canal. The 5 cent stamp is blue, and presents the Golden Gate of San Francisco harbor. The 10 cent stamp is dark yellow. The subject is "Discovery of San Francisco Bay."

PREPARE TO BEGIN PARCELS SERVICE

WASHINGTON—In order that adequate facilities may be provided for the handling of parcels post business efficiently and on a country-wide scale at the outset, Jan. 1, Postmaster-General Hitchcock has asked every postmaster in the United States to obtain from the business public information as to the probable extent the new system will be used.

Each postmaster has been provided with circulars, which set forth in detail the provisions of the parcels post law, the rates of postage and an explanatory statement concerning the delivery of parcels post matter. Attention also is directed to the fact that such matter may be registered and insured against loss.

SOLUBLE POTASH SALTS IN NEBRASKA

WASHINGTON—Considerable interest has been aroused in the discovery of soluble potash salts in certain lakes in western Nebraska. The report of their discovery together with samples of the deposits, first came to the geological survey from Carl Mc esitt, who has been interested in the possibility of developing the deposits on a commercial basis.

One lake was visited by R. B. Dole of the geological survey, who collected from the deposit samples whose potash content has been determined.

HEARING ON LATER TRAINS

Petitioners for later trains to the suburbs of Boston will be given a hearing by the railroad commissioners on Dec. 4, at 2:30 p. m., at 20 Beacon street. Mayor Fitzgerald, Governor Foss, citizens' associations and boards of trades of the cities and towns surrounding Boston are expected to be represented.

MR. TAFT ACCOUNTS FOR NEW HAVEN SUIT; NAMES MR. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK—That the federal suit alleging violation of the Sherman law by the combination of New Haven and B. & M. was dropped because there was no ground to uphold it, and that the reason the owning of steamer lines by the New Haven road was not made part of the suit was because Colonel Roosevelt, when President, had expressly sanctioned their purchase, are statements made by President Taft to Norman H. White in a letter published on Sunday.

In a letter to President Taft dated April 8, Mr. White said:

"The United States suit started by Roosevelt and dropped by Wickersham has left us in the hands of a complete monopoly in railroad transportation through a holding device known as the Boston Railroad Holding Company. Mr. Wickersham dropped the suit immediately after the holding bill just mentioned had passed.

"In the United States suit nothing was mentioned regarding the steamers owned by the New Haven road, paralleling the rails between Portland and New York.

"Our state laws have been broken, as outlined by the unanimous decision of the supreme court of Massachusetts. Our United States laws have been broken and a suit started by the United States has been—for no good reason—dropped. It is this kind of thing which has created so many so-called Progressives."

President Taft wrote:

"The suit which was dropped by Mr. Wickersham was dropped because there was no ground for its upholding, and the one thing I do not propose to do is to prosecute where there is no ground. I was so advised by Mr. Wickersham.

"The reason why the steamers owned by the New Haven road were not made part of that suit was because Mr. Roosevelt had expressly permitted their purchase by the New Haven road, as I understand it. . . . Mr. Wickersham has already investigated this matter, and you are entirely wrong in saying it was not dropped for a good reason.

"The trouble about the gentlemen you speak of, who class themselves as progressives, is that they do not learn all the facts before they reach conclusions."

SEATS FOR FORMER PRESIDENTS URGED

WASHINGTON—As a result of the discussion aroused by Andrew Carnegie's offer to pension former Presidents, a movement is already on foot to avoid the need by making them permanent "representatives at large" with seats in the House.

Representative Albert S. Burleson of Texas, is behind the plan and he already has drafted a provision which he will try to induce the committee on appropriations to insert in the legislative, executive and judical appropriation bill.

WASHINGTON NAVY YARD BID LOWEST

WASHINGTON—The Washington navy yard is lowest bidder for the construction of the first five-inch and four-inch guns for use in the 1913 naval construction program. Bids were asked for five five-inch and 10 four-inch guns. The Washington yard bid was $7202 each for the five-inch and $6370 each for the four-inch guns. The Watervleit arsenal, New York, which was the second lowest bidder, offered to construct the five inch guns for $8130 and the four-inch for $6709.

DIRECT SENATOR ELECTION WINS

HELENA, Mont.—Returns on the initiative and referendum measures, submitted to Montana's voters at the recent election make certain that the measures providing for party nominations for state offices by direct vote, limiting the campaign expenditures of candidates to 15 per cent of the office salary for one year, providing for the direct election of United States senators and presidential primary are all carried by a margin of two to one.

SCHRANK TAKEN TO OSHKOSH

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—John Schrank, the attempted assassin of Colonel Roosevelt, was taken to the state hospital for the criminal insane at Oshkosh today.

ABOUT 11,000 OFFICES MAY BE FILLED BY THE NEXT PRESIDENT

Mr. Wilson Expected to Have at Least 100,000 Applicants for Positions Subject to Political Changes

STARTS MARCH 4

WASHINGTON—According to a report made by President Taft to Congress toward the end of the last session, the number of offices the President may fill by appointment is close to 11,000, and the official document is now being sought after by Democrats from all parts of the country as a preliminary move in the great rush in the direction of Washington that will start shortly after next March 4.

Like all other Presidents of recent years, Mr. Wilson will discover that the question of patronage is the most annoying of all the questions confronting the presidency. There probably will be at least 100,000 applicants for the 11,000 positions and the task of making selections from the list of applicants is one that will call into play all that the new President possesses of patience, tact, intelligence and political judgment. Serious mistakes in the disposition of patronage always handicap an administration, and Presidents therefore always try to handle the patronage question in such a way as to avoid friction.

The number of available places would be several times as large as it is but for the fact that the civil service has been radically extended during the past score of years. By acts of Congress and executive orders nearly all postmasters are now in the classified service, and the civil service "blanket" has at the same time been made to cover more persons in other executive departments.

The document submitted by President Taft to Congress last summer was in response to a resolution of that body asking for the full list of executive appointments. The list shows 9846 offices filled by the President, but requiring confirmation by the Senate and 993 not requiring that confirmation. The total of these two sums represents the places Mr. Wilson will be called upon to fill.

The Taft report shows that there are 236,061 persons now in the classified service. The number has grown wonderfully since 1883, when the civil service law was enacted and went into effect. President Arthur, during his administration, covered into the service, under that law, 15,573 persons. Mr. Cleveland during his first administration added 11,757 to that number, bringing it up to 27,330. General Harrison added 15,598, making the total at the end of his administration 42,928. During the second Cleveland administration 38,961 were added to the civil service rolls, making the total at the end of that administration 81,889. The smallest growth was under President McKinley, 3261, and the total at the end of the four years and six months of his presidency was 85,150. There was a big spurt under Colonel Roosevelt, who added 34,766 to the rolls, making the total 119,916. The largest number of additions has been made by President Taft, 41,559, up to Oct. 16 of this year, and the total number of persons covered into the service, therefore, is 161,475.

This last named number, however, falls far short of representing the entire civil service list of the country, which, as already stated, now totals 236,061. This is due to the fact that, once a department or a bureau has been covered into the service, no record is kept by the civil service commission of its growth. The agricultural department, for instance, at the time it was covered by the civil service law, numbered only a few hundred clerks. The number of clerks at present is upwards of 12,000, but the only number of record in the civil service commission is the number at the time the service was extended so as to include it.

President Taft has covered 36,236 fourth class postmasters into the civil service, which explains why his list of appointments is larger than that of any other of the presidents. In addition to the postmasters he has covered into the service 2229 assistant postmasters in first class offices, 1344 clerks in these same first class postoffices, and 1000 (estimated) places paid from tribal funds in the Indian service.

Following is the summarized list, by departments, of the appointments Mr. Wilson will be called upon to make, with the "advice and consent" of the Senate: State 441, treasury 736, war (exclusive of the army) 6; justice 383, postoffice 7593, interior 272, agriculture 3, navy (exclusive of naval officers) 11; commerce and labor (exclusive of census) 28, civil service commission 4, government printing office 1, interstate commerce commission 7, library of Congress 1.

The following appointments will be made by Mr. Wilson without the "advice and consent" of the Senate:

State department 94, department of justice (approximated) 846, commerce and labor 8, civil service commission 1.

It will be in the postoffice that Mr. Wilson will find an opportunity to make the largest number of appointments. Postmasters of the first, second and third-class are still subject to definite terms of employment, and nearly 8000 vacancies will occur during the Wilson quadrennium. It is understood that he will follow the example of all his predecessors, since Arthur, in permitting postmasters to fill out the four years for which they were originally appointed. Whether he will follow Roosevelt and Taft and seek to place these officials practically under the civil service, by refusing to dismiss them except for cause, remains to be determined. It is likely, however, that the pressure will be so great as to cause him to appoint Democrats in the place of at least a portion of the Republicans who are now holding these positions.

When President Taft, directed by Congress, placed the fourth-class postmasters under the civil service law he took from the postoffice department a large part of the politics which formerly had been centered there. For instance, no future postmaster-general will be able, by the aid of postmasters in all parts of the country, to build up a powerful political machine such as was in existence up to a few years ago.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION DELEGATES REPORT

Reports of the recent national convention held in Portland, Ore., were made today at the meeting of the Boston Central Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Chipman hall.

Mrs. J. E. Worthen described the journey on the special train dwelling on the platform speeches en route from Chicago to the Pacific. Work of the Loyal Temperance League was told by Mrs. Helen G. Rice.

Some of the points brought out by the principal speakers at the convention were taken up in a resume by Mrs. Isabel Morse, treasurer of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U. Details of the homeward trip, particularly the mass meeting in Colorado City were introduced by Mrs. Della M. Sewall, national superintendent of the flower mission.

At the meeting today it was decided to change the time of the regular meeting to the first and third Monday in the month, beginning next week.

ALLEGE HYDE EXTORTED MONEY FROM TRUST CO.

NEW YORK—The prosecution in the trial of former City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde, accused of having extorted money from the Northern bank to aid the defunct Carnegie Trust Company, today presented evidence tending to show that loans made by the Carnegie Trust Company to John V. Smith were in reality made to Hyde himself.

The state, however, failed to get before the jury any statement of what salary Smith received, or what shape his financial affairs were in at the time the loans were made.

The defense developed the fact that Hyde endorsed all of the Smith notes. The defense conceded that money drawn on these notes was turned over to the city chamberlain and showed that they were all later paid.

Smith made it very plain in answers to Justice Goff that the notes were perfectly regular, were discounted in the regular way and that he had intended paying them when they became due.

CLOSES ALLEYWAY OPENED FOR YEARS

SALEM, Mass.—Claiming as his land a part of an alleyway which adjoins his property and which for generations has been used by pedestrians and vehicles from Washington street to Dodge street, Ovide Bouchard of this city, has blocked the thoroughfare by building a fence across each end with the intention of occupying the land with a new building.

The city officials, including the city engineer and the street commissioner, are investigating and no permit will be issued until the matter is finally settled.

MEXICAN TROOPS RUIN VILLAGES

MEXICO CITY—Government troops have destroyed not less than 25 villages in the past two weeks, in an effort to discourage rebel leaders in Vaxaca province.

The administration, believing that the rebels in that region have been efficiently subjected by the warfare that has been waged, has sanctioned orders for the retirement of the greater part of the federals from the state, leaving the final pacification to local troops.

CELEBRATE WINNING OF FOUR MORE STATES TO WOMAN SUFFRAGE

PHILADELPHIA—Success at the polls for woman's enfranchisement in four states in the election this month—Arizona, Kansas, Michigan and Oregon—was celebrated at a mass meeting in the Metropolitan opera house Sunday. More than 500 delegates to the national American woman suffrage convention and their friends filled every seat in the big auditorium and the large numbers unable to gain admittance necessitated overflow meetings in the streets.

Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the federal children's bureau, Washington, in an address stated that woman suffrage is a natural and inevitable step in the march of society forward; that, instead of being incompatible with child welfare, it leads to it and is indeed the next great service to be rendered for the welfare and ennoblement of the home.

"Suffrage for women is not the final word in human freedom," said Miss Lathrop, "but it is the next step in the onward march of equalizing the rights and balancing the duties of the two types of individuals who make up the human race.

"This has been called 'the century of the child.' We may well believe that the coming century will see a new sense of justice toward the child, a new standard raised for his welfare. The century of the woman has made possible the century of the child."

Miss Jane Addams of Chicago charged that the self-seeking politician was usually the first to win the gratitude of immigrants who came to this country.

Among the problems that have come under the government today, said the speaker, are the management of playgrounds and dance halls for the young people. She maintained that the women should take a hand in these affairs and provide clean and moral places of amusement.

"Shall we, the women," concluded Miss Addams, "leave the laws solely in the hands of the men who, after their day's work, come home unfit to consider the seriousness of life?"

By a vote of 371 to 38, at Saturday's afternoon business session defeat was given a proposed organization constitutional amendment requiring officers to maintain a non-partizan attitude, except in states where equal suffrage is in force.

PRESIDENT-ELECT HEARS BERMUDA DEBATE ON TARIFF

The Governor-General, Lieut.-Gen. Sir George Bullock, has invited all official and social Bermuda to the state dinner he is to give to Governor Wilson on Tuesday. The Governor will work this week on his message to the New Jersey Legislature. Mr. Tumulty, his secretary, will send by the next steamer 700 letters bearing Governor Wilson's signature.

The President-elect and his family, except Miss Eleanor Wilson, attended Christ Presbyterian church Sunday and listened to a sermon by the Rev. Dr. A. B. Cameron.

INJUNCTION ON REALTY DEAL

Former Judge William H. H. Emmons of East Boston was restrained by an ad interim injunction order issued by Judge Hardy in the equity session of the superior court, on a bill filed by Levy Fishman, from disposing of the estate corner of Albany and Randall streets, which complainant alleges he improperly acquired.

The property was bought by the complainant June 9, 1910, subject to a mortgage on which $3200 was then due. On Sept. 7 complainant agreed to sell to D. H. Greenhood. Judge Emmons was counsel for Greenhood and the sale fell through. Meantime Judge Emmons bought the mortgage for $2950 from the trustees under the will of Nehemiah Rice. The property was later sold at foreclosure, having been bought in by Paul Emmons, son of the attorney, who conveyed it to D. J. Ahearn, who immediately deeded it to Judge Emmons.

Complainant alleges he never knew of the foreclosure or the sale. He claims the interest had been paid up to July 1 and the next payment was not due until Jan. 1.

TO EXAMINE PLANS OF COPLEY SQUARE

Plans submitted by Frank A. Bourne, a Boston architect, for beautifying Copley square, will form the principal topic of discussion at the meeting today of the city planning committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in the Boston City Club. A report on the proposed widening of St. James avenue made by a joint sub-committee of the committees on city planning and on municipal and metropolitan affairs which acted in cooperation with a committee of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, also comes before the committee.

Before the members take luncheon they will meet at the old aldermanic chamber of the city hall and inspected the plaster model, now on view there, of Mr. Bourne's designs.

BUILDING TRADESMEN OPEN MEETING WITH A. F. OF L. HEAD ABSENT

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The building trades department convention opened at the Hotel Rochester today. The welcome to the delegates was not given by Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., as had been expected.

Relative to the award of the board of arbitration in the engineers' controversy, H. B. Perham, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and eighth vice president of the American Federation of Labor, today said:

"The board recommends compulsory arbitration. We are not in favor of that. So far as the award itself is concerned, that is a matter affecting the engineers, whose organization is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Whatever is satisfactory to their organization, will therefore be satisfactory to us."

DOCK OFFICIAL URGES NEW YORK PIER PLANS

NEW YORK—Calvin Tomkins, Commissioner of the Department of Docks and Ferries, who considered the uptown site for long piers second to the best and at the same time the most expensive, is, however, urging carrying out of the plans as the only solution of the problem.

Plans for 1000-foot piers, as recommended, were ready last Thursday, but the change to 1200-foot piers, as recommended by the Mayor, had made it necessary to revise the plans and estimates. Mr. Tomkins encouraged by President Mitchel's promise that a settlement would be reached and a statement made public with regard to the marginal railroad situation by Jan. 1, as the railroad is the controlling factor in the West Side terminal organization, believes it is certain that the railroad will be built, as it will afford the only means of relieving the congested waterfront conditions.

With regard to the demand of the federal government, he said that had the city been more prompt in formulating a comprehensive plan the government would not have been so arbitrary.

THEATRICAL OF ATHENA CLUB

Members of the Athena Club, of Dorchester, will present their annual private theatrical tonight and tomorrow night at the Dorchester Woman's Clubhouse. The play is "Fun in a Booking Office." REAL ESTATE NEWS

The record of real estate transactions presents a very satisfactory summary for the past week, and compares well as the week's average with past years; although the figures in the following table show a falling off for the week ending Nov. 23, the total number of transactions were an even hundred more than last year, an evidence of more small buyers in the market this year. There were 540 transactions in all, and these were evenly distributed throughout the six days' business, being further evidence of good conditions prevailing in the market.

The files of the Real Esate Exchange show the following entries of record at the Suffolk registry of deeds for the week ending Nov. 23, 1912:

	Transactions	Mtgs	Amt of mtgs
Nov 18	89	40	$95,710
Nov 19	85	38	149,600

BUILDING SUMMARY

In looking over the building summaries published every week, the reader must feel impressed with the continued activity displayed throughout New England, and especially in metropolitan Boston, from which many of its neighbors derive much of the confidence and impetus for initiatory, taking successful form in the new enterprises seen in all directions. These building statistics show a gain of about $30,000,000 beyond a similar period in 1910, which is frequently referred to as the banner year, and yet we have six weeks more time to pile up even greater figures to strengthen and maintain Boston's hold on second place for building operations in the United States, Chicago being first and New York third.

The following statistics of building operations in New England were compiled by the F. W. Dodge Company:

CONTRACTS AWARDED TO NOV. 20

1912	$175,301,000	1906	$113,256,000
1911	159,132,000	1905	99,712,000
1910	146,440,000	1904	89,335,000
1909	147,155,000	1903	96,269,000
1908	96,103,000	1902	108,227,000
1907	119,879,000	1901	106,307,000

NORTH END TRANSACTION

Among the recent transfers of real estate in this section of the city, is the sale by Charles Kolodney to Myer Silverman of three parcels located 2, 4 and 7 Phipps place, near Charter street, comprising 2233 square feet of land assessed for $5600, on which is erected several brick buildings taxed on $6600 additional, making a total value of $12,200.

ROXBURY AND DORCHESTER

A purchase has just been concluded in the Elm Hill district of Roxbury and deeds placed on record which will add considerably to the tax duplicate when all improvements are made as contemplated. William Cohen takes the title to 13 building lots comprising an area of 79,000 square feet of land, on which he intends to construct a number of brick and stone six-apartment houses with modern conveniences. The land is situated on Homestead street, between Humboldt and Elm Hill avnues, and is valued by the assessors at $44,000. Abraham Beal conveyed the title.

The single frame dwelling situated 325-327 Freeport street, between Mill and Everdean streets, Dorchester, has passed into possession of Herbert H. Page, he having purchased the property from the David E. Beasley estate. There is a ground area of 3916 square feet of land taxed on $600 valuation, also included in the total assessment of $3500.

James A. Boyd and others are the new owners of that parcel of vacant land, corner of King and Queen street, containing 7800 square feet, assessed to Frank Holland for $2000.

LEXINGTON AND AUBURNDALE

Winthrop Pattee and John A. Potter, Niles building, report that they have just sold the balance of the Shag Bark farm on Lowell street, East Lexington, consisting of a large modern up-to-date stock barn with 64 tieups for cattle, room for eight horses, large silo, running water and electric lights. There are also four dwelling houses containing from seven to 10 rooms each, with baths, hot water heat, electric lights, in fact, all conveniences. The land, 150 acres in all, is equally divided up in hay land, pasturage and tillage. The purchase price was in excess of the assessment. J. E. Burke of Concord buys for investment from Miss Mary E. Morrill of Brookline.

The same firm report they have sold two lots of land at Brae Burn Plat, Auburndale, located on Brae Burn road, being lots 12 and 13, containing 15,000 square feet of land. A. W. B. Foster of Brookline buys from Robert F. Sanderson, who has contracted to build the purchaser a residence costing about $8000, the foundation already being under way.

W. W. Stall, president of the Factory Exchange, acting in conjunction with Hiram E. Tuttle, secretary, of the Waltham Board of Trade, has leased for a long term of years, one erected building and three additional ones to be at once built by the Waltham Building Association, on its property near the Central Massachusetts railroad at Bacon street, Waltham. Two of these buildings will be occupied by the Non-Corrosive Metal Manufacturing Company and an affiliated concern for casting and finishing bronze and aluminum, and the other two by the E. S. Lincoln Company, Inc., which will at once install an extensive and efficient electrical testing laboratory.

CLEAN JOURNALISM TOPIC FOR TEACHERS

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Editors of all the educational periodicals published in this state and educators from various institutions, are to attend the convention of the New York State Teachers Association, in the hotel Statler, Tuesday. In connection with the meeting Miss Laura Dunbar Hagarty, member of the faculty of Teachers Training School, will conduct an educational journalism section in the banquet hall. Miss Hagarty is organizing this section of the state in the interests of clean journalism.

The visitors will first inspect a display of all the educational periodicals published in New York state, and when they assemble in the banquet hall an address will be given by Dr. Talcott Williams, professor of journalism at Columbia University.

This will be followed by addresses on "The Aims and Uses of the Teachers' Periodical," by W. C. O'Donnell, Jr., editor of the Educational Foundations and Teachers' Magazine, New York; "Forty Years of Educational Journalism," Dr. C. W. Bardeen of Syracuse; and "Agricultural Journalism," by Dr. W. H. Jordan, director of the New York agricultural experiment station at Geneva. General discussions will follow each address.

MAYORS OPPOSE COAL PRICE

LIMA, O.—Mayors of northwestern Ohio have enlisted in a crusade to defeat the alleged combine of coal operators and railroad magnates.

Mayor C. N. Shook of Lima and Mayor Groves of Findlay are behind the project.

SHIPPING NEWS

Early tomorrow morning the Red Star liner Manitou will reach port from Antwerp with 70 cabin passengers and a large general cargo. She was 150 miles east of Boston lightship at 11 a. m. today. Among those on board are: Gordon Stevenson, Miss A. Reynaert, Mrs. Leonie Pype and Josef Pudto.

On the edge of the back channel just below Governor's island, the old steamer Connecticut, recently towed around here from New London to be broken up, is ashore. Tugs attempted to release her today and tow her to East Boston preparatory to breaking her up, but were unable because of the wind to move her. A gale which started last night had gradually increased from 45 miles an hour off Highland light early this morning to 50 miles this noon.

T wharf arrivals today were: Elsie 65,200 pounds, Str. Foam 56,500, Str. Swell 55,500, Str. Crest 31,800, schooners Alice 46,000, Rebecca 35,700, Laverna 42,200, Ellen & Mary 44,000, Mildred E Robinson 22,700, Fannie Belle Atwood 31,000, Lillian 52,000, Regina 37,000, F J O'Hara 4000, Juno 20,300, Conqueror 39,500, Louisa R. Dealers quotations: Steak cod $7.50 per hundredweight, market cod $3.75, haddock $5.25, pollock $2.30, large hake $3.25, medium hake $2, and cusk $3.

Forty-one days from Calcutta, the German steamer Schonfels, Captain Strifling, arrived in port yesterday and tied up at the Boston & Albany docks, East Boston. In the freighter's holds was a large cargo of jute and hides and of holiday goods, which is said to be valued at about $2,000,000. Unfavorable conditions were encountered by the steamer when three days outside of Boston, but the vessel sustained only minor damages. After unloading her freight, the Schonfels will proceed to New York, where the holds will be filled for the return passage.

Three transatlantic freighters are due to arrive in Boston this week with large cargoes. The Hamburg-American steamer Bosnia is due Wednesday from Hamburg, and the Sagamore of the Warren line also is due Wednesday from Liverpool, while the Leyland liner Cambrian from London is expected to dock Thursday.

Announcement is made by the Company General Transatlantique, operating steamers from New York to Havre and Paris, that the steamship Rochambeau, scheduled to sail from New York on Dec. 7, has been withdrawn. The La Savoie sails on Dec. 5 and still has ample accommodations for passengers.

BUILDING BUREAU OFFICIAL SUSPENDED PENDING A HEARING

Suspension of David A. Finnegan, supervisor of gas fittings was made today at the city hall, following the announcement by Arthur G. Everett, the building commissioner, that he had commenced revamping the building laws relative to the construction of tenement houses as recommended by the finance commission.

This action followed a conference with Mayor Fitzgerald and Joseph J. Corbett, corporation counsel, and the mayor said that unless Mr. Finnegan was able to disprove the charges by next Saturday, when there will be a hearing, he will be removed.

The mayor commended the report of the finance commission in the main, although he said that he could not agree to the praise bestowed upon the head of the department, and said that there were a number of cases where he thought there should have been prosecutions.

The changes proposed by the commission and endorsed by the building commissioner are designed to effect a great improvement in the system.

"The public and the workman is to be further protected by through inspection and revised methods of construction. Reorganization of the department is intended to produce a higher plane of adequacy, not only from the standpoint of municipal economy but of superior housing efficiency.

"I have felt for some time that certain changes in the building laws were necessary, and I am pleased to conform with the recommendations of the finance commission in this respect," said Mr. Everett today.

Other recommendations made by the finance commission Mr. Everett says he is not prepared to discuss now. "I shall have to study all of them carefully before I express my views," he said.

The commissioner intimated, however, from a sweeping survey of the recommendations he was generally in accord with them.

Mr. Finnegan today declined to make any statement.

The investigation by the commission has been in progress over a year. Failure of the building and law departments to enforce the laws, according to the report, has resulted in the protection of a class of builders ready to take advantage of the law at any opportunity.

The commission recommends that certain of the provisions of the law for new theaters be applied to old theaters.

After reviewing the work of the various divisions of the department the commission has the following to say about the enforcement of the building law:

"There is a class of builders which, with little or no regard for public safety, takes advantage of every opportunity to save money by the use of low priced, inferior materials and the employment of low-paid, unskilful workmen. Their building operations need constant watching, for they do not hesitate to violate the law whenever they think it profitable to do so.

"The equity courts have not been invoked as often as they should have been, this failure having been due to the fact that the officers of the law department have regarded other parts of their work as more important than building law cases and have felt that the latter class of cases should be attended to only in their spare time.

CIVIC FEDERATION IN CONVENTION

NEW YORK—The National Civic Federation convenes today, with delegates representing nearly every state in the Union in attendance.

The session today will be devoted to the consideration of uniform national legislation affecting railroad employes and the problems arising through the operation of existing workmen's compensation acts.

STATE MAINTENANCE OF ALL ROAD BRIDGES NOW MAY BE URGED

repair and rebuilding bridges within their boundaries.

The question of the expense to the state of continuing such a policy has naturally arisen. This is said to be hard to determine at the present time as the original cost of many bridges as well as their cost of maintenance over a number of years are either missing or so obscurely told in county, city and town reports as to be of little practical use.

At the office of the highway commission, which has taken charge of the Fall River and Newburyport bridges on behalf of the state, it is estimated that $27,000 will be required to maintain and operate these bridges during the coming year. The coming Legislature will be asked to appropriate this sum to the commission.

The last session gave the commission $87,000 for the two bridges but the greater part of this was used to make necessary repairs.

As to what the state will have to expend if it continues to grant the demands of all cities and towns that they be relieved of paying the maintenance charges of certain bridges within their jurisdiction, no definite information could be given by the highway commission. One difficulty is that the acts of 1912 taking over the Fall River and Newburyport bridges give no clue as to what class of bridges may or may not be considered worthy of the state's care. Another is that to which reference was made before, lack of financial statistics as to the bridge costs.

About three years ago the commission made an investigation of the bridges and causeways within the state. In rendering its report to the Legislature of 1910 it classified them into four groups, those coming within the limtis of the state highway, those contiguous to state highways, those likely to become a part of the state highway system in the near future and all the other bridges of 50 feet span or more not coming under these three heads.

Within the limits of the state highway over which the highway commission then had jurisdiction there were found to be 19 bridges, the expense for maintaining which was estimated at but $1400.

By far the greatest number of the bridges considered were in the fourth class. There was 534 or about 79 per cent of the whole. Many of these lie wholly within the confines of flourishing communities and are used almost entirely for local purposes or are so situated that a claim for state support, it is believed, would not be made unless the state should adopt a general policy of bridge maintenance.

The annual maintenance of these bridges was estimated by the commission at $304,235. This is exclusive of the probable replacement charges which in the near future would run into the millions of dollars.

Both bills of the last Legislature placing the care of the Fall River and Newburyport bridges on the state were vetoed by Governor Foss and became acts only when they were passed over his veto by both branches of the Legislature. The bridge in Fall River referred to is the one across the Taunton Great river connecting Fall River and the town of Somerset. The bridge in Newburyport is the so-called Newburyport and Salisbury connecting the two communities.

CHAMBER TO URGE AN AMENDMENT TO AVERY STREET ACT

Sub-committee members of the committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce have been appointed to draft an amendment to the Avery street act which passed the 1912 Legislature and it is expected that the result will be sent to the directors of the chamber with recommendations that it be urged at the incoming session of the General Court.

The chamber has often placed itself on record as favoring the widening of Avery street, but it has been opposed to the method adopted by the Legislature last year. Under the present law the city can assess betterments on property within 125 feet only of the improvement and not on the streets parallel to Avery street. The chamber holds that the new street between Washington and Tremont streets would be such a benefit that the city should be allowed to assess all property which the authorities think benefited.

Estimates prepared by the members of the chamber committee put the value of the property which can be assessed now at $10,523,731, possibly only $5,876,431, while if the field were extended the amount would be $25,760,031. The United Improvement Association is cooperating with the chamber.

RAILROADS TO REPORT ON CARS

WASHINGTON—An order was today issued by the interstate commerce commission requiring a semi-monthly report of the location of freight cars of railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

This order requires each railroad to make a semi-monthly report showing the number of cars of other lines in its possession and the number of its cars in the possession of other lines.

CHAIRMAN HATFIELD REPLIES TO LETTER OF J. H. HAMMOND

An answer to the letter sent by John Hays Hammond of Gloucester, Mass., to Charles E. Hatfield, chairman of the Republican state committee, was made today, in which Mr. Hatfield says that Mr. Hammond evidently has forgotten that the statement of Friday last made over the chairman's name was sent out from Mr. Hammond's house and by his secretary. Mr. Hatfield further says:

"I am sorry, I assure you, that you felt it necessary to threaten with defeat at the primaries next September members of the committee who might not happen to agree with your policy."

In his reply, Mr. Hatfield emphasizes his previous statement that no one is more desirous for the success of the Republican party than himself.

Mr. Hammond said in his letter that the public statement given out by Chairman Hatfield after the conference was not comprehensive enough. Mr. Hammond said that he deemed it his duty to make the letter public, especially since many of the progressive Republican leaders have remained within the party at the last election and cooperated with him in behalf of the Republican party on the assurance from him that he should take an active part in the endeavor to reform the party within party lines. He said:

"The new committee fully recognizes the fact that during recent years the party leaders have lost touch with the rank and file of the Republicans in this state, and that something must be done to 'liberalize' the leadership of the party in order to re-establish closer relations with the rank and file of the party.

"In the frank discussion that took place at our meeting there was no hesitation on the part of the speakers to admit that many Republicans had left the party as a protest against the present 'system,' and that is essential to bring those men back into this party by an emphatic declaration that the new committee will institute reforms along the lines as above indicated, i. e., by advocating progressive measures in party management and policy."

URUGUAY IS AFTER AMERICAN TEACHERS

NEW YORK—Contracts with American teachers for the establishment of a high class educational system are being made by the government of Uruguay through its consul here. Under the guidance of American instructors, engaged at high salaries, institutions are to be started by which Urguay will instruct its students how to develop the natural resources of the country to the highest degree.

The plan includes an institute of fisheries, which will embrace in its laboratory work use of an ocean steamship. The American director of the institute will arrive in this city in a few days to buy a large vessel for the purpose.

The educational plan is only part of a project to develop Uruguary. Millions of dollars are said to be spent and the plan is said to be aided by American and European capitalists.

Jose Richling, who resigned as consul-general for Uruguay in this city a few months ago, will take charge of the colonization work for his government. Emigrants from the United States, Russia, Switzerland and other countries will be sought and Uruguay will pay all expenses of transportation.

Mario L. Gil was sent here to succeed Richling as consul-general, and with Ethelbert Pancorvo, consulate chancellor, began search for Americans to head the new educational work.

CHAMBER COMMITTEE ENLARGED

Three new members have recently been added to the committee on membership of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. They are: Nathan C. Harrison, Ezra C. H. Hartford, Robert A. Leeson, Arthur H. Meserve.

World's Latest News of Finance and Industry

PRICES OF STOCKS TEND LOWER TODAY; TRADING LIGHT

U. S. Steel, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Reading Influenced the List Downward

BOSTON EASIER

Following a rather heavy opening, today's New York stock market rallied somewhat and then sold off. The lowest prices of the session came near the close. Canadian Pacific was an early weak feature and it continued soft throughout the day, in sympathy with the London market. As the morning progressed most of the railroads sagged, with Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and Reading among the leaders. Pullman lost more than a point and Steel common had a weak undertone on account of the possibility of a general strike at the corporation's mills. The eastern railroads directly affected by the award of the board of arbitration of increased wages to engineers were quiet, although at recessions from Saturday's finals.

Former Senator W. A. Clark went down on a revenue cutter to New York quarantine today to meet the North German Lloyd steamship George Washington, on which his family were passengers. Mr. Clark told some interesting facts regarding the copper situation.

"The situation in copper," said he, "is very satisfactory just now with the prospects exceedingly bright, even though it is a little dull at present. If the European war trouble is satisfactorily settled soon the demand for copper will grow in proportion to the present increase in production.

"It may surprise you to know that there are but two months' visible supply of copper in the world today. If that was the case with wheat, instead of copper, it would be mighty serious for the country. Germany, being the largest copper consumer, will lead the demand for copper as soon as the Balkan trouble is settled.

"The situation in the near East may possibly interfere with the situation for a time. The producers of copper are not anxious to see the price of copper increase, for just as sure as copper becomes high so will something be invented or discovered to take the place of copper."

Prices on the Boston exchange did not vary much from Saturday's finals at first but they grew easier. North Butte was somewhat weaker than the rest of the list and Butte & Superior, Granby, Amalgamated and Chino were heavy, but changes otherwise were generally insignificant although the tone was weak. About the only news about North Butte was the announcement that Thomas F. Cole of Duluth will within the next few days become president of the company and will greatly broaden its policy and operations. Mr. Cole will succeed James Hoatson of Calumet, Mich.

LONDON—In the late dealings the securities market weakened on the unstable situation reported in the Balkans, but the bears displayed a cautious policy. Consols drooped and home rails were heavy. American railway shares showed irregular changes, taking the cue from New York.

Russian selling depressed Canadian Pacific, which left off at the lowest, and Russians and Bulgarians turned flat. Greek securities were firm. The downward tendency in mines and coppers was resumed.

De Beers finished 3-16 lower at 20 9-16. Rio Tintos off 1⅞ net at 73¾.

The Paris bourse closed irregular. Berlin was flat.

PLAN $10,000,000 PLANT

CHICAGO, Ill.—A large manufacturing plant is to be erected at South Kedzie and Archer avenues by the Crane Company, founders and manufacturers of machinists' supplies, at an approximate cost of $10,000,000.

THE WEATHER

UNITED STATES WEATHER BUREAU PREDICTIONS FOR BOSTON AND VICINITY: Probably snow this afternoon or tomorrow; Tuesday fair; colder tonight; brisk to high southwest to west winds.

WASHINGTON—The U. S. weather bureau predicts weather today as follows for New England: Snow tonight; Tuesday cloudy; high southwest to west winds.

Rain or snow has fallen during the last 24 hours in the lake region and along the North Atlantic coast. The storm which passed over this section yesterday afternoon is followed by an extended area of high pressure. Frosts were reported this morning as far south as Florida.

MORE ELASTIC LAW FOR WATER LOANS IS PLAN OF COMMITTEE

Henry Ware, of the law firm of Storey, Thorndike, Palmer & Dodge, appeared before the joint special committee on municipal finance today and discussed certain special phases of the law relating to the borrowing of money by municipalities. It had been brought out in previous hearings that if cities and towns had been given special authority to borrow for water purposes and the special act had provided that "not to exceed" any given amount might be borrowed, the city or town was limited to that amount and could not borrow any additional money under the general borrowing authority. Certain municipalities had found it impossible to sell their bonds in excess of the amount authorized by the special acts.

Mr. Ware laid down the general proposition that when any special act named the purposes for which money might be borrowed, and also fixed a limit as to the amount which might be borrowed, the Legislature meant exactly what it said.

GOOD WORD FOR THE INDUSTRIES OF CALIFORNIA

Prosperity of the State Told in the Per Capita Wealth and Growth of Resources of the Banks

PETROLEUM OUTPUT

Defending California against the innuendo that the state is a "good place for capital to keep out of," the president of one of the leading Pacific coast industries says:

"The subject is one which cannot be treated satisfactorily in a brief way, but a few facts serve to show that the prosperity of California continues and that its basis is substantial.

"In the decade to 1910 California's population increased by 60 per cent, and from the twenty-third position among states of the Union in 1910 it advanced to twelfth. Per capita wealth, reached by dividing true value of taxable property by population, was: 1900, $1356; 1910, $1663; 1911, $1750.

"Resources of 705 state and national banks in 11 months to June 7, 1911, increased $72,500,000, or 7 per cent; number of depositors increased by 35,000, or 5 per cent. While clearings of the country lost 2½ per cent in 1911, San Francisco gained 4½ per cent. San Francisco is now sixth among clearing houses cities.

"In matter of net earnings of corporations, California ranks sixth in Union.

"Value of San Francisco's exports by sea in 1911 was $43,427,000; in 1910, $35,773,000; in 1909, $30,431,000. Annual valuations of merchandise traffic between San Francisco and foreign countries, Atlantic states and non-contiguous territory, was, 1911, $78,693,000; in 1910, $65,008,000; 1909, $57,221,000.

"Value of California's mineral output in 1910 was $88,419,000; in 1909, $83,000,000, it being the first in varieties and fifth in value, surpasseed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and West Virginia by reason of their coal and iron.

"In 1910, when the country produced 64 per cent of world's petroleum output, California was largest contributor with 81,000,000 barrels, or 22 per cent of world supply. California oil has paid $60,000,000 in dividends during the last 20 years and there is no diminution of supply in sight. Proved oil lands will yield $2,000,000,000 in next 50 years, surpassing all gold production to date by $1,400,000,000.

"From 1904 to 1909 number of manufacturing establishments increased 12 per cent, capital invested therein 90 per cent and value of products 44 per cent. With abundance of oil and 9,000,000 horsepower harnessable in its streams, it is well provided for what the industrial future may bring forth.

"Value of products of its orchards, vineyards, gardens, farms and forests is already over $500,000,000 mark. Acreage devoted to agriculture is constantly increasing, with help of irrigation which has been applied to 3,000,000 acres. There are 88,000 farms in the state, a gain of 21 per cent for the decade.

"In July 2737 new registrations of motor vehicles were entered in California, making a total of 82,500, a number only exceeded by the state of New York. On June 30, 1912, 280,000 children were attending school, an increase over previous year of 17,000.

"And last, but not least, California's citizens have contributed $25,000,000 already for the Panama-Pacific exposition."

STRIKERS TIE UP STEEL PLANTS

PITTSBURGH—Striking trainmen of the Homestead, Thompson and Carnegie Steel Company plants, who walked out on Saturday, met Sunday and voted to press their demand for higher wages.

For the first time in three years work in the Edgar Thompson plant is practically at a standstill. It is said that only 400 out of 3000 night workmen are on duty.

At the Homestead plant workmen reported at 7 o'clock last night. A large number of these men, it is said, were told to go home, as there was no material with which to work.

The Banks of today are serving the public better than ever before, which is especially true in the matter of investments. This fact was very forcibly illustrated recently by a circular letter issued by one of the largest banks in the country, wherein they offered for sale and advised the purchase of a certain issue of bonds. The investor is beginning to realize the importance of sound advice in the matter of investments, and he is looking to the banks as the natural place to obtain an honest and unbiased opinion. The Mutual National Bank is always pleased to advise with prospective investors in regard to investments.

THE GRAIN MARKET

Wheat—The market was under the influence of the war situation this morning. There was enough uncertainty to bring about an advance and a good deal of covering. The rumor that the Dardanelles was closed or would be closed and the strength of the English markets caused a good deal of covering. Toward midday a rumor that a contest had already occurred between the Austrian and Servian troops still further added to the apprehension. The fact that the British consols closed only a sixteenth lower for the day was considered by conservative interests as indicating limited apprehension in important financial circles.

Corn—The market was moderately active and firmer. Prices were influenced by the strength in wheat and also by the fact that the country is still not offering corn freely, which tends to put the position of spot corn in a rather uncertain position, and is beginning to make the December delivery a debatable possibility.

Oats—Prices were very steady, with a moderate trading for spot interests and a little buying by commission houses. The demand was not heavy, but the moderate movement gives a decided undertone of steadiness to the market.

TREE WITH A HISTORY

FRANKFORT, Ky.—An interesting bit of history is attached to the sugar maple tree from Garrard county, which was planted in the arboretum on the state Capitol grounds. It was grown on a farm in Garrard county, in which three famous Kentucky governors resided. They were Governors Letcher, Owsley and William O. Bradley. The tree was planted by Representative James Farra, of Lancaster.

EXTRA PAYMENT ON NEVADA

The Nevada Consolidated Copper Company has declared the usual quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share and an extra dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 6.

It is stated that the extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the stock is declared from the surplus account and in this respect should be considered as a return of principal.

MUCH SPECULATION OVER FUTURE OF AMERICAN WOOLEN

There continues to be much speculation over the future of American Woolen mill shares now that the Democrats are back in power—so much so that the adverse side is apparently being overdiscounted. But nothing indicates that the entire New England woolen industry is going to smash. On the contrary, the best advices obtainable from Washington are that the Democrats on the eve of outlining a definite tariff revision program are more open-minded than for many months. Congressman Underwood, who will steer the course of legislation, is understood to have intimated that "all will be heard" and that no industry will be wantonly sacrificed.

There is ample reason for believing that the Democrats are anxious to dissipate the twin notions that they are unfit to govern and that business depression has always followed their accession to power.

As for American Woolen preferred the stock is now selling at the lowest figure since the panic, notwithstanding the fact that the present business of the company is of boom-time proportions and is actually the best in its history. The 34 mills were never busier and the three big units, the Wood, Ayer and Washington mills, are running full tilt. Since late September the orders have been rolling in in increasing volume.

Under these conditions American Woolen preferred at $80 seems an anomaly. It has today net quick assets alone—available say within 60 days—of $70 a share. This means that a $10 share equity or a total $4,000,000 is the value put upon all of the American Woolen physical properties. This $4,000,000 as a matter of fact is about the worth of the American Woolen land and tenements alone, so that the big Wood and Fulton mills and all the others are given no value at all. Four million dollars, as a matter of fact, is not half the value of the Wood worsted mill, the biggest of its kind in the world.

For a stock, which has regularly earned its dividend in all but one of 14 years—and that a panic year when valuations made were ultra-conservative—American Woolen preferred would seem to have discounted considerable adversity. Last year with only mediocre business 8.06 per cent was shown on the $40,000,000 preferred and this year despite the strike should show a substantial betterment in earning power. The regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent, on the fifty-fifth consecutive declaration, will be declared as usual about Dec. 15.

FOOD COSTS TO BE CUT

PHILADELPHIA—The United States government, through the medium of a special commissary at the Philadelphia navy yard, will offer to naval officers and enlisted men provisions and foodstuffs at almost wholesale prices. The convenience that the new commissary will afford the families of the naval officers in the yard is a factor that is pleasing them almost as much as the promisemd reduction in prices.

CANAL FIRM TO ISSUE BONDS

OTTAWA, Ont.—The Montreal, Ottawa & Georgian Bay Canal Company will apply to Parliament for alterations in its charter to permit it to issue bonds to the extent of $175,000,000, and extending the time for the construction of the canal.

7% FOR SMALL INVESTORS

Investors having $1000.00 or $500.00 each can take up part of a small special issue of tax-exempt preferred stock of a well-established Massachusetts corporation whose business has doubled twice in the past ten years and whose future prospects are even brighter. Its product is sold throughout the country, and enjoys an enviable reputation.

The stock is a seven per cent cumulative stock ($100 per share), thoroughly safeguarded, preferred both as to dividends and in distribution of assets, pays dividends quarterly, and has never skipped a dividend. This issue will be retired in five years at 105. The issue is not large enough to handle by means of expensive prospectuses and brokerage fees, and the saving of these costs will be given to the purchaser as above described, making this investment particularly desirable for those who are under the necessity of getting as large a return as possible.

This is a rare chance for an investor of small means to enjoy returns such as are usually enjoyed only by large investors. For full particulars address our attorney.

VIRGINIA RAILWAY & POWER CO. OPERATIONS SATISFACTORY

Surplus for Preferred Dividends More Than One Per Cent Larger Than for Previous Fiscal Period — Some Increase in Cost of Operations

Generally satisfactory operating results were achieved by the Virginia Railway & Power Company during the fiscal year ended June 30 last. The company earned a surplus over all charges and preferred stock dividends equal to 2.88 per cent on its outstanding common stock, as compared with 2.17 per cent in the year previous. To put it differently, the company earned a surplus available for dividends equal to 9.48 per cent on the outstanding preferred stock, as compared with 8.36 per cent in the previous year. The foregoing operating results would seem to indicate that the showing made by the Virginia company proves the wisdom of merging the property with the Norfolk & Portsmouth Traction system.

During the fiscal year ended June 30 last, the company's passenger business expanded about $102,000 over the previous year, while the total railway revenues were increased by about $110,000. Receipts from sale of electric energy and gas rose about $152,000, while the total operating revenues increased about $222,000.

Maintenance allowances of the company for the last fiscal period were considerable more liberal than in the year previous and there was also some increase in transportation costs. Total operating expenses of the railway department increased about $51,000 and consumed about 61 per cent of gross revenues of this department. Cost of production of gas and power for the year was increased by about $20,000, while the total cost of operation of the light and power and gas department was increased by about $44,000 and consumed 40.03 per cent of gross revenues of this department. The total operating expenses of the system for the fiscal year were increased by only $81,227, and the ratio of the same to gross revenues was 53.15 per cent.

The appended table shows some of the more important operating expense statistics for the last fiscal period in comparison with the previous year and the ratio of each item to gross revenues:

During the last fiscal period there was a large increase in the number of passengers carried by the railway lines of the Virginia Railway & Power Company, the total gain having been about 2,500,000, including transfers used. The actual number of revenue passenger carried was greater by 2,679,140, but there was a reduction of 168,493 in the number of transfers issued, so that the net increase for the year was the first-mentioned amount. The percentage of passengers using transfers in the last fiscal period was somewhat less than in the previous year. Average fares received per passenger, however, were exactly the same as in 1911.

Following are some of the important passenger traffic statistics for the last fiscal period in comparison with the previous year:

	1912	Increase

Gas department operations for the year indicate an increase in total gas sold of more than 75,200,000 cubic feet. Total power generated for the year was increased over the previous year by about 5,750,000 kilo-watt hours, there having been an increase in the amount consumed by the railways of about 3,800,000 and 1,800,000 kilo-watt hours increase in that used for electric purposes.

Following are the light and power and ga statistics for the year in comparison with the previous year:

Revenues of the light and power department in Richmond were affected to some extent by the fact that the city of Richmond constructed its own plant for street and municipal lighting, which began operation on Dec. 30, 1910, and the street arc lighting by the Virginia Railway & Power Co. was discontinued on Dec. 5, 1911.

It is explained that the slight increase in conducting transportation from 32.92 per cent, in 1911, to 32.23 per cent in 1912, was due to the increased charge for depreciation and to the fact that the wages of conductors and motormen on the Richmond, Petersburg and Interurban divisions were increased on Jan. 1, 1911, the increase being only six months of the 1911 fiscal year, as against 12 months of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1912.

The annual report of the company states that the results obtained since the Norfolk & Portsmouth properties were asquired have been entirely satisfactory. A number of economies have already been effected and operating conditions improved. It is expected that still further economies will be made in the future, as all properties have been maintained in a high state of operating efficiency.

STABILITY OF THE ELECTRICAL TRADE MORE PRONOUNCED

Success of the Industry No Longer Dependent Upon "Big" Individual Orders as Was Once the Case

STRIKING FIGURES

A certain test of the increasing stability of the electrical industry of the United States is the rapid multiplication in the number of orders received by the three great electrical manufacturing companies in their latest fiscal year. In its early days the business of General Electric and Westinghouse Electric was peculiarly dependent upon a few "big" orders scattered throughout the year. These represented development work which could only be undertaken in periods of high financial credit and easy money. Often the loss of two or three "big" orders meant the difference between a good and a bad year for either one of these two manufacturing concerns.

Today General Electric and to almost as great a degree Westinghouse Electric are independent of the large order customer. They sell to a legion of customers and in small individual orders. For instance, in its late year General Electric billed 388,520 individual orders, an average of $181 per order. In 1907 orders totaled only 235,028 and the average size of orders was $255, an increase of 65 per cent in number and 29 per cent decrease in size during the five years.

Westinghouse figures tell an even more emphatic story partly for the reason that Westinghouse within the last three years has been going in more and more for small size electrical products, such as fans, irons, heating utensils. In the five years since 1907 number of orders of Westinghouse Electric has increased 55.6 per cent, while the size of the individual order has dropped from $366 to $213, a shrinkage of 41.8 per cent. Nothing more conclusive than this could be stated to prove that the electrical business is coming closer to the ultimate consumer. It is no longer a case of selling a big turbine to Boston Elevated or a thousand motors to Brooklyn Rapid Transit. All this business has been retained, but it is booked in a larger number of smaller orders and with it has also come a big inrush demand from the consuming public, largely fostered by the skilful advertising of central stations and the popular wilingness to get the benefit of labor-saving devices made possible through the wonder of applied electricity.

But the detailed figures themselves are so new and so striking that they will stand careful examination by those who may not have realized how important is this phase of the electrical business. The figures follow:

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC

	March 31, 1912	March 31, 1907	% inc
Sales billed	$34,196,446	$33,026,240	3.5

*Decrease.

Western Electric tells the same general story. The size of its individual order is necessarily small because its apparatus is relatively little in size and cost. But a 32.7 per cent decrease in the size of the individual order in five years shows what Western Electric has gained through establishing a selling field among 8000 independent telephone companies in the United States. It also shows how popular have become some of the special devices of Western Electric such as its inter-phone sets, annunciators, private lines and the like.

CURRENT PRICES OF MATERIALS USED IN BUILDING

Cypress Lumber in Good Demand, With Many Unfilled Orders in Some Instances

HARDWOODS QUOTED

Following are prices at which retailers can buy lumber of the wholesale trade. They refer to lumber 8 to 20 feet in length. For every two feet or fraction of two feet over 20 feet $1 is supposed to be added.

SPRUCE LUMBER

Railroad shipments:

Frames, 8-inch and under, $26; 9-inch, $27; 10-inch, $28; 11 or 12-inch, $29.

Random, 2x4, $22@22.50; 2x3, $21.50@22; 2x5, 2x6, 2x7, $21@21.50; 2x8, $23@23.50; 2x10, $24.50@25; 2x12, $25@25.50.

Boards—Spruce cov. 5 and up, $21.50@22; matched spruce, $23.50@24; hemlock, 12, 14, 16-foot, $23@23.50; bundled furring, clipped to lengths, $22.

SHINGLES, LATHS, CLAPBOARDS

Laths, spruce—1⅝-inch, $4.50; 1½-inch, $4@4.10.

Clapboards—Spruce, 4 feet extras, $50@52; clears, $48@50.

On the books of many of the wholesale houses dealing in cypress are said to be a good many unfilled orders, some of them given at a more or less remote date. The current demand is very fair and the prices given below are those at which the bulk of the business passing is being transacted. Every now and then there are orders placed at less for which it is hard to account.

Prices for flooring are for 1x4:

Arkansas and long leaf pine, portion B and better, ¾x3¼, $30.50@32.50; flooring edge grain A, $43.75@45.25; B, $41.25@43; C, $35.25@37.50; A, $33.25@34; B, $32.25@33.25.

N. C. pine, edge rough, 4-4 under 12-inch, $33.25; partition No. 1 13-16x3½, $33@33.50; roofers, 6-inch, $21.50@22; roofers, 8-inch, $22.50@23.

Cypress, 1s and 2s, 1-inch, $48@49; 1¼, 1½-inch, $49@50.50; 2-inch, $53.75@54.25; 3-inch $62@63; No. 1 shop, 1-inch, $30.50@32; 1¼, 1½-inch, $37@38; 2-inch, $40.75@41.25.

Barn boards: 10-inch D. & M. No. 1, $41; 8-inch D. & M. No. 1, $39; 8-inch D. & M. No. 2, $34; 10-inch D. & M. No. 2, $35.50.

DIVIDENDS

W. S. Barstow & Co. Inc. has declared a semi annual dividend of 5 per cent payable Dec. 2 to stockholders of record Nov. 30.

The Utah Copper Company has declared a dividend for the quarter of 75 cents a share, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 6.

The Dominion Bank has declared a bonus of 2 per cent in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, payable Jan. 2.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent, payable Jan. 1 to holders of record Dec. 9.

The directors of the York Manufacturing Company have declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $3, payable Dec. 2 to stock of record Nov. 26.

The Wettlaufer Lorraine Silver Mines Company, Ltd., has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent and an extra dividend of 2½ per cent.

The Tonopah Belmont Development Company has declared the usual quarterly dividend of 25 per cent, payable Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 14.

The directors of the Tennessee Railway, Light & Power Co. have declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable Dec. 2 to stockholders of record Nov. 16.

A dividend of 12½ cents a share has been declared by Nevada Douglas, payable Feb. 1, books closing Jan. 10. This is the first dividend paid by any of the mines in the Errington or Mason valley districts, and amounts to $125,000. There is outstanding $300,000 convertible bonds at $3.

AMERICAN LINSEED COMPANY'S RATHER CHECKERED CAREER

WIDE FLUCTUATIONS

NEW YORK—Ever since American Linseed began to issue annual reports, its earnings have been decreasing. For the first year for which it reported, that ending July 31, 1909, the net earnings were $979,600 and the per cent earned on the preferred was 5.86 per cent; for 1910, $720,952 was earned, equal to 4.31 per cent on the preferred, and for 1911, $434,611 was reported which showed 2.6 per cent on the preferred. Then the fiscal year was changed to end Sept. 30 as the flax crop is maturing later each year which affects the marketing and delivery of seed and it seemed wise to take the yearly inventory when prices were likely to be the lowest. For the 14 months which ended with September, the report shows that expenses exceeded receipts by $379,210, and interest and depreciation being nearly $100,000, the deficit for the period was $478,300.

In previous years the company has suffered from the rise in the price of flaxseed, but this year it suffered from the decline in values, as its largest loss was $367,389 on inventory of seed and linseed oil. It also lost $306,229 from shrinkage in the weight of seed through the excessive moisture which it contained, a condition unknown in past years. It further lost $18,461 from the unavoidable bursting of one of its large oil storage tanks. These three losses total nearly $700,000, which is about $225,000 more than the amount of the deficit.

Although operations resulted in a deficit the business of the year was increased 20 per cent and overhead expenses were reduced $40,000. Extraordinary repairs were also made in order to put the plants into modern condition, as competition has become very sharp in the linseed oil business and as American Linseed does not control a majority of the trade, which amounts to about 50,000,000 gallons a year, it has to meet all prices. The company expects to crush more flaxseed during the current year at a less cost than in any previous year. The flaxseed crop is larger than for several years and prices of raw material are lower, which always means a larger business for American Linseed.

This year for the first time the American Linseed has separated its inventory from its plants, equipment and goodwill account so that working capital can be ascertained. It consists of inventories of $2,135,984, accounts receivable of $672,215, cash and cash items of $1,647,250 and notes receivable of $45,118, making a total of cash assets of $4,500,567 against which stands only $31,951 of accounts payable. The bonded debt is unchanged at $315,000.

The authorized capital of American Linseed is $33,500,000 equally divided between 7 per cent non-cumulative preferred and common of which $16,723,648 preferred and $16,722,030 common have been issued and are outstanding. No dividends have been paid on the preferred since 1900 and it is understood that none will be paid until a strong working capital is accumulated and it does not seem as though $4,500,000 was a large working capital for a $33,500,000 company. The profit and loss surplus is $767,969, or less than 5 per cent on the preferred stock.

The preferred stock is selling around 35 and the common around 14, or about $8,000,000 for the property of which over $4,000,000 is working capital less the bonds. The record price for the preferred is 66 made in 1901 and the record price for the common is 30¾ made in the same year. The fluctuations of the stocks in recent years have been as follows:

	Preferred High	Preferred Low	Common High	Common Low
1903	48½	23½	19⅜	5
1904	43¾	22½	20⅝	6⅜
1905	48⅝	30	23⅛	15⅛
1906	53⅞	35	29¼	16⅜
1907	36	10½	19¼	6⅜
1908	30¼	17	17½	5⅞
1910	47¾	29	20	12
1911	34½	26⅜	12⅜	8
1912	43	30	17⅞	9¼

On account of the wide fluctuations stockholders who have not received dividends have been able to secure larger returns through following the rise and fall if they have been so minded. The average annual fluctuation in the preferred has been 18 points and in the common 10 points.

THE SITUATION AT BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM—There has been no change in the southern iron market the past 10 days. Business has been light. Consumers are well provided for into first quarter of next year, and as operators are booked full into the same period, buying necessarily has become restricted to immediate needs. For some fill-in necessities as high as $15 for spot has been paid, while a lot of 1500 to 2000 tons for first quarter sold at $14.50.

Average sales have been in 100 to 300-ton lots and the average price $14.50.

PACIFIC GAS & ELECTRIC CO. IS STEADILY GAINING GROUND

Expected That New Development Will Add to Earnings Considerably—Comparative Statement of Revenues Shows How Company Has Been Increasing Business

According to the pamphlet report of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. covering operations for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1911, the company is gaining ground steadily with respect to earnings. It is confidently expected that the new development which is now in course of completion will very materially add to revenues, so that indications for the future are for increased earnings. It will be recalled that the latest monthly returns that have been published are for August and the eight months ended Aug. 31 last. These show a satisfactory gain over a year ago and those best informed regarding affairs of the property maintain that the year 1912 will be a banner one in the history of the property.

For the calendar year 1911 the company earned a little over 5¼ per cent of its outstanding common stock, as compared with a little less than 5½ per cent in the previous year. Gross and net earnings for the 12 months were increased by a very substantial amount, but charges rose nearly $250,000 and sinking fund and amortization of bond discount and other incidental expenses were greater by about $62,200, so that the surplus available for dividends for the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1911, was approximately $49,000 smaller than in 1910.

Comparative statement of earnings for the past five years shows that the company has been increasing its business steadily each year until the record totals for 1911 were shown. Last year the company expended the most liberal amounts for maintenance in its history, and the balance over interest charges, before deduction of sinking fund and other miscellaneous charges, was also the largest on record:

1911	$14,604,609	$1,398,404	$6,390,537	$3,136,404
1910	14,044,596	1,243,859	6,123,255	3,116,999
1909	13,491,288	1,210,506	5,954,712	2,971,191
1908	12,657,305	1,210,492	5,864,586	2,842,864
1907	11,342,140	1,057,163	5,115911	2,261,647

At the close of 1911 the Pacific Gas & Electric was not strong in the matter of working capital. Since that time, however, the company has disposed of a considerable amount of bonds and undoubtedly today its financial position is satisfactory. It is safe to make this assertion, because the recent sale of $5,000,000 additional bonds to J. P. Morgan & Co. was passed on by the state railroad commission of California. It will be recalled that the commission criticized the condition of the company somewhat in granting permission for the new issue of stock, but took into consideration the excellent outlook for earnings in the future as a result of the improvements that are to be paid for with proceeds from the bond sale.

On Dec. 31, 1911, the company's current assets totaled about $4,860,000, and current liabilities $5,632,000, while the profit and loss surplus was in the neighborhood of $6,000,000. There was about $500,000 cash on hand on the date mentioned. The annual report contains many interesting details regarding the market developments of the company during the past five years. It is shown that during this time considerable growth has been enjoyed in various departments which accounts for the liberal gain in earnings. The service of the company now extends to 30 counties of Central California with an area of 37,755 square miles, and a population, at the 1910 census, of 1,325,637.

The appended table affords a pretty good idea of the development and growth that has been enjoyed since 1906:

Officials of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company are looking forward to a large influx of population following the opening of the Panama canal and plans are in progress for building additions to the hydro-electric plants, aggregating 76,000 k. w., or 101,876 h. p., in connection with a dam at Lake Spaulding, having a capacity in addition to the present water storage of 4,000,000 cubic feet, of 36,000,000,000 gallons, which after utilization for power purposes will add to the company's irrigating capacity of 20,000 acres of land in Placer county. During the last fiscal year the company expended $3,679, 791 for additons and betterments alone.

INITIAL DIVIDEND ON CALIFORNIA OIL STOCK IS TO COME

NEW YORK—Following soon after the listing of the common and preferred stock of the California Petroleum Corporation comes the news that it is to start dividend next month on the common at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.

The outstanding $12,000,000 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred calls for $840,000, and a 4 per cent common stock dividend will require $540,000 per annum, so that by the end of the current year California Petroleum Corporation should be paying at the rate of $1,380,000 per annum to its stockholders. The company's October report showed net earnings of $250,000, or at the rate of 10 per cent on both preferred and common stocks. The preferred stock, in addition to its prior lien over common stock, shares ecually with the latter in dividend after it has paid 7 per cent and the common has paid 7 per cent in any one year.

The preferred stock in event of involuntary liquidation is redeemable at 120 within three years from date of issue on 40 days' notice. For the purpose of creating a fund for the purchase or redemption of preferred stock at not above 120, with accrued dividends, or redemption of bonds, beginning in January, 1915, an amount equal to 5 cents for each barrel of petroleum produced and sold during the preceding year will be set aside from net earnings each year. As this obligation is cumulative no dividends can be paid on the common stocks as long as any arrearage exists.

The properties of the California Petroleum Corporation are situated in the Coalinga, Midway, McKittrick, Lost Hills, Sunset and Los Angeles districts in California. It is estimated that the contents of these oil lands amount to a minimum of 10,000,000,000 barrels and a maximum of 24,000,000,000 barrels. The corporation has 103 producing oil wells with a daily production capacity of 15,400 barrels a day, and borings indicate that the producing wells can be increased to in excess of 750, when in the judgment of the management, such an increase in production is necessary.

SOUTH'S EDUCATORS TO MEET

JACKSON, Miss.—Several of Mississippi's leading educators are on the program for the annual meeting of the Southern Educational Association, to be held at Nashville on Nov. 28, lasting three days.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER HAVING A VERY GOOD YEAR

NEW YORK—The International Paper Company is expected to show the largest gross and net increase in earnings for the year ending Dec. 31 in any year since 1905.

The directors expects that the net will total about $3,000,000. The question of dividends on the preferred is being discussed by the directors, but as yet no final decision has been reached as to the rate to be declared at the December meeting.

Interests allied with International Paper say no definite reason can be assigned for the recent decline in the securities. They intimate that certain interests were buyers of the preferred last June, with expectation that the dividend would be raised to 4 per cent at the September meeting. As the usual didivend was declared, there has been considerable liquidation since.

International Paper is now producing about 1750 tons a day. The production varies from 1746 to 1777 tons. Of this 80 per cent is newsprint. The remainder is tag paper, box paper and supplement paper. The company is selling its product at $2.25 per 100 pounds and finds the market extremely favorable, so that its entire output is disposed of. Beginning 1913, the company will begin supplying newsprint on several new contracts, one of which calls for 40 tons of newsprint per day.

BILL FOR PANAMA NATIONAL BANK

PANAMA—A bill to establish a national bank was presented in the National Assembly on Saturday. It is proposed to invest this institution with the supervision and collection of all government duties and taxes.

American capitalists, it is reported, are interested in the project.

BOND ITEMS

The treasurer of Littleton, Mass., will receive bids until 1 p. m., Nov. 29, for $10,000 4 per cent water bonds, dated April 1, 1912, and maturing $500 annually 1913-1932, inclusive.

The treasurer of Middleton, Conn., will receive bids until 3 p. m. December 2, for a temporary loan of $50,000 in anticipation of taxes, maturing June 4, 1913.

RIVET PRICES ADVANCED

PITTSBURGH — Local steel rivet makers have advanced the price $4 per ton, making the new price $3.05 per 100 pounds.

NOTES OF INTEREST FROM THE MINES

President Thomas F. Cole of the North Butte has completed arrangements to begin work on property of the new Rainbow Development Company. He has confirmed reports of a new strike on the 2000 level of the Adirondack of four feet of 10 per cent copper ore. The entire product of the North Butte has been averaging higher in copper lately.

The Butte-Balaklava Company has just opened up four feet of ore averaging better than 8 per cent copper on the 800-foot level of a vein south of the vein in dispute with the Anaconda company. The first shipment of two cars will be made tomorrow and with further opening of the ore body regular shipments will be made. The vein is wide and persistent and a considerable tonnage of ore is in sight.

The local office of the South Lake Mining Company is in receipt of the following advices from Supt. R. M. Edwards who is now at the property:

"South Lake shaft has cut an amygdaloid at a depth of 110 feet which is probably the Evergreen lode.

Old Dominion's November production, according to present indications will be over 3,000,000 pounds of blister copper, including copper recovered from ores sent outside, which will be the record high production for the present year, and, in fact, the highest monthly output since August of 1909. Earnings on this production, conservatively estimated, should total at least $200,000 and perhaps more, as costs per pound of copper produced usually decrease with the increase in production."

UNITED LIGHT AND RAILWAYS

NEWS BY CABLE AND CORRESPONDENCE

LONDON HEARS OF ELECTION

The American public are accustomed to think that the London daily newspapers use only the most conservative methods in displaying and announcing their news. It appears, however, that the recent election in the United States was made the subject of some very striking bulletins by the London press.

Way in which London evening papers set forth in their placards the news of Wilson victory in United States presidential election

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The fight waged for the presidency of the United States by Mr. Taft, Mr. Roosevelt and Dr. Wilson has been watched with interest in London. The final result of the election was hurried on to the newspaper placards, and boys cried the papers with the news of Dr. Wilson's victory or Roosevelt's complete defeat, according to the bias of the paper. The Pall Mall Gazette, the property of Mr. Astor, printed "Poor old Taft" on its placard, whilst Lord Northcliffe's paper, the Evening News, announced the fact that Taft was "beaten to a frazzle."

REPLIES OF POWERS RECEIVED IN FRANCE

PARIS, France—The utmost interest is being taken in the replies to the proposal made by M. Poincare with respect to the intervention of the powers.

With regard to the declaration of desinteressement, it is understood that the replies received from Austria-Hungary and Germany are identical. They are said to have entirely ignored the question of territorial desinteressement and to have declared that the only basis upon which the powers can intervene would be at the request of at least one of the belligerents. The opinion expressed in some quarters is that although Turkey has made an appeal to the powers, this appeal amounts more to a request for intervention than a desire that the powers should mediate.

In the meantime, Rifaat Pasha, the Turkish ambassador in Paris, has renewed his request to M. Poincare by handing him an official note from his government requesting mediation by the great powers with a view to bringing about an immediate cessation of hostilities. M. Poincare at once communicated with all the powers, declaring that France was ready to act in concert with them with regard to the Turkish question.

ITALY'S FOREIGN MINISTER WELCOMED IN BERLIN

(Special to the Monitor)

BERLIN, Germany—The Italian foreign minister, Marquis di San Giuliano, spent two days in Berlin recently. Everything possible was done to honor the representative of the Italian government in the endeavor to strengthen the ties of the triple alliance.

The minister on his visit to Potsdam, where he dined with the Kaiser, was decorated by his majesty with the Black Eagle order, and on the following day he visited the Kaiserin before attending the big dinner given for him by the imperial chancellor.

The revulsion of public feeling against Italy has not escaped the notice of the marquis, who put several leading questions to the members of the Italian colony invited to meet him. He particularly wished to know whether the change in German feeling had taken place before or after the conclusion of the Turko-Italian war, and learned that the former was the case. Marquis di San Giuliano returned direct to Rome and did not visit Vienna as was at first intended.

POWERS MAY CONFER ON BALKAN SETTLEMENT

(Special to the Monitor)

GENEVA, Switzerland — The Swiss newspapers are unanimous in declaring that the Swiss government has been approached by the great powers desiring to hold an international conference in Switzerland on the conclusion of peace in the Balkans. Berne or Zurich is mentioned as being eminently suited for a meeting place. A special cabinet meeting has been convened at Berne to discuss the question, and no doubt is expressed that a favorable decision will be arrived at. Official confirmation of these reports is expected to be soon forthcoming.

BONAR LAW ROUSES WORKERS BY ADDRESS IN LIVERPOOL

(Special to the Monitor)

LIVERPOOL—When Bonar Law addressed the great mass meeting organized by the Workingmen's Conservative Association at Liverpool recently, he was, as Unionist leader, very much "in his own country and amongst his own people" and he knew it.

Whether he spoke as to the lessons to be learned as to the danger of inefficiency from the war in the near east, or pointed to the failure of the government to redeem its "pledge of honor" to set up another second chamber, or referred with scorn to the "first fruit of single chamber government, the insurance act," or waged a war of words with the full force of his undoubted controversial energy against that anathema maranatha par excellence of the Unionist, the home rule bill, the result was always the same, enthusiasm everywhere, round after round of cheering and the most fervent expressions of attachment to the cause of Unionism.

To say that there was nothing new in what he said on any of the questions touched upon is not in any way to detract from a really able speech. Home rule is worn threadbare, the insurance act is too illimitable to be intelligently discussed within the limits of many days, to say nothing of minutes, "the pledge of honor" is and can be little more than a party cross-fire of "You did!" and "I didn't!" and if the question of preparedness for war is once again claiming the attention of the country there is little to be gained by making it a party question.

The audience, however, did not want argument or even new facts, it wanted to be "inspired." It wanted the cut and thrust of party warfare. It remembered the Ulster convention, the scenes of "the landing of the English speakers" at Liverpool on that Sunday morning some six weeks ago, and when Mr. Law with the true politician's grip of his audience concluded his speech with the simple but all sufficient phrase, "England will never permit Ulster to be coerced," the audience leapt to its feet and cheered again and again.

NATIONALIST PAPER STOPPED

(Special to the Monitor)

CAIRO, Egypt—The Nationalist organ, El Alam, has been again suppressed, as a result this time of a violent article by Farid Bey, attacking Kiamil Pasha, the Turkish grand vizier, and accusing him of being an Anglophile and of being responsible for the Turkish defeats. The disappearance of the paper leaves the Nationalist party without an organ.

AUSTRALIAN CRUISER ENDS TEST

(Special to the Monitor)

GLASGOW, Scotland—The Australian ship Melbourne, built by Messrs. Cammell, Laird & Co. (Ltd.), has completed a series of full power speed and other trials on the Clyde with very satisfactory results. The Melbourne is the first cruiser for the Australian navy to complete her trials.

PETER MAKOUSHIN FOUNDS SIBERIAN FREE UNIVERSITY

Land Where Eighty Per Cent Are Illiterate Is Being Enlightened

(Special to the Monitor)

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia—On the principle set forth by the great Russian chemist Mendeleieff, "that all grades of instruction should be made accessible to the masses," an institution has been opened in Tomsk which aims at the free education of the people of Siberia.

Peter Makoushin is the founder of this people's university, or hall of science as it is to be known, in which elementary and secondary education, as well as that usually given at universities, will be free of charge to all indiscriminately. No regard is to be paid either to the social standing, the religion, or the economic position of the students. Even the half-wild native of Siberia will not be excluded.

The institution will contain a free library, special evening classes and a museum of practical knowledge. Illiteracy prevails in Siberia to the extent of 80 per cent of the population, and the Makoushin institution will prove a center of civilization and enlightenment to that vast country.

CHANNEL TUNNEL PROJECT FAVORED AS NATIONAL NEED

Sir A. Conan Doyle Urges Big Tube to Insure Supply of Food

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—At the inaugural dinner of the Franco-British Travel Union held recently, Sir A. Conan Doyle spoke of the Channel tunnel, its urgency and its importance in the solution of the problem of food supplies for the United Kingdom. In his opinion the building of the tunnel was a matter of national necessity and should be pressed forward at once to completion.

It should be a government undertaking, and he foresaw that it might prove as good a national investment as the Suez Canal shares. In peace the tunnel would prove its use by causing an enormous inflow of French visitors into London, and in war time it would be a complete insurance against lack of food supplies, for by its means all food stuffs from the south of Europe would reach the United Kingdom in safety.

PRICE OF SUGAR IN RUSSIA IS FIXED BY GOVERNMENT

(Special to the Monitor)

ODESSA, Russia—The question of Russia's further participation in the Brussels sugar congress will shortly be decided. It is probable that if Russia does not obtain for herself from the congress the freedom she seeks in the development of her westward sugar exports, she will secede from the association.

The price of sugar in Russia is extraordinarily high. This is due to the fact that the industry is practically a trust supported by the government, who dictate months in advance the amount of the annual output as well as the price at which it shall be sold. The sole explanation of the government's policy is that at some future date it intends converting the trust into a crown monopoly.

RUSSO-CHINESE WAR OVER MONGOLIA IS SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

Recognition by Russia of Northern Dependency as Independent, Said to Cause Much Misgiving in Peking

TROOPS ON MOVE

(Special to the Monitor)

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia—It is generally felt in St. Petersburg that it is by no means improbable that a conflict between Russia and China will occur at no very distant date. Ever since the commencement of the revolution in China, Russian foreign policy has been unusually active in the direction of Mongolia.

As in Persia, so in the direction of China, Russia is intent on extending her territory. This policy of extension was pursued in Persia under the pretext of assisting in the development of the country and in the opening up of trade and industry with a view to placing the Persians in a position to manage their own affairs in a satisfactory manner for themselves. The result has, however, been only a series of disturbances ending in the paralysis of trade and the permanent occupation of northern Persia by Russian troops, which is certainly not conducive to the development of industry and commerce.

It may be said that in the direction of China the policy of Russia, since the establishment of the new era in what was formerly the Celestial empire, has been to gradually increase her hold on Mongolia under the guise of supporting the wishes of the people for independent government.

Misgiving in China

Those who have followed the history of Russia in the past, have no reason to suppose that the future will show any striking change in her relations with her neighbors. For this reason the agreement announced to have been made between Russia and Mongolia, and signed at the commencement of the present month, is looked upon with considerable misgivings by many in China.

According to this agreement the Russian government undertakes to assist Mongolia to maintain the autonomous regime she has established, to support her right to have a national army, and to admit neither the presence of Chinese troopers on her soil, nor the colonization, by Chinese, of her territory.

The clause referring to Russian commerce and the treatment of Russian subjects, is perhaps especially significant, for it is set forth that the Mongolian sovereign and government will assure to Russian subjects and Russian commerce, as in the past, the full enjoyment of their rights and privileges, as enumerated in the protocol, and it is clearly understood that no other foreign subjects in Mongolia shall be granted fuller rights than those accorded to Russian subjects.

Referring to the relations of the Mongolian government with China or any other power, the agreement provides that in the event of the Mongolian government finding it necessary to conclude a separate treaty with another power or with China, this new treaty shall in no case infringe the articles of the agreement recently signed and the protocol attached to it, or modify them without the consent of the Russian government.

Agreement Broad In Scope

It should be noted that the agreement signed between Russia and Mongolia refers to Mongolia, presumably, as a whole, as it does not specify either the northern or any other special part of the country.

The policy of both Russia and Japan with regard to China has been referred to at length in previous issues of The Christian Science Monitor, and it would appear that the developments foreshadowed on those occasions are in a fair way to being fulfilled.

In the meantime, it is reported that the Chinese living at Kobdo in Mongolia have been sent to Harbin, escorted by Cossacks. The Mongolian garrison consists at present of 500, and it is understood that a Chinese force of 6000 is on its way to Kobdo, whilst a Russian force of three sotnias of trans-Baikal Cossacks and a battery of artillery are on their way to the same place.

NEW OWNER OF STAFFORD HOUSE WILL DEVOTE IT TO SOME NATIONAL PURPOSE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—For some while rumors have been current of the sale of Stafford house to an American, or as it has also been reported to Sir William Hesketh Lever. This latter announcement proves to have been correct for it is officially announced that Stafford house has been definitely sold by the Duke of Sutherland, and that the purchaser is Sir William Lever.

It is the intention of Sir William to devote Stafford house to some national purpose, but no details of the scheme have so far become public. In consequence of the departure of Sir William Lever for the Congo where he will be absent for some four or five months, the matter has been left in the hands of George Henley of Liverpool. It was of Stafford house that Queen Victoria wrote to the last duchess, "I am coming from my house to your palace."

It is well known that for some years, the Duchess of Sutherland has tired of the vastness of her London house, and has lent it repeatedly for philanthropic purposes. The sale of the house, therefore, will not come as a surprise, though it has generally been expected that it would be acquired for the Prince of Wales.

Stafford house stands almost within the precincts of St. James palace. It was built in the year 1825 by the Duke of York on the site of Cleveland house, by which name Stafford house long continued to be known, and of the smaller Godolphin house, the home at one time of Charles James Fox. It was said that the Duke of York obtained the money to build it from the Marquis of Stafford, but however that may have been, it soon after became the property of the Stafford family.

The house overlooks both St. James park and the Green park, and is famed for one of the finest private collections of paintings in London. Among the pictures are numerous Titians, Murillos, Rubens and Van Dycks.

DELHI PLANS FOR ENTRY OF VICEROY

(Special to the Monitor)

DELHI, India—Work is actively proceeding in connection with the preparations that are being made to celebrate the official entry of the viceroy into the new capital on Dec. 23. The hotels are already filling and tents are springing up on the various camping grounds. Meanwhile strenuous efforts are being made to complete the temporary offices where the administration will be lodged until such time as the permanent buildings of the new city are ready.

LEIPZIG LIBRARY PLAN IS COSTLY

(Special to the Monitor)

BERLIN, Germany—A new library, to be called the Buecherei, is to be erected at Leipzig shortly, at a cost of 3,000,000 marks. The country of Saxony and the city of Leipzig will each contribute 200,000 marks for its maintenance.

The library will be unique of its kind, containing every publication printed and sold within the German empire from Jan. 1, 1913, onwards, and also every book printed in German in foreign countries. This wonderful institution will add to Leipzig's already great fame in the literature world. It has been celebrated for its book trade from the middle of the eighteenth century to the present day, and the Leipzig "Book Fair," which takes place annually, is visited by people, buyers and sellers, from all parts of the world. The number of publishers and booksellers in that city is close upon a thousand.

AVIATION DISPLAY LIKED IN IRELAND

(Special to the Monitor)

DUBLIN—Spectators flocked from far and near, to the edge of the Curragh of Kildare, to see the aviation exhibition which Mr. Valentine gave there recently. The morning was very still, one of those late autumn days, which are misty and mild, and very suitable, it is said, for flying.

Three times the aviator rose from the ground and circled in the air. The highest altitude reached by the aviator was 700 feet, and when at that height, the engine was stopped and the machine came down like a bird, and alighted on the ground, the spectators cheered enthusiastically, and thoroughly enjoyed the skill with which the machine was managed.

It is reported that a school of aviation is to be established, somewhere near Dublin, and regular instruction given in the management of the machines.

JEWISH WOMEN FORM LEAGUE

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—It is reported that a Jewish League for Woman Suffrage has been started. The league will be non-political, and is formed with the object of demanding the parliamentary franchise for women on the same terms as men. It will carry on its propaganda on educational lines.

PARTY SYSTEM PLAN IN POLITICS RAPPED

(Special to the Monitor)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aus.—The president of the Chamber of Manufacturers, Mr. Pratten, in his annual speech set forth some features of public life that have created much comment. He dealt with the evils of the party system and the wilful waste of time and energy in the battle between the "ins" and the "outs."

He pointed out that the development of New South Wales resources is of paramount importance, yet in party warfare this is often lost sight of, and as a consequence development has not taken place as speedily as might have been the case had more patriotic political motives held sway. He was able to show a deplorable absence of capable candidates for parliamentary work. Good men will not come out and give their services to the state.

The articles that have since appeared mostly agree with Mr. Pratten's remarks, but how to improve conditions is the problem. It is evident that one of the principal reasons why good men do not come out is, that the parliamentary machine is unwieldy. Less members, of a higher caliber, paid a better salary and expected to give the whole of their time to the state would certainly result in more efficient government. Much time is now lost in speechmaking, which has no direct connection with the making of laws; senseless votes of censure, and the inability of members to even cooperate in egislation that appears as planks on both platforms. It is to be hoped that a change for the better will be evolved soon. Public opinion is stirred, and no doubt when men begin to think on these subjects a better way will reveal itself in the fulness of time.

COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE LEAGUE IS AIDING EDUCATED WOMEN TO BROADER LIFE IN CANADA

Important Branch of Emigration Work by Society Will Be Farm Settlement Developing Competent Workers, So Needed in New Land

OPPORTUNITIES GOOD FOR EFFICIENCY

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—Only a couple of years ago a correspondence in the Times newspaper upon the surplus of educated women, revealed to Mrs. Norman Grosvenor the necessity for promoting the emigration of educated women to the English colonies. That there was a vast field for enterprise is shown by the rapid growth of the league and by the number of meetings that are being held everywhere in support of its doings.

The most recent gathering received a very encouraging report from Mrs. Norman Grosvenor, the chairman, who for years in succession has been out to Canada to see for herself what type of women is most wanted and to judge of the kind of training that is essential to life in a young country.

Mrs. Grosvenor laid great stress upon the danger of describing Canada as the "Golden West" or as a long-looked-for Utopia, as is done by enterprising firms; for work in the colony, though well paid, is hard and continuous. All over Canada isolated farms are found, inhabited by colonists of the educated class, whose wives have gone out to a life of stern discipline and work.

Home Help Needed

It is in such homes that the educated home help is needed, one who for good wages will live laborious days, sharing the family life and the general companionship. In England there are thousands of women, educated at high schools and elsewhere, who find it difficult to earn a good salary, while out in Canada the presence of educated women is a great and growing need.

The business of the Colonial Intelligence League is to bring the employer and the worker together, and thus put an end to wastage at one end of the empire and want at the other. The immediate object of the league is to establish a farm settlement in Canada, where women can go for a term of training, so that they can assist in the development of agricultural work, either upon their own account or upon that of others. Very soon there will be an enormous demand for the work of women in this direction, and opportunity to become invaluable citizens will be afforded to those numbers of girls of fine physique, who, having been trained in various colleges as gardeners and dairy farmers, find it so difficult to obtain employment.

Opportunities Seen

In Canada, the Danish butter, the eggs and fowls and other imported food commodities from other countries point to various branches of neglected industry, which with the rapid settlement of the country will soon develop and demand competent workers. At the farm settlement women will be able to study colonial conditions, learn the true meaning of resourcefulness, see the seasons through and discover the differences between work at home and abroad. The produce will find a purchaser in the Canadian Pacific railway, which can make use of anything and everything in the way of food stuffs. The work of the house of the farm settlement will also be done by women sent out by the league.

Miss Ella Sykes, whose book, "A Home Help in Canada," has been so well received, made some interesting remarks, based upon personal experiences, at the recent meeting. Miss Sykes went out to Canada last year to test for herself the possibilities of employment for educated women, and a very short time showed her the absolute necessity for special training in some definite direction. Miss Sykes found that in Vancouver island, specially, the life of the home-help is a happy one, since she becomes a member of the family in every sense.

Inquiries Are Careful

The utmost pains are taken to obtain every information as to the posts offered, and the local committees now established are able to discover the reputation of the families to whom girls are to be sent, whilst in England a practical test of efficiency is applied, so that the reputation of the league shall be a high one. Out of 1200 applicants 130 have been sent out, and the number will increase in proportion to the public support of the enterprise

The minister of education, with whom Miss Sykes had an interview, spoke of the opportunities both in primary and secondary schools for competent women, while well equipped stenographers, especially those with a knowledge of French, have found posts easily.

The work of the Colonial Intelligence League is carried on in perfect sympathy with that of other societies, but their strong claim to the support of all thinking people is the fact that they have discerned the special needs of educated people at home and in the colonies. The committee has among its members representatives of the Incorporated Association of Head Mistresses of Public Secondary Schools for Girls, and many of the members have special knowledge of colonial life. Above all it endeavors to estimate the demand for women's work in the overseas dominions and to see that training in whatever direction shall be thorough in every detail.

THE HOME FORUM

REALIZING HUMAN HOPES

WRITTEN FOR THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

CARLYLE, in a passage in which he said that man's unhappiness comes of his greatness, because there is an infinite in him which he cannot bury under the finite, illustrated his point by declaring that if the whole of the finance ministers and upholsterers and confectioners of modern Europe undertook to make one shoeblack happy, they would fail to do so above an hour or two. Why? Because the shoeblack, even if he owned half the universe, would quarrel with the proprietors of the other half and believe himself the most maltreated of men. The keynote of this passage—the illusiveness of human hopes when centered on material things—is found in one of those striking parables by which Jesus taught the truth to mankind. In the story of the rich man and his barns, "Thou fool" was the withering condemnation of the mortal who vainly hoped that life and happiness consisted in fruits and goods, and whose outlook was limited to the vision of an early or a distant time. The highest thought of mankind acknowledges that Jesus was right, and will admit, theoretically at least, that any man is a "fool" who in this way lays up "treasure for himself," and is not "rich towards God." Yet let us be honest, and at once confess that most men have a long way to go in wisdom and understanding before they can quite rise above the attitude taken by the rich man.

Self-examination will reveal that human hopes are based too often on something like a chimera. We may say that the goal is happiness, but if we are seeking for that in anything apart from God and His creation, we are being misguided. Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, in the text-book, Science and Health, pricks the bubble of human hopes in passage after passage, showing the frailty, the elusiveness of human aspirations when thought dwells on material concepts. She pictures on page 190 the remarkable change that took place in the Hebrew bard when he ceased to be "swayed by mortal thoughts and hope rose higher in the human heart." The change was one from "saddening straits" to joyous satisfaction, following the spiritual awakening.

This experience has been repeated in the spiritual history of millions of men since then. Mortal man is the victim of the material sense. They misfeed and deceive him with a persistence and subtlety of which he is unconscious until a mental awakening causes him to readjust his thoughts. Today men find in Christian Science a searchlight that enables them to know the truth about God and themselves. They see that in their ignorance of God—in the false beliefs that they have been cherishing about Him and all His works—they have metaphorically lost their way. Then comes the necessity of correcting thought. We never begin to lay stress on spiritual thought until we see God as absolute good, the only cause and creator, and man as His perfect image and likeness. Spiritual identity being thus revealed to us, we shall know how to live in accordance with God's law. We shall also discover that "to calculate one's life-prospects from a material basis, would infringe upon spiritual law and misguide human hope" (Science and Health, p. 319).

Let it be understood that natural, righteous human activities—production, government, business, social relationships—all the useful and beneficial employments of men are perfectly legitimate. Every good human activity is a present duty. But in order to be based always in good the acts of mankind need the leavening power of Spirit, which, indeed, is the only real and lawful power in the universe. Standing on the watch tower we may be so alert that we shall not be swayed by "the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes," nor dwell in the belief that there is any life, any intelligence, any power, any good outside of or distinct from the spiritual realm.

God, Spirit and His universe, which is spiritual, is all there is. Every human hope needs to be spiritualized and aroused to this new consciousness, which knows that the entrance to the kingdom of God is not through the door of material desires. The way is through surrender to and acceptance of all that is pure and holy, all that springs from the heart of divine Love. It is in this manner that thought passes from error to truth, from the unreal of men's imaginings to the real of divine governance. The result is to change the whole aspect of life to him who is thus awakened because he has learned that "the anchor of hope must be cast beyond the veil of matter into the Shekinah into which Jesus has passed before us" (Science and Health, pp. 40-41).

Emerson's Praise of Virtue

A MORE secret, sweet and overpowering beauty appears to man when his heart and mind open to the sentiment of virtue. Then instantly he is instructed in what is above him. He learns that his being is without bound; that, to the good, to the perfect, he is born. . . . That which he venerates is still his own, though he has not realized it yet. He ought. He knows the sense of that grand word, though his analysis fails entirely to render account of it. When in innocency or when by intellectual perception, he attains to say, "I love the right; truth is beautiful within and without forevermore; virtue, I am thine, save me, use me, thee will I serve day and night, in great, in small, that I may be not virtuous, but virtue";—then is the end of the creation answered and God is well pleased.—Emerson.

THROUGH THE MALAY STATES BY RAIL

THE tourist cannot but be amazed at the stupendous amount of activity which he sees manifested on a journey from Singapore to Penang in the luxurious cars of the Federated Malay State Railways. The trip can be made in about 24 hours with a break of an hour or so at Kuala Lumpor, chief town of Selongor state and capital of the Federated Malay States. The traveler is well repaid for making somewhat of a detour by the beauty of the scenery and plantations which are passed en route. In the last few years the virgin forests have been made to resound with Chinese, Tamil, Javanese and Malay languages, for such is the demand for labor that it has been requisitioned from various sources. The number of rubber estates in the making which meet the eye is remarkable, and although the man in the street is aware of the rise of the rubber estates in the middle east, yet it is brought home in a striking manner by actually seeing the work of clearing great tracts of land, entailing an enormous amount of capital. Every few miles along the railway one sees the burning, chopping and clearing of dense jungle, and almost before the smoke has died out the seedlings of the wonderful tree, Hevea Brasiliensis, appear, acre after acre, in all states and stages of development. A green undulating country, partly mountainous, generally covered by thick vegetation, makes the journey of 678 miles quite delightful.

Kuala Lumpor is a town which, like a mushroom, has sprung up in a night. The residents in this beautiful spot, if removed somewhat from the busy centers of civilization, have at least the compensation of ideal surroundings and fine dwellings. All seem to be well off and many possess motor cars which are most useful to the average planter, who has big distances to cover on roads which are excellent. Many of the buildings in Kuala Lumpor are of substantial appearance, and being a garrison town, there is a certain amount of life which is not seen in other towns in the Federated Malay States. Its importance as the chief center is being rapidly recognized and recently several banks have established branches there, which presage a continuation of the boom in this territory. Ipoh, the capital of Perak (which, by the way, is pronounced without the k) is another important town of late growth which well repays a visit and in whose surrounding districts marble is quarried in fairly large quantities. The hotels in both Kuala Lumpor and Ipoh are good and under European management and it is probably owing to the short time that the railway has been opened through from Singapore to Penang that so few tourists have yet taken advantage of them.

Another way of reaching Kuala Lumpor is by taking a steamer of the Straits Steamship Company from Singapore to Port Swettenham 27 miles away on a tributary of the Selangor river. From Port Swettenham the journey to Singapore is accomplished by railway. Plenty of crocodiles abound in the rivers, whilst tigers and a few other kinds of animals are numerous in the jungle. It is exceptional, however, for the latter to be a menace to those engaged on the plantations. It is a prosperous country, supplying as it does a majority of the world's tin, and being reckoned daily more and more as an important factor in rubber growing, to say nothing of cocoanut plantations and tapioca fields. The Chinaman is to be found everywhere; he is indefatigable, can do anything, and can at once accustom himself to any climate. The middle east, which includes Borneo and Sumatra, owes him a debt of gratitude. The useful and dignified custodians of the peace, personified by Sikh policemen, are much in evidence in the Federated Malay States as they are in Shanghai, Hongkong and the Straits Settlements and one cannot but admire an administration which governs so harmoniously a cosmopolitan and generally uncivilized population.

The journey from Singapore to Penang by rail is an interesting and enjoyable experience. As the traveler can, as a rule, leave his ship at Penang and catch it again at Singapore, it forms a pleasant diversion to the monotony of a sea voyage.

BRAHMS, BEETHOVEN, BACH

THE necessity for making propaganda for the art of Brahms is fortunately long past. His growth was slow. That the public was puzzled and even affronted at first by the unbending purity of his style and the stern quality of his methods, a writer in the New York Sun reminds us.

Special correspondents in famous musical capitals such as Munich wrote of his symphonies that they could not make head or tail of them. Others declared that his piano concertos were symphonies with piano obbligati. Still others, with a greater show of reason, vowed that the man knew nothing at all about instrumentation and that his orchestral scores were as opaque as ground glass.

But above all men hated his melodic idiom. Brahms from the first sang in cool accents. He had no butter in his speech. He had compelling ways. He presented himself not as one seeking favors but as a master demanding homage.

His melodic idiom was founded on a conception not familiar to the musical amateurs of his early days. And here we find ourselves upon the verge of that domain of technicalities which is forbidden territory to the writer for general reading. But sometimes it is imperative to overstep the boundary in order that instruction may be sought.

W. H. Hadow in his admirable "Studies in Modern Music" has said: "Tintoret claimed the drawing of Michael Angelo and the coloring of Titian." Brahms in like manner may claim the counterpoint of Bach and the structure of Beethoven." And in this pithy saying lies a world of information.

The polyphonic creation of Bach, the method which he developed, is practically inexhaustible. It is applicable to every form of composition and it was in his perception and application of this important fact that Brahms proved his right to be regarded as one in the imposing line of pathfinders in music.

Glasgow Again Second City of Empire

Glasgow has once more taken her place as the "second city of the Empire." The new districts incorporated by virtue of the provisions of the Glasgow boundaries act of 1912 include Govan, Partick, Pollokshaws, Jordanhill, Newlands, Cathcart, Shettleston and Tollcross. These together increase the acreage of Glasgow from 12,975 to 19,183 acres, the population from 784,496 to 1,007,601, and the valuation from £5,977,248 to £7,261,753. The number of municipal wards has been raised to 37 by reason of the extension of the boundary.

Some New Composers

Since Josef Stransky left Berlin to become the conductor of the New York Philharmonic, the Bluethner orchestra, in that city, for which he had so rapidly won popularity, has been conducted by Von Hausegger. Like his predecessor, Hausegger, believes in trying novelties. Among those selected by him for the coming season are Paul Juon's "Waechterweise," Hausegger's "Natursymphonie," a violin concerto by Halfdan Cleve, "L'hiver," by Ernest Bloch, "Aubade" by Cyril Scott, and an "Orchestral Poem" by Walter Lampe. These are mostly names little known. It is to be hoped that one of these composers at least has the gift of melody.—New York Post.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT

An Orang's Escape

A young orang, recently presented to the Zoological gardens in Regents park, London, gave the keepers some temporary trouble and uneasiness. Escaping from his cage, he proceeded to the roof, and from that altitude he was able to throw down flower-pots, iron bolts, and pieces of ventilators. There he remained all night. The next day, with the aid of a fire-extinguisher, he was brought into captivity. The interesting part of the episode was that the ape constructed for himself a nest by the side of the house. This he did in the dark, and in what must have been a state of considerable excitement. It has long been asserted that orangs build platform nests, and this particular one broke off and partly bent inwards the central branches of the tree, until a platform, more or less circular, and about four feet in diameter, was constructed. It was composed of crossed boughs, the thickest of which were two or three inches across, and was so arranged that, if it had been summer, the nest would have been surrounded by a screen of foliage, as the outermost branches and twigs were left undisturbed.

"Cornerstone" of Havana, Cuba

September

THE morns are growing misty, the nights are turning cold,
The linden leaves are falling like a shower of gold;
And over where my heart is, beneath the southern sun,
The shearing's nearly over, and the spring's begun.

The crying flocks are driven to feed in peace again,
They stream and spread and scatter on the smooth green plain,
And in the sky above them the soft spring breezes keep
A flock of clouds as snowy as the new-shorn sheep.

Now later comes the sunshine . . .
. . . The ladies in the park
Wear furs about their shoulders, for autumn winds are keen,
And rusty, curling edges fleck the chestnuts' green.

The mists hang gauzy curtains of pearl and pigeon-blue
Between us and the distance; the street lamps shining through
Wear each a golden halo, diaphanous and fair—
But not one whit more lovely than my own clear air.

More clear than you can dream it, as bright as diamond,
It bathes the plains and ridges and the hills beyond.
It bathes the pillared woodlands that ring with bell-bird notes,
With mating-calls and answers from a thousand throats. . . .

The lamps are lit in London . . .
And over where my heart is, twelve thousand miles away,
The dewy grass is glinting at the break of day. —Dorothea Mackellar.

LEAF TAKEN FROM THE NOTE BOOK

FROM earliest childhood the love of dressing up, of pretending to be somebody one is not, is a delight of youth. In nearly every child the dramatic instinct is seen influencing his words and ways in his ordinary doings and cropping out especially in the pleasure children take in charades, amateur circuses and home theatricals. As the young people grow, this tendency makes them willing to spend laborious hours in preparation for some private performance before their friends. At the present time this delight in dramatic expression takes the form of large and elaborate productions by amateurs to which the public has access on payment of the usual theater price.

With this delight in acting, goes the wave of dancing which has spread over the United States, being more marked from the fact that dancing among the people, viewed as a usual part of experience, has not prevailed as it has in European lands. Of course many children in the United States are sent to dancing school, but not until lately has dancing been introduced into the regular training at public schools, and not until now have young ladies exploited solo dancing as they might solo singing, as an addition to their powers of entertaining a drawing room full of friends.

This pleasure in lithe and graceful movement is a mark of these athletic times. A really free and charming activity is gained in dancing, rather than a mechanical social art. The girls in short skirts delight in the normal freedom from the cumbersome petticoat, and plainly prove that it is no more to the taste of an active young womanhood to have its free motions confined by garments than it is to young manhood. The dress for modern dancing allows free movement, and the girls dance and prance and conduct themselves without regard to merely conventional rules, while retaining the dignity and refinement of well-brought up young ladyhood.

Indian Fair

At a recent fair at Poplar, Mont., Indians were the sole exhibitors. They were from the Ft. Peck reservation, and the fair, said to be the first ever given exclusively by red men, proved a success. The reservation Indians are good farmers, and their exhibits gave visitors an idea of what they can do under favorable conditions. Hocesan, a Sioux, won the Louis W. Hill cup, the highest award for an individual agricultural exhibit. He entered 33 varieties of grain and vegetables for competition.—Argonaut.

APPEARANCES AND IMPRESSIONS

AN amusing controversy over the sayings of a certain college professor discussing certain economic problems with his class has been going on in the press. What Professor Patten really did say is now set forth plainly in the Pennsylvanian. He had explained that the girl at work who spends money on dressing neatly in her early days of earning is investing capital in a right way. Employers like employees to appear carefully dressed, especially in offices where all the fittings are harmonious. The girl who puts money, then, into making herself just right—though extravagance and mere display are not indicated here—is doing what the college youth does who borrows money for his college course. That is, she is putting herself in the way of advancement. If with her neat appearance goes equally progressive and satisfactory work, the girl is far more likely to get on than if she appears draggled and unkempt. The girl who is brightly and carefully dressed is, moreover, usually more cheerful than the girl who carries about with her a feeling of being dowdy and all at loose ends. This doctrine of good clothes has certainly much to commend it. Some one else has been lately reported as saying that if men would wear more bright colors they would feel more cheerful and carry about with them a more youthful animus. The gayer dress of woman carries a cheery thought with it, just as birds and flowers and the bright sunshine are all additions to the pleasantness of human living.

Corn in Carolina

An account of a corn-growing contest that is being held in North Carolina, in which state, by the way, the corn crop has doubled in the last three years, appears in Farm and Firesida. Last year's champion is a young man named Parker, who got a yield of 235 bushels per acre. When it is considered that 30 bushels of corn per acre is a fair yield, the following is significant:

Thousands of men and boys are competitors in this year's contests. James F. Botts is again in the race. Last year on 40 acres he got an average of 138 bushels. He intended to dynamite his land last November, but did not do so until the middle of March. This thoroughly pulverized the ground to a depth of four feet. His corn was planted April 9. A photograph made of this test acre exactly sixty days later shows remarkable growth. On July 6 this corn was 10 feet high, and was silking and tasseling, giving wonderful promise of a crop. It is planted in rows four and one-half feet apart, and from eight to ten inches in the drill, whereas in 1909 the rows were only 42 inches apart. The number of stalks was then estimated at 19,000; this year it is about 13,000. It remains to be seen how the yields will compare, as this season the stalks are larger and better eared than they were three years ago.

All that can be said of friendship is like botany to flowers. How can the understanding take account of its friendliness?—Thoreau.

PRIMEVAL FORESTS IN AMERICA

IF YOU have read Chateaubriand's "Atala," you will have a rather different notion of old American forests in the Mississippi valley. "On the western side of the Mississippi," Chateaubriand wrote, "the waves of verdure on the limitless plains (savannas) appear as they recede to rise gradually into the azure sky; but on the eastern half of the valley trees of every form, of every color, and of every perfume throng and grow together, stretching up into the air to heights that weary the eye to follow. Wild vines . . . intertwining each other at the feet of these trees escalade their trunks and creep along the extremity of their branches, stretching from the maple to the tulip-tree, from the tulip-tree to the hollyhock, and thus forming grottos, arches and porticos. Often, in their wanderings from tree to tree, these creepers cross the arm of a river, over which they throw a bridge of flowers. . . . A multitude of animals spread about life and enchantment. . . . Caribous bathe in the lake; black squirrels play among thick foliage; mocking-birds and Virginia pigeons, not bigger than sparrows, fly down upon the turf, reddened with strawberries; green parrots with yellow heads, purple woodpeckers, cardinals red . . . clamber up to the very tops of the cypress trees; humming-birds sparkle upon the jessamine of the Floridas. . . .

"All here . . . is sound and motion . . . when a breeze happens to animate these solitudes, to swing these floating bodies, to confound these masses of white, blue, green and pink, to mix all the colors, and to combine all the murmurs. There issue such sounds from the depths of the forests, and such things pass before the eyes, that I should in vain endeavor to describe them to those who have never visited these primitive fields of nature."

And when Rene and Atala were escaping from those forests, they "advanced with difficulty under a vault of smilax, amidst vines, indigo plants, bean-trees and creeping ivy that entangled their feet like nets."

Free Trade

EVERY jar which shivers the Liberal cart jolting forward toward a general election, raises in the breasts of the opposition hopes of the immediate amendment of the fiscal system. It was really Mr. Balfour's unwillingness, perhaps it would be fairer to say his mental inability, to appreciate the arguments of that wing of the Unionist party known as the "whole hoggers," which caused the rift between him and them, that ended in his retirement from the leadership. The free trade wing of the Unionist party has shrunk to very modest dimensions, but it includes in its ranks some of the most thoughtful members of the opposition, such as the Cecils, in the House, and St. Loe Strachey, in the press. To these men, the attitude of the "whole hoggers" is the one thing which stands between the party and victory. It may, therefore, be imagined with what feelings they have heard the recent utterances of Bonar Law.

The leader of the opposition has always been one of the tariff reform stalwarts. To him, Balfour's undertaking not to put tariff reform into practise without an appeal to the nation, even if the Unionists gained a victory at the polls, was bowing in the house of Rimmon. He has long allowed it to be inferred that if he became ruler of the Unionist hosts, the Balfourian formula would be set aside. Now that, in the retreat of the prime minister before the organized violence of his opponents, he sees what he takes for daybreak in the clouds of opposition, he nails the protectionist flag to the mast, and announces that if the Unionists are successful at the polls, tariff reform will follow, post hoc, ergo propter hoc.

It must be admitted that the position is a somewhat difficult one, tested on the touchstone of mere politics. To the free trade wing, a policy of tariff reform is bound to end, no matter how it may begin, in illustrating the famous saying of Disraeli, that protection was not only dead but damned. In their eyes the government has committed so many mistakes that, had it not been for the country's fear of tariff reform, a Unionist victory might have been achieved long ago. Now, at the moment when they believe the country has been irritated by the insurance act, and frightened by the possibilities of the home rule bill, they see their leaders cutting away the referendum, and the party ship staggering out to sea, with every protectionist sail set. The tariff reformers, on the other hand, ask what is to occur if they drop by the wayside the ark of the covenant they have been carrying so laboriously through the desert of opposition, ever since the general election of 1906. How, they demand, are they to go to the country with no constructive policy whatever? It must be admitted that not the least of the ministerial assets is the difficulties of the opposition.

THE registrar of statistics of Ohio reports an unprecedented demand for automobiles in the rural districts of that state. Ohio men, since they voted against suffrage, have been trying to make all sorts of amends.

THE German oil monopoly covers illuminating oils only, it is reported. These, however, may help to shed light on the rest of the subject, but they haven't over here.

Schooling in Good Manners

LOS ANGELES, CAL., has taken steps to provide a course in good manners for its normal school. Those who are to instruct the young in the public schools of that city henceforth are themselves to be taught along lines that have heretofore been deemed unnecessary in most American communities. The course is made compulsory, and the aspirant for a position in the teaching corps must be up to the standard in manners, as well as in mathematics and other essentials, before a certificate will be granted. Whether the criticism so frequently directed against American manners by foreign visitors is or is not well-founded, it is a healthful sign that it has been, generally speaking, good-naturedly received; a still more wholesome evidence of the disposition of the nation is to be found in its willingness to learn of those who are more advanced in any particular wherein it is deficient and in what way it may best improve itself.

Much that is accounted by strangers crude, or coarse, or unmannerly in the United States, or, for that matter, in any other country, is only apparently so. Customs and manners vary with the crossing of every political boundary. That which seems lacking in warmth, in hospitality, in courtesy to the new arrival, very often appeals pleasingly to the visitor after acclimatization. One of the severest critics the United States has ever had, Charles Dickens, was moved, after a tirade against the country in general, to acknowledge that in no part of the world, so far as he was cognizant, were men as courteous to women as in the United States. Later, when he had seen and learned more of the country and its people, he made generous amends for all his fault-finding by saying that not even in his own land could he have been treated with greater delicacy, consideration or hospitality.

Cause for criticism on the point of manners may be found in any country among individuals. The people of the United States as a whole are as well-mannered as any other people, if true manners are expressed in social gentleness, kindness, heartiness, solicitude for another's comfort, regard for another's welfare. Courtesy, here and elsewhere, however, is too frequently lost sight of by the ill-bred, self-centered and careless individual, as well as by the headstrong, indifferent and selfish crowd. In recent years we have had striking evidences of the fact that the higher human virtues, like gallantry and heroism, any more than vices like cowardice and brutality, are not national nor racial.

It holds good, nevertheless, that the United States has much to learn in the amenities, in politeness, in ordinary manners and that the move just made in Los Angeles is a proper one. The American public-school teacher can scarcely be referred to except to be extolled; but if she has her faults, they are none the less deplorable sometimes because they are trivial. Let us hope that the Los Angeles normal school course in good manners may prove corrective and that its work may be worthy of emulation throughout the country.

University Accounting

AT THE recently convened conference of administrators of American universities and colleges the president of Yale came stoutly to the support of critics of the financial and administrative methods of the ordinary educational institution, privately endowed and controlled by trustees unaccountable to any higher authority. President Hadley is of like mind with the Carnegie Institution for the Advancement of Learning in its strictures on universities' and colleges' failure to establish tests of efficiency in administration, tests similar to those to which other agencies using equally large trust funds are voluntarily submitting. He argues for reform on the grounds of both ethics and self-interest. A donor has a right to insist that his gift or bequest shall provide a maximum of profit to students, to professors and to the community. Administrators have no moral justification for waste. On the other hand, an institution that proves to prospective donors that it is efficiently administered and run economically stands the best chance of getting gifts and bequests.

Compared with conditions in the country a decade or two ago, vastly bettered methods now prevail, especially in the South and West, where the standards imposed by the general education board and by the southern education board and by individuals like D. K. Pearsons and J. D. Rockefeller, prior to rendering aid, have forced upon trustees and presidents safer systems of investment, simpler and franker methods of accounting, and something like order where often only chaos and a hand-to-mouth system prevailed.

A state university's finances have to undergo precisely the same measure of scrutiny annually that any other part of the administrative machine submits to from a competent, legislative committee. The privately endowed college hitherto, because exempt from accountability to any body not attached by ties of sentiment to the institution, has been able to continue operations much as it pleased. Evidently in the future academic accounting, like that of municipalities, is to utilize the comparative method more than in the past. There is to be more fiscal publicity for the benefit of both alumni and the public.

Nor is the movement confined to the highest grade of educational institutions. The pioneer work done by Newton, Mass., in applying strict tests of cost and of administrative efficiency to the highly differentiated public school system of that city, has made a deep impression upon leaders of education in the United States.

Name That Has Come to Stay

IT IS reported from Washington that a protest against the continued use of the name "White House," as applied to the official residence of the President of the United States of America, has developed in that city. It has been known as the White House ever since its erection, or since the original executive mansion was rebuilt. In President Roosevelt's administration the name "White House" for the first time was officially stamped upon the executive office stationery, and it has been continued under President Taft, but this does not affect the matter in the slightest. Official recognition of the popular appellation could not have made it more secure; the withdrawal of this official recognition at any time can in no degree alter the fact that to Americans the White House is the White House and as the White House it will doubtless remain.

There are innumerable precedents and parallels. There is, for instance, and not to go back too far, "Sans Souci," that wanted nothing and has lost nothing in dignity because a name that might have been given a chalet, a novel or a song was bestowed upon it. There is, or rather was, the "Tuileries" in Paris, a name taken from the tile-kilns or brickyards, the site of which it occupied. There is "Downing street" in London, a name that rings through the chancelleries of Europe. There is "Liepzeigenstrasse" in Berlin, of which as much might be said. There is "Wall street" in New York, which, like "Lombard street" in London, stands for the money-power of a nation.

No amount of officialism can undermine or overthrow the popular choice in matters of this kind. One of the first and greatest skyscraper office buildings in the world is known as the Rookery. Nobody in London ever thinks of calling the houses of Parliament Westminster palace. It is not thought undignified to speak of its great bell as Big Ben.

White House was a very appropriate name for the American executive mansion at the beginning; it was a very popular name, or it would not have stuck. It seems nonsense at this late day to think of doing away with it. Whether the stationery shall be embossed "President's House," or "Office of the President," or "Executive Mansion" in the next or succeeding administrations, the building will remain the White House to the people, and since it belongs to them, their wish in the matter should be respected.

PRESIDENT-ELECT WILSON is staying at Salt Kettle, Bermuda. Perhaps he will get something out of that kettle with which to flavor his message.

Hoe Sale Significances

THE sum finally received from sale of the library of Robert Hoe amounted to $1,932,060. That is a record amount, made possible by the bids of collectors from the capitals of Europe as well as those of Mr. Hoe's imitators among American business men and great libraries and art museums. For the artistic worth of many of the illuminated manuscripts of the collection made this sale important to the art connoisseur as well as to the bibliophile. Had Mr. Hoe, with the profits derived from his printing press industry, invested in the most conservatively managed and profitably conducted trading or transportation monopolies of the country, or had he found use for his surplus capital in purchase and working of rich mineral properties, he could hardly have earned for his heirs larger dividends on invested capital than this sale has made certain. During the past generation the number of competitors for rarities has increased to a degree not anticipated when Mr. Hoe and Mr. Morgan began to invade European auction rooms. Moreover, whether they come from the Americas, or South Africa, or Russia, or any other quarter of the world where wealth has been swiftly accumulated of late, collectors now are backed with bank accounts that make their rivals of western Europe gasp. Often discrimination in values is not equal to the dimensions of the purses of these rich novices. But where, as in the case of Mr. Hoe, both taste and ample wealth combine, the results of a deliberate campaign for spoils conducted by an American business man are disconcerting to other competitors.

Much of the collection that Mr. Hoe won mainly from Europe will return thither. More of it will simply change hands, and find its way into American libraries and museums, private and public. New York, Boston and the older seaboard cities will get the lion's share, no doubt, but on this point there is risk in prophecy. The habit of spending lavishly for fine books and pictures gains control over ever increasing numbers of American business men, and it is difficult now to say where masterpieces of art and craftsmanship find abiding places. There are private and public collections in the far West today that would win from a London or Parisian collector at least respect if not admiration, especially if he took into account the newness of the collecting passion and the crudeness of the local life a decade or two ago.

WITH all the recent improvements in street cars, it still remains for inventive genius to design a car that will let the sedate passenger take a seat without flopping.

"Trop d'Art"

WE HAVE read with pleasure and a great sense of obligation a most clear and brilliant article with this title by a writer in a French newspaper of recent date. To this gentleman we make bold to extend our thanks for having protested in an extremely straightforward way against the honors of "nouveau art," that strange system wherein all things from looking glasses to umbrella-stands are made to assume an appearance so strange and disquieting that the sense of harmony is offended. It certainly is "too much art," if art so called is to be employed in what is after all merely bizarre and remarkable principally for its departure from certain excellent standards of the beautiful.

Art, if it be understood in its right sense, we always need; art is no more than the right way of doing a thing; it is not the right way of doing a thing wrongly, although it would seem that some are well content with such an interpretation. In this connection it is interesting to observe a question raised by this French writer, when he asks half in doubt whether democracy will ever give to the world a school of art of its own. The question is reasonable enough and has a great many sides. Art, after all, in the sense that we attach to it, implies one that teaches and one that learns. Do not let us disturb ourselves about the paleolithic genius that scratches pictures of mastodons on bone; perhaps they needed no teachers and perhaps they did. At all events we are in today, and today, if we would learn, we must be taught; and if we would be taught we must entertain without irritation the idea of discipline.

How much is that idea welcomed in a modern democracy? It is useless to hark back to the things produced in the ancient democracies, because they were not democracies in the modern sense and, as we have pointed out again and again, they were so small that their scheme of democratic operation offers no useful analogy to the huge democracies of today. How willing, aside from the recurrent question of wages, is the young member of the democracy in the United States to submit himself to the necessary confession that he does not know as much as somebody else? It is a fair question, especially in view of the patent fact that work by no means improves in quality with an increase in so-called advantages, political or economic. It is all art, this work that men do, whether they make lead pipe or write books. It is not art to make a point of independence from recognized standards of beauty and excellence. To be different from somebody else does not necessarily mean to be better than that one or to excel him. Yet if the wholesome discipline of patience, hard work, continual practise and deference to knowledge be not preserved, art in all walks of life must descend to a not genial desire to attract without merit.

Political Matter Free in the Mails

FRANKED political matter in the recent presidential campaign is held accountable by the postoffice department for causing a deficit where there would otherwise have been a surplus in the operations of that branch of the public service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912. The campaign was not well under way by that date, yet if the regular rates of postage had been charged upon the political matter handled during the year up to that time, it would have netted the government about $3,250,000. However, the total amount of franked matter handled during the year—including correspondence, printed matter, documents, seeds, etc., sent out by all departments—ran up to the grand total of 810,000,000 pieces, weighing 61,377,000 pounds, and had regular rates of postage been paid on all of it, the treasury would have netted $20,000,000.

Of course, the great bulk of this matter would not have been transmitted at all save at public expense. It is principally public business, and this holds true even though a considerable part of the franked matter falls into private hands, or is put to individual use. To transmit this matter is a function of the postoffice department, just as it is, and should be, a function of the postoffice department to transmit printed matter, if it be entitled to the privilege of carriage in the mails at all, at cost, or, in special cases, at even less than cost.

The government can well afford to carry worthy political literature, that actually diffuses political knowledge, free. Interpretation of the law in this regard should be most liberal. The amount stated may not be too large, considering the political educational needs of a nation of nearly 100,000,000 people. Granted that the matter carried be actually informative, it is money well invested.

Some abuses unquestionably are to be found; these are not unavoidable, although they may not be preventable at present. Many abuses of the franking privilege have been checked and stopped. As time goes on we believe they will be reduced to the minimum. The fact that a deficit is created in the postoffice department, however, by the following out of a liberal policy, should alarm nobody; it is much better so than that a surplus should be produced by pursuance of a narrow policy. The government is not dependent upon the earnings of the postal system; it is more deeply concerned in the enlargement, ever-expanding usefulness and ever-increasing efficiency of that system.

ITALIAN immigrants, it would seem, are rather excursionists or adventurers. They do not come to stay, and do not return to stay.
